INDOOR—OUTDOOR.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

Cinerarias will require attention at this time, as it is now they must be repotted and encouraged to make good specimens. The same remark applies to primulas. See that fumigation is at once resorted to if aphides make their appearance. Pelargoniums of the show and fancy sections will also need close supervision in this respect. Zonals and scarlet salvias now showing flower will be benefited by an occasional dose of weak liquid manure. See that all watering is done early in the day, and that no moisture is allowed to remain on floors of houses containing plants in bloom.

Cut down anchusas, delphiniums, heleniums and all other herbaceous plants gone out of flower, and give the borders a general forking over, filling up gaps with Biennials, bulbs or any odds and ends of plants remaining after the formal bedding.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT

ACCIDENT CLAIM DISMISSED

WOMAN'S FALL IN OMNIBUS

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT AND A JURY.)

Margaret Hogan, 25 Prussia street, Dublin, sued the Dublin United Tramways Company for £100 for personal injuries, alleged to have been caused to her by reason of the negligence of the defendants or their servants. The defendants denied negligence and pleaded contributory negligence on the part of the plaintiff.

Mr. Brian Moran (instructed by Mr. Desmond Moran) was for the plaintiff, and Mr. D. Fawsitt (instructed by Messrs. O'Connor and Co.) appeared for the defendants.

The case for the plaintiff was that on 3rd April when she was making her way along the gangway of a 'bus to dismount at Manor street the vehicle restarted and stopped suddenly, with the result that she fell and was injured. Medical evidence was to the effect that the muscles of her arms and back were sore and that her side was bruised when she was examined on the evening of the accident.

The conductor and two passengers who were in the 'bus gave evidence that the 'bus was stationary when Mrs. Hogan fell. She fell on her knees.

The jury found for the defendants and the claim was dismissed.

SHOOTING OF A SOLDIER

DUBLIN BARRACKS SCENE

COMRADE ACQUITTED OF MANSLAUGHTER

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE GAVAN DUFFY.)

A SCENE in a dormitory in Portobello Barracks, Dublin, on June 11th last, was described in the Central Criminal Court yesterday, when Mathew Argue, a twenty-one years old soldier of the Free State Defence Forces, a native of Bailieboro', Co. Cavan, was accused of the murder of a fellow-soldier of the 2nd Regiment of Rifles, James O'Callaghan (19), a native of Listowel, Co. Kerry.

O'Callaghan died instantly, having been shot through the head by, it is alleged, a rifle bullet fired by the prisoner.

The shooting occurred at about 6.30 in the evening, when several soldiers were together in the room, according to the statement of Mr. William Black, K.C., who, with Mr. Kevin Haugh (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted. In the evening, before the shooting, Mr. Black told the jury, Argue, who was a trained soldier, was detailed to mount guard at Islandbridge Barracks. When he arrived back he handed up his ammunition in the usual way, but later, while cleaning equipment with Privates Corrigan, McGarry and James O'Callaghan, the prisoner produced a tin box normally used for holding Sweet Afton cigarettes, took a cartridge out of it and put it into the breech of his rifle. Counsel suggested that the prisoner deliberately omitted to put on the safety catch on his rifle and raised it to aiming position, pointing towards the corner where Private Corrigan was standing. Putting on first pressure on the trigger, he kept his comrade covered for about a minute, and then swinging round, pointed the rifle at Private McGarry, keeping him covered, with the trigger at half-cock. McGarry made some protest, but no one appeared to take it seriously. The prisoner then covered O'Callaghan, who was standing with his back more or less to Argue.

"He put the pressure on the trigger again," said counsel, "and, if his idea was to murder the man, he certainly, with cool deliberation, took every preliminary step necessary. At this crucial stage, unfortunately, the two other men seemed to have momentarily diverted their eyes, and a second later there was a loud explosion, the bullet passing through the head of O'Callaghan, killing him instantly. He dropped between the beds bleeding from his wound."

THREW CARTRIDGE AWAY

Referring to the attitude of the prisoner, Mr. Black said that, instead of showing distress, he coolly took the rifle, opened the breech and let the empty cartridge out of the magazine, paying no attention to the man he had killed. He then walked over to Corrigan and held out his hand with the empty cartridge in it. When Corrigan pushed it away, Argue threw the cartridge case out of the window, and passed some remark about going for assistance.

"SEEMED DISTRESSED"

Private McGarry, Portobello Barracks, stated that the prisoner did not take the regulation aim by putting his cheek to the stock when he covered Private Corrigan. Witness asked the accused man "for God's sake, take that away," and Argue did so. After the shot, the prisoner went to witness and said: "What have I done?" The accused man and O'Callaghan always had been the best of friends, and Argue seemed very distressed after the shooting.

Private Corrigan stated that, following the shot, Argue said: "Good God, what have I done; and then left the room, saying he was going for a doctor. Witness whispered some prayers into O'Callaghan's ear, and when he went outside he saw the prisoner sitting on a water tank. When witness saw the rifle pointing towards O'Callaghan, it was pointing more towards the wall than towards the deceased man. The prisoner appeared to be very distressed, and said something about never being forgiven for it.

Dr. J. McGrath, State Pathologist, stated that the bullet entered O'Callaghan's head three inches behind and level with the left ear, and passed through the bones at the base of the skull, breaking brain cell and spinal cord, emerging an inch to the right of the outer angle of the right eye.

Quartermaster-Sergeant J. Lyons stated that he received fifty rounds of ammunition from each member of the guard on the morning of the shooting, and Lieutenant H. J. Kennedy, Orderly Officer, said that when he asked Argue what had come over him, he replied: "There was a round in my rifle; I discharged it." He received an empty cartridge case later. It was mark 25 ammunition and not the regulation type, which was mark 23.

Detective Officer Burns gave evidence of finding several pieces of metal adhering to a shirt and waistcoat in a suitcase which had been punctured by a bullet in the room where the shooting occurred.

Superintendent D. Stapleton, firearms expert of the Civic Guard, demonstrated the action of a rifle for the benefit of the jury, explaining the terms "first pressure" and "second pressure" on the trigger, and the working of the safety catch and bolt action. He stated that, if the safety catch were not brought back fully, the rifle would not be safe. He described how he had fired a test cartridge with the rifle, and how microscopic examination had placed it beyond doubt that the bullet of the empty cartridge case given to him for examination had been fired from the rifle.

Private O'Connor stated that he found a tin cigarette box outside one of the windows of the dormitory room, and it contained six rounds of .303 ammunition, two rounds of .45 ammunition, a bullet extracted from its case and a pocket knife.

PRISONER'S STATEMENT

The prisoner, who was called to give evidence in his own defence, stated that he had been eighteen months in the Army and had known O'Callaghan for about six months, having been on friendly terms with him up to the time of the accident. He was cleaning his kit when he took out a cigarette box containing ammunition, in order to get a penknife to clean part of his rifle. It was possible to lose some of the ammunition handed out to him for guard purposes, and he kept a few rounds in the box in case he lost any. He placed a single round in the barrel and got his thumb at the back of the bolt, pressing on the trigger and pressing forward the bolt at the same time. He thought the rifle was at half-cock when he did that and that it was perfectly safe and could not go off. He turned towards the light to see the action of the rifle, and he could not say if it was pointed at anybody. He believed it was not pointing at anybody, because the others were stooping down cleaning their equipment.

"When I pressed the trigger there was an explosion and the rifle jumped in my hand. I got a shock, because I did not expect that. I did not see O'Callaghan fall, and when I saw him on the floor I thought he had fallen from shock, being so near the explosion. It was some time after I saw the blood on his head I realised what had happened. The safety catch was not on at the time."

MISTAKE ADMITTED

In reply to Mr. Black, the prisoner said he got two rounds of revolver ammunition from O'Callaghan and rifle ammunition from two other soldiers, who had them in case they lost some ammunition. He had made a mistake, he admitted, in pulling back the bolt too strongly, leaving his rifle at full-cock instead of half-cock, as he thought it was. When he saw the blood a weakness came over him.

In his address to the jury, Mr. S. Hooper (instructed by Mr. J. O'Connor), for the defence, stated accidents with guns happened sufficiently often to justify them in holding that there was not necessarily criminal negligence on the part of a man who was holding a gun when it discharged and killed another man. It was a mistake, he suggested, that anybody could make no matter how familiar he was with a gun, to pull the striker to full-cock and think it was at half-cock. He suggested that it was an accident, perhaps of negligence, but certainly not an accident of criminal negligence.

JUDGE'S CHARGE

The judge, in his charge to the jury, said the State had not proved facts to justify a verdict of wilful murder, and he directed them to find a verdict of not guilty on the murder charge. The main issue reduced itself to the simple question: was O'Callaghan killed through the dangerous negligence of the prisoner, and, if so, was there anything to excuse that dangerous negligence? If they found there was dangerous negligence with a reasonable excuse, it would be death by misadventure. It would be, he suggested, pushing charity too far to reasonably treat the manner in which the prisoner handled the rifle as anything less than criminal negligence. Boys would be boys, but this was a man and a soldier accustomed to handling a rifle. They might find it in their hearts to excuse the prisoner, but could they find it in their conscience to excuse the very low standard of care which he seemed to have adopted?

After three-quarters of an hour in retirement the jury returned a verdict of not guilty of manslaughter and the prisoner was discharged.

The Court adjourned till 11 a.m. to-day.

CYCLE MERCHANT'S £40,000

TIME GIVEN TO DEFENCE

(BEFORE THE MASTER OF THE HIGH COURT.)

Mr. Sherry (instructed by Messrs. O'Connell, Rooney and Co.) applied on behalf of Mrs. Florence M. Wood and Timothy J. Wood, her son, both of Parliament street, Dublin, for an extension of time for lodgment of their defence to a probate action concerning the will of Timothy G. Wood, late of Parliament street, husband of Mrs. Wood, in which the plaintiff is Mrs. Mary A. Dwyer, Meadowlands, Churchtown, Dundrum, Co. Dublin, a daughter of the testator.

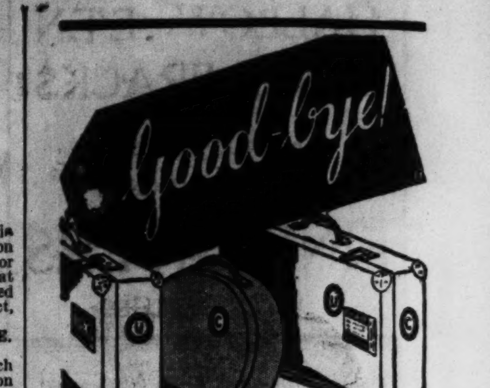

Counsel said that the late Mr. Wood was a cycle merchant and his estate, which consisted mainly of house property in Dublin, was valued at about £40,000. The plaintiff, as executor, sought to have the will established, and the defendants required the additional time, as the testator came from England and it was necessary to make certain inquiries there as to his medical history.

Mr. W. O'B. FitzGerald (instructed by Messrs. Vincent and Beatty) for the plaintiff, opposed the application, stating that there was no necessity for the delay in lodging the defence.

The Master made an order extending the time for lodging the defence for three weeks, and said that if neither side asked for a jury a hearing might be had this term.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

CRUELTY TO MILCH COWS

FORMER PRACTICE RECALLED

(BEFORE MR. LENNON.)

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals summoned James Vance, a farmer, of Ballymahon, Co. Longford, for alleged cruelty to two cows by allowing them to be overstocked with milk. He was fined 1s., with 4s. costs and £2 2s. professional expenses.

Mr. Heany, veterinary surgeon, in evidence, said that the two cows when presented at the Dublin cattle market had extended udders, and on examination he discovered that the teats had been sealed up with collodion. This, he added, was a practice which involved great cruelty to the animal, and although at one time not uncommon in Dublin, he was glad to say that it had now almost ceased to exist. In fairness to the defendant, said the witness, he seemed to know nothing about the action and appeared greatly surprised to know that such a practice existed at all.

Mr. Joseph Barrett, solicitor, who defended, said that Vance had left the animals in care of his employés and knew nothing about the affair till he received a summons. It was the first occasion that he had ever been in court in his life.

Mr. Lennon said that under the circumstances he would take a lenient view of the case.

MICHAEL DIRRANE'S VOCATION

As a student at St. Jarlath's College, which he attended with the assistance of Dr. Patrick McCartan, he has shown outstanding ability. He now hopes to join the Passionist Order, and is being helped to fulfil his intention by the Very Rev. Fr. Adrian, C.P., Mount Argus. Michael Dirrane is now 16 years of age.

SHE DREADED GOING UPSTAIRS
Woman's Fear of Rheumatic Pains
Kruschen Brought Relief
One of the many troubles that afflict rheumatic sufferers is the difficulty of getting up and down stairs. Such was the case with this woman, before she started taking Kruschen, but now she finds it no trouble. Read what she says:—
'I have been taking Kruschen now for over 12 months, a half-teaspoonful in hot water first thing in the morning, and I feel a new woman. I had very painful rheumatism in my knees and back and also my head was getting very bad. I used to dread walking upstairs, now I am very thankful to say it is no trouble at all and I scarcely have any pains. I don't diet at all except to eat more fruit than I used to, and yet my weight is decreasing slowly, which is all I want. I was 14 stone 4 lbs. last year, now I am 13 stone 6 lbs., and I feel better in health than I have done for years.'—(Mrs.) G.M.
Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts are the most effectual solvents of uric acid known to medical science. They swiftly dull the sharp edges of the painful crystals, then convert them into a harmless solution. Other ingredients of these Salts have a stimulating effect upon the kidneys, and assist them to expel the dissolved uratic needles through the natural channels.
Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all chemists at 1/9 per bottle.

BOARD OF HEALTH WANTS ACTION

CAUSE OF DELAYS TO BE EXAMINED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

DUNDALK, Monday.

Government departments in the Free State are hard to move, in the opinion of the Louth Board of Health.

At the meeting of the Board to-day it was stated: (1) That a fourth scheme for the building of more than 100 labourers' cottages had been held up for eighteen months awaiting sanction, and that an inquiry into the scheme, if at all necessary, should have been held twelve months earlier. (2) That a scheme to erect a doctor's residence at Termonfeckin had been held up for the same period, and that, meantime, the doctor had to reside outside the district. (3) That a scheme for providing a laundry for the Ardee Hospital had been formulated six years ago, and never yet sanctioned, and that even now the laundry work had to be done at the old workhouse buildings, a mile away from the hospital.

The Chairman (Mr. T. F. McGahon) said that, in the case of the cottages, people of all parties were urging that they should be built, and yet the Board's work had been held up for a very long time, and, according to the views of the members, for no earthly reason. As to the house for the doctor at Termonfeckin, that necessitated some work by the Land Commission, and that body moved so slowly that he was afraid the house would not be built before 1942.

The Board decided to put the facts of the schemes again before the various departments, and ask them to hurry.

THE CENTRAL CATHOLIC LIBRARY

In addition to their present premises at No. 74 Merrion Square, Dublin, the adjoining premises, No. 75, have been acquired by the Central Catholic Library Committee.

The work of connecting the premises was begun yesterday with the construction of a new passage linking the two buildings. The constructional work will not take long to complete, and it is expected that the new premises will be ready for occupation within the next few weeks.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

IRISH UNITY

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Your editorial on Irish Unity in the issue of October 23rd is interesting, especially to people like myself who were born in the six counties from a stock which boast of no hyphens. Partition is a reality, and flap-doodle about Commonwealths and President de Valera's attitude or change of attitude towards the King of England or the English Empire will not end it. The natural evolution of events will, however, end it, in spite of the politicians, North or South.

Nobody in the North outside a handful of politicians, which the powerful propaganda of England made influential, wanted, or want, partition. It is unnecessary to say that it is the last thing anybody in the South desired. But it is there; and, from the point of view of the twenty-six counties, it was a blessing in disguise. Though I was born in the North, and would like to see my native county and native province part of Ireland, I would not, if in President de Valera's place, or even a dictator of the twenty-six counties, raise my little finger to end it for at least twenty years.

No matter what may be pretended, it is safe to assume that no politician of either party and no industrialist in the South desire to end it at present. The people of Ireland who have lost most by partition are the Unionists of the North. Nobody can deny that the South has progressed by leaps and bounds under both Cosgrave and de Valera, while the North merely marks time. To prove this one has only to visit one or twenty-one towns of similar size in the North and South. Politicians and their ardent supporters may cant about the price of cattle, bacon and butter in the South, but the naked fact is that the average man and his children are eating real bacon and real butter and beef for the first time since the flight of the Earls. In other words, the standard of living is going up, and the "natives" are getting homes and food fit for human beings. It is, perhaps, not all God intended for them; but there is a steady improvement, and compared with the days of my childhood it is luxury.

Had the North responded to the natural promptings of its heart, it would have cast its lot with the rest of Ireland. It did not do so, and it—especially the Unionist North—is the loser. Assuming that the same economic policy would have been pursued by a united Ireland—and it would though the Northern Unionist would have protested and rejoiced at his defeat—the North, and the North almost alone, would have reaped the benefit. There they had whatever was left in Ireland of the union of an industrially trained population. Industry, like everything else in the world, breeds industry; credit and confidence were greater there; labour was, and is, cheaper, and English and Irish capital would have gone there instead of Dublin, Cork, Galway, and elsewhere as it did. Belfast would have led the industrial march in spite of the Union Jacks at the cross-roads. The people of Belfast and the South would have been told that it was Protestant enterprise, and both would have believed it.

The Northern, both Orange and Green, believed that they were superior to their countrymen beyond the Boyne. That belief helped the unscrupulous politicians to make the ordinary honest man swallow the English propaganda. Those of them who come South are now finding out the truth, and beginning to respect their fellow-countrymen. It will take time for that respect to filter down to the man in the street; but it will get there, and when it does it will not be necessary for President de Valera or his successor to do much to "soften the hearts" of the honest, hard-working Orangemen.

It will take twenty years at least before a real change takes place. In that time the new industries here will be consolidated, and at least the twenty-six counties of Ireland will be Gaelic and mentally free. The marks of slavery which made the majority of those in high places mentally bend the knee to those with lots of gall and non-Irish names will have disappeared. They can then meet the Orangeman, who always felt a free man, on equal and friendly terms.

I am not unmindful of the Nationalists of the six counties. They will be deprived of a few petty jobs; but they have been used for centuries to hanging on by the skin of their teeth, and can hang on for a while longer.

Politically, Ireland, as a whole, will benefit by partition. While it lasts no party in the twenty-six counties dare follow in the footsteps of John Redmond, so that the manhood of all Ireland will be saved in the next great war. The men in the North who do not wish to commit suicide for England's Empire will find sanctuary in the South. Like the English Black and Tans, English partition is a blessing. We should be in no hurry to end it until it ends itself.—Yours, etc.,

PATRICK MCCARTAN.

CHURCH OF IRELAND CONGREGATIONS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I have read with interest the further correspondence on the above subject. "An Old Churchman" states that "our Government is doing good work by dividing up the large estates." Apparently he is not familiar with the manner in which these divisions are carried out. Does he not know that practically no Protestant need apply? The local Fianna Fail clubs make certain recommendations, which are usually adopted by the inspector from the Land Commission.

Here are some typical instances of the results of the division of land in County Meath:—

1.—Estate of 600 acres. Six members of the Church of Ireland applied, but got no land. A farmer (R.C.) with about 200 acres got 10 acres of wood. Another farmer (R.C.) with 100 acres got 15 acres of land.

2.—Estate of 900 acres. Forty Protestants applied. One got 20 acres.

3.—Estate of 300 acres. Four Protestants applied, but none got any land.

I could give other instances to show that Protestants—viz., Presbyterians and members of the Church of Ireland—are not getting their fair share of the divided estates.

The Rev. E. M. Bateman assumes that "A.C.K." and myself are unaware of the functions of the Representative Church Body. We are fully acquainted with the fact that there are specific trusts. The investment of capital is, however, spread over a wide area. (See R.C.B. report.) Investments are constantly changing.

Is he not aware that in the past large sums were advanced to landlords as mortgages on estates? There is nothing, in my opinion, to prevent the Representative Church Body from investing capital in the placing of members of our Church on the land. If congregations are dwindling and churches are being closed, then what better investment than the settlement of landless men on the divided estates?

I consider that the Representative Body should make a strong protest to the Government that 100,000 acres in the Irish Free State have been already divided, and that very few farms have been allotted to Churchmen. Isolated action is useless. Influential action will carry some weight.

The Representative Body has knowledge of the facts for some years, but has not taken up the matter with the Government. When it approached the Government on the question of education it was successful. What does the Representative Body intend to do about an equally important matter?—Yours, etc.,

"CHURCHMAN."

MISS ELIZABETH BOWEN

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In your issue of yesterday Miss Elizabeth Bowen is described as being "of old Cromwellian stock"; this is true only in part.

Lieutenant-Colonel Henry Bowen, of the Parliamentary Army, was of Llanellan and Oratrix, in Glamorganshire, and was elder son of Harry Bowen, of Llanellan (d. 1641), who was youngest son of Henry Bowen, of Courthouse (will pr. 1582).

The Bowen family was of Brecknockshire, and the Courthouse Estate was a purchased one; by the marriage of an ancestor the Bowens were connected with Glamorganshire, and thus held some inherited property in the county.

Henry Bowen first came to Ireland with and under the immediate care of Lord Essex, in the expedition described by Miss Lawless; traditional family history says that the object of this expedition was peaceful, being merely to present to the infant, Elizabeth Norreys, at Mallow Castle, a christening cup from her godmother, Queen Elizabeth (d. 1603). In order to make the gift Lord Essex and, presumably, along with him, Henry Bowen went to Mallow.

Queen Elizabeth had settled Brecknockshire on Lord Essex, and he was probably well paid by Harr Bowen, of Llanellan, for including the boy and his tutor, privately, in the expedition as a matter of the child's education.

Henry Bowen returned later to Ireland, where, in the reigns of King James I. and King Charles I., he held military appointments, and during the later part of the latter reign he resided at Farahy Castle, in County Cork.

Peremptorily called upon by Cromwell to raise a force in Glamorganshire, and, after rebuking the parliamentary leader for his disrespect in the matter, Henry Bowen then served with distinction under Lieutenant-Colonel Rainsborough in support of the rights of the Commons.

There is no record that Lieutenant-Colonel Bowen ever served in Ireland in the so-called "Cromwellian Army"; but he is said to have been visited by Cromwell at Farahy, in County Cork, when the latter was on his way to Youghal, and the grant of the lands was made.

This grant was confirmed by King Charles II. to John Bowen—then entitled "miles"—who was eldest son of Lieutenant-Colonel Bowen, and on whom the Farahy Estate was settled by will; this is the last known instance of the conferring of a title which Smith, in his History of England, says was not hereditary and could be held by certain families only (notes on "Chivalry").

In the second grant the land on which Farahy Castle stood is omitted; and the castle then returned to the possession of the White Knight, which recalls the connection between the ancestors of the Bowens and those of the White Knight, and, by marriage, their descent from King Tewdr Mawr, of South Wales, as follows: Bledwyn, last sovereign lord of Brecknock (d. 1088), from whom the Bowens, of Courthouse, were of direct descent, married Ellen, daughter of Tewdr Mawr; Gerald, of Windsor, ancestor of the White Knight, married Nesta, daughter of King Rhys, of Tewdr, and niece of the above-mentioned Ellen.

Bowen's Court, one of the "large houses" of Munster, may not be said to be "one of the four largest in Ireland"; this building replaced Farahy House, which Henry Bowen, of Kilbolane Castle (d. 1722), settled upon Jane Bowen, his widow, heiress of Robin Cole, of Ballymackey, County Tipperary, and grandchild of Sir Robert Cole, Knt., M.P. for Enniskillen, 1660, who purchased Ballymackey Castle from the ffranck family, of ffranckfort Castle, Roscrea.

When of age, Mrs. Jane Bowen's son, Henry, assumed the name and arms of Cole, and later built Bowen's Court, at Farahy.—Yours, etc.,

SIR,—I see under the above title in the "Irishman's Diary" of to-day an inaccurate reference to my family. It was my great-uncle, Mr. William Barlow Smythe, of Barbavilla, Collinstown (not Colonel Lyster Smythe, my father), whom they attempted to murder; and the lady accompanying him driving home from church was his sister-in-law, my grandmother, who was shot instead of him.—Yours, etc.,

PROFITS FROM HORSE RACES

APPEAL FROM TAX ASSESSMENT

CASE STATED IN HIGH COURT

(BEFORE THE PRESIDENT OF THE HIGH COURT, MR. JUSTICE HANNA AND MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE.)

The question whether profits arising from the annual horse race meeting on Easter Mondays at Fairyhouse, Co. Meath, are liable to assessment to income tax arose in an appeal by the trustees of the Ward Union Hunt Races, which came before the Court by way of case stated.

The appeal was from a decision of Circuit Judge Comyn dismissing the appeal of the trustees against assessments for income tax on the profits of the race meetings and confirming assessments in amounts settled by the Special Commissioners of Income Tax.

The appellants had claimed that they were an "agricultural society" within the meaning of Section 4 of the Finance Act, 1925, and that the amounts in respect of which the assessments were made were profits or gains arising from an exhibition or show held for the purposes of an agricultural society; that the profits were solely applied to those purposes, and were, therefore, exempt from income tax. It was admitted that the profits arose from the annual horse race meetings held by the appellants on Easter Mondays at Fairyhouse.

The Special Commissioners of Income Tax held that it was not shown to their satisfaction that the body of stewards controlling the Ward Union race meetings was a society or institution established for the promotion of live stock breeding, and the trustees appealed from that finding to the Circuit Court.

The questions of law for the opinion of the High Court, as set out in the case stated, were whether, in view of the documents in the case and the facts established in evidence on behalf of the appellants, the Circuit Judge was right in finding that the society's object was not solely or mainly the promotion of agriculture; and in finding that there was no evidence as to the purposes for which the society was established to justify him in reversing the decision of the Commissioners, and that the society was not an agricultural society within the meaning of Section 4 of the Finance Act, 1925.

Mr. Frank FitzGibbon, K.C., Mr. H. J. Moloney, K.C., and Mr. Ignatius J. Kelly (instructed by Messrs. A. O'Hagan and Son) appeared for the appellants; and Mr. McCann, K.C., and Mr. Geraghty (instructed by Mr. B. Collins, Revenue Solicitor) for the respondent, Mr. H. P. Hughes, Inspector of Taxes.

REASONS FOR CLAIM

Mr. Kelly, for the trustees, said that they claimed exemption from income tax on the ground that they were an agricultural society. The trustees of these races differed from other authorities who carried on race meetings in so far as every penny they made was applied for the purpose of improving the facilities, and, in addition, they were formed, as he submitted, on the evidence, not simply to hold races, but for the purposes of furthering the interests of horse-breeding. Probably the case would turn on the question whether the Circuit Judge had evidence before him to justify him in holding that the object for which these races were held was to provide a sporting festival rather than an exhibition or show promoted for the purpose of furthering the interests of horse-breeding. There was no finding whether this was a show or exhibition, but at the end of the case Judge Comyn asked the Revenue counsel whether he argued that it was not a show, and he replied that he did not argue it very strenuously.

There was, said Mr. Kelly, evidence before the Circuit Judge that this was an exhibition or show of racehorses.

Mr. Justice Hanna said that Fairyhouse races was a race meeting, and that that was an accepted term.

Mr. Kelly—Your lordships will have to have evidence of what a race meeting is. You may have a race meeting at Ascot formed for the purpose of giving society people an opportunity of displaying themselves, and you may have a race meeting round the Claddagh in Galway which is formed for the purpose of providing the local inhabitants with amusement.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne—You would not say that about Galway races. (Laughter.)

Mr. Kelly said that at any rate the question whether this was a show or exhibition was still open, and the real question before the Court was whether this was a society or institution established for the purpose of promoting horse-breeding. One of the witnesses had stated in evidence that it was an exhibition of racehorses. A good deal turned on documents in the case, because Judge Comyn in deciding that this was not an agricultural society within the meaning of the Act, accepted oral evidence given by witnesses, which was not contradicted by the other side, and then said that he must rely on the documents. He accepted the oral evidence and disregarded it, and a question for the Court was as to what extent the Circuit Judge was entitled to do that. The Judge's finding was that the society was established for the purposes of recreation and sport for gentlemen of means, but there was no evidence before the Judge that it was established for sport. The whole evidence before him was that it was established about 1889 for the purpose of the promotion of horse-breeding. One of the witnesses had stated that he was not interested in horse racing, but in horse-breeding alone.

USES OF RACING

Some race meetings were, said Mr. Kelly, run for the purpose of paying dividends to company shareholders, others to provide recreation for the countryside, and more for the purpose of promoting the interest of horse-breeding. There was ample evidence that unless there was horse racing there would be no means of testing horses and no means of selling them. He submitted that this was established by reports of a commission set up by the Government.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne asked how could this be evidence.

Mr. Kelly said that the evidence taken at the commission and the report made by the members was published by the Stationery Office of the Government, and it showed that horse racing of the kind carried on at Fairyhouse was beneficial to horse-breeding. It had been held in England that a show of foxhounds was beneficial for the purpose of improving foxhounds.

Mr. Justice Hanna said that an exhibition of foxhounds was a different thing from a race meeting. Foxhounds were not judged by the running of foxes.

Mr. Kelly said that that was so, but the only way to judge horses was to make them race. He read the evidence given before the Circuit Judge by Captain Martin, Secretary to the Stewards of the Ward Union Hunt Races, in the course of which Captain Martin said that the only way of disposing of the class of horses run at Fairyhouse was by testing them at the race meetings which were attended by people from England as well as by people from over all Ireland interested in steeplechasers and hunters. The income was devoted to improving the meeting, so as to make it the best possible medium for showing racehorses and hunters. The income was devoted to improving the accommodation or increasing the stakes.

Mr. Justice Hanna said that there were no rules, and nothing to show what were the ideals of the three men who leased the lands for the purpose of the first race meeting. It did not appear anywhere that the races were being carried on for the purpose of benefiting horse-breeding. Did they ever, he asked, give a prize for the best thoroughbred stallion or suitable mare?

Mr. Kelly said that he could not say that they had done that.

Mr. Justice Hanna, observing that English horses could win at Fairyhouse if they were good enough, asked could that be said to be benefiting breeding in Ireland.

IRISH HORSES

Mr. Kelly said that horses bred in Ireland and sold to English buyers might come across and win at Fairyhouse, but he did not think that an English horse ever won the Irish Grand National at Fairyhouse.

Mr. Justice Hanna said that something might be said for the appellants if they gave premiums for brood mares.

Mr. Kelly said that a race for £50 for a horse that never won a race could not be said to be of any benefit to the live stock breeding industry, and that was not the class of race which was run at Fairyhouse, where the races provided the best test of the class of horse to benefit horse-breeders.

Mr. Justice Hanna said that that market was limited to the people who had the money to buy the horses.

Mr. Kelly said that to get the buyer they had to attract the many.

The hearing had not concluded when the Court rose, and the further hearing was adjourned.

INQUEST ON DUBLIN WOMAN

Dr. D. A. MacErlean, City Coroner, held an inquest in the Mater Misericordiæ Hospital yesterday on the body of Mrs. Annie Farrell (62), of 4 Gloucester place, who was brought to the hospital after she had fallen on the footway outside in Gloucester place on July last.

Dr. O'Dolan, house surgeon, the Mater Misericordiæ Hospital, gave evidence that in his opinion the cause of death was cardiac failure following acute bronchitis, accelerated by a fracture of the femur.

Mrs. M. Brown, Gloucester street, stated that she was standing in the hallway of her house on July 29, and saw the deceased woman fall on the footway.

The Coroner, in returning a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence, remarked that it would appear that the stonework outside the house where the woman fell was defective.

The Rev. William Hopkins : Music on the Roads : The B.B.C.'s Charity Appeals : Nicolette MacNamara : Bracken for Bedding

A Much-Travelled Padre

I am interested to see that an old friend in the person of the Reverend William Hopkins has been appointed British Chaplain at Zurich, in Switzerland.

Mr. Hopkins already has had an interesting career. Although he was very young at the time, he served towards the end of the War in the Royal Navy, being one of those selected specially by virtue of their sensitive ears to act as listeners in certain submarine experiments in sound.

Afterwards he became organist of the Chapel Royal—the last to hold that honoured post—and during his incumbency he resurrected the ancient title of "Master of the King's Musick in Ireland," acting in this official capacity during the visit of King George V. to Belfast in 1921. Mr. Hopkins also was assistant organist in St. Patrick's Cathedral. He was Auditor of the College Historical Society, and his year of office was noted for almost revolutionary changes in the conduct of that august body.

When he was ordained he went to the Channel Islands, where he remained for some years, going subsequently to the Barbadoes, where he acted as Professor of Theology in Codrington College. He is an extremely fine musician, an authority on certain forms of Church music, particularly plainsong, and is recognised as such even by the Benedictines of Solesmes and Farnborough, who specialise in this art.

Mr. Hopkins is the only son of Mr. David Hopkins, one of the most highly esteemed citizens of Dublin.

Movable Music

Walking along a suburban road the other day I became conscious that there was music in the air—soft, full-toned orchestral music, the source of which I became curious to discover. There were no buildings on either side of the road, which was almost deserted, and I found myself mystified until I noticed a cyclist, who was balancing on the crossbar of his machine a portable wireless set.

By way of contrast to that modern version of a wandering minstrel, I noticed one of the authentic sort not long afterwards in a 'bus. The vehicle was pursuing its wonted way when, from the back, came the strains of a fiddle playing a brisk jig. Looking round I saw that the player was a man, with the absorbed and complacent expression of the musician on his face. His effort did not go unappreciated, for a woman who was leaving the 'bus beamed kindly on him and presented him with a penny. "Here ye are, me wandherin' minsthrel," said she. "I'd rather be listenin' to that than the best wireless set goin'."

Wicklow Rabbits

Dublin housewives who had begun to wonder just how much longer the supply of "Wicklow Rabbits" displayed in city shop windows might last can be quite easy in their minds. As far as the source of supply is concerned, there is not the slightest sign of a scarcity.

Anyone who walks a mountain road in Wicklow just now, or climbs the grassy hillside near by, can testify to this fact, and will agree with the distracted smallholder who described his pasture as being "tee-totally grey wid rabbits."

It seems that, although the demand for "Wicklow Rabbits" by city retailers is quite satisfactory at present, and the prices offered are better than they were some time ago, yet the careful grading of the animals by those retailers, or by their representative, is often a disappointing affair for the supplier. One local hunter with ferrets and nets told a visitor that sometimes a dozen rabbits will be rejected out of a comparatively small consignment. "There couldn't be more choosin' an' choicin' an' graduatin' if they were hen eggs," he said.

Northern Boroughs

The restoration to Newtownards of its ancient status of a Borough, after a lapse of almost a century, constitutes the third Borough created in the North since the present Government was established. The other two are Bangor and Coleraine, both of which were raised from Urban Districts to Boroughs, with the dignity of a Mayor.

The original charter of Newtownards was conferred upon the town by King James in 1613, and for a long period the town had the distinction of returning two members to the Irish Parliament. There were only two Boroughs in the North when the Northern Parliament was established, the County Borough of Belfast and the Borough of Londonderry.

It is understood that Ballymena is anxious to be incorporated as a Borough, and, indeed, several towns in the North with populations ranging from 10,000 to 15,000 may in the near future apply for incorporation, including Lurgan.

Newry has also ancient claims for consideration, apart from its population; and Portadown and Larne are progressive towns which will not long remain content with classification as an urban area when their neighbours are decked in the fine feathers and all the pomp of Boroughs. Larne, I see, has elected Captain A. Ferris, a progressive spirit, who almost won the Larne Division from the official Unionist Party at the recent by-election, as its chairman, and if there are any more civic honours going he will not be slow in demanding one for his native town.

A Painter of Birds

Nicolette MacNamara, who is a bird-lover as well as a painter, is better known in London, despite her Irish name and heritage, than she is in her own country.

She is the daughter of Francis MacNamara, and is married to Anthony Devas, a well-known London artist.

This week she is holding her first exhibition of paintings at the Storran Gallery in Piccadilly, and many of her bird studies will be on view. Miss MacNamara goes out into all kinds of haunts in her search after bird life. She has gone to Gannet Islands, off South Wales, to paint their bird inhabitants in their nests. I believe that she is coming this spring to the Saltees and to Lambay, another shelter where beautiful specimens abound.

Broadcasting and Charities

I am told that the B.B.C. has a special committee to deal with the applications for broadcasting charity appeals, and that there is a waiting list of over 500 "good causes"!

This is not to be wondered at, considering that more than £200,000 was raised last year, which was a record one.

Appeals are broadcast from five B.B.C. stations every Sunday night just before the news. They last for only five minutes each, so, assuming that every person making the appeal speaks about 150 words a minute, every word spoken is worth approximately £1 5s. to some deserving charity.

Christopher Stone is said to be the most popular broadcaster of these appeals—his recent ones having brought in over £80,000!

Bracken for Bedding

On most of the small farms in the Wicklow Glens a well-made rick of dry bracken stands brown and squat beside its more select neighbour, the rick of hay. Carefully packed and thatched with the familiar rushes, these mounds of winter bedding are a real credit to their owners, one of whom told a visitor the other day: "You'd want two hands on your body to make that rick right."

The same visitor to that lovely valley was surprised to hear that long years ago the bracken on those hills was so scarce—"it only grew in sthripes," he said—that it was measured out to each smallholder, and it was a serious offence to take more than one's share.

At the present time the bracken—or ferr-in, as it is called locally—has spread at such a rate that people can cut it pretty well where they please; for, no matter how many loaded carts draw it home, it makes no difference whatever to the russet cloak of the mountains.

FILM NOTES

MAKING THE PUBLIC LAUGH

Ziegfeld's Famous Comedians

America Honours Eddie Cantor : Capra's "Lost Horizon" : Films Retained.

By A. E. M.

It was said of Florenz Ziegfeld that he had no real regard for comedy, but he is remembered nowadays through the comedians he introduced to the stage, more than by his elaborate stage-settings and his beautiful girls. At least three of his comedians have been famous on the screen—the late Will Rogers, Eddie Cantor, and W. C. Fields; and those who saw the film "The Great Ziegfeld" will remember how he tried in his closing period to induce Rogers and Cantor to return to the stage.

The late Will Rogers was probably the most popular entertainer in the world at the time of his death, and no one can ever achieve the peculiar place he held in the regard of the public. Eddie Cantor has also achieved a considerable popularity for his work on the stage no less than on the screen, and in his case also a distinctive personality has been very carefully exploited. If Eddie Cantor can never take the liberties that were the especial privilege of Will Rogers, it would seem, nevertheless, that he now occupies the place in popular esteem held for so long by the gum-chewing satirist.

A Cantor Week

This week all America will offer tribute to the man who began his career as a waiter in a Coney Island beer garden. Between October 24th and 30th all parts of the United States will have special celebrations "in recognition of twenty-five years of public service." The week will culminate in a great testimonial dinner in Hollywood, which will be attended by prominent people from all walks of life in America. On the committee which is organising this anniversary week are such important people as Joseph Schenck, of 20th Century-Fox, who is its chairman; the Postmaster-General of the United States, James A. Farley; Governor Frank F. Merriam, Will Hays, Louis B. Mayer and Paul Muni.

In this country Eddie Cantor is known only on the screen through a series of elaborate spectacular musical shows in the true Ziegfeld tradition, of which the most popular was probably one of his earliest, "Whoopee." Cantor Week will also mark the completion of the comedian's latest film, "Ali Baba Goes to Town," which it is proposed to show to a selected audience in Hollywood towards the end of the week. Among those who are to honour Eddie Cantor by their presence at the Testimonial Dinner on Thursday next are: the Governor of California, ex-President Herbert Hoover, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, General Pershing, Admiral Bird, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Cardinal Hayes, Bishop Manning, Rabbi Stephen Wise, Dr. Albert Einstein, Walt Disney and the Mayor of New York.

The Singing Waiter

Eddie Cantor was discovered in 1912 by Gus Edwards singing in a Coney Island beer garden. To-day hundreds of notabilities in all parts of the United States are willing to testify to his great qualities. "In planning this testimonial," says the committee in charge of the function, "we are motivated not only by Eddie Cantor's success in the amusement world for the past quarter of a century, but also by his humanitarian service to both his profession and the public during this long period." In support of his humanitarian sympathy a story is told of a pact which Cantor made with W. C. Fields in 1917. On that occasion Cantor, Fields and Will Rogers met one night at dinner, and made a pact that whatever might befall them in the years to come any one of the three would come to the financial aid of the others if the need arose. The pact was made on the eve of their first appearance with Ziegfeld, which brought all three fame and fortune.

At that first meeting the three agreed that they would meet every five years for renewal of the pact. So they met in 1922, in 1927 and in 1932; this year only Fields and Cantor will meet. In the place of the absent Will Rogers at the Testimonial Dinner Eddie Cantor will have the good wishes of millions of people in all parts of the world.

A Film Repertory

The idea of a repertory system is attracting a good deal of attention in several large cities at present, and in London alone there are several in active operation. It is one of the advantages of the cinema that it can offer its actors a better chance of immortality for their art than can the stage; for when a performance has been photographed it need never be lost. Through the instrumentality of the Film Library in New York and the British Film Institute films can be procured for repertory use, and older films can be revived as occasion demands. The Irish Film Society, by presenting that unique film, "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari," again has done some of the work of a repertory cinema, and it is the intention to revive other famous films during the season. The Society will also offer many new films which normally would never be presented in this country.

"Lost Horizon"

The novel by which James Hilton achieved fame three years ago has been made into a magnificent film by Frank Capra. "Lost Horizon" is an exciting tale of a modern Utopia hidden in the mountains beyond Tibet, and a group of Europeans who inadvertently find their way into its secrets. It is a film unlike anything that has been done before in the cinema; a tremendous effort to combine a naive and simple philosophy with thrilling melodrama. The story relates how Robert Conway, an English diplomatist-idealist, is forced to leave the rebellious town of Baskul in the last aeroplane to set out for Shanghai. Kidnapped by his Tibetan pilot he is landed in the mountains hundreds of miles from the world he knows. In due time he reaches the community called Shangri-La, which is ruled by a Belgian priest reputed to be 300 years old. Of what befell Robert Conway and his companions in that haven of peace the film relates in splendid detail, but the more spectacular parts relate to the journeyings in the snow-capped mountains. With Ronald Colman, H. B. Warner, Edward E. Horton, Jane Wyatt, John Howard, and Sam Jaffe, the acting is all that could be desired. The photography is especially noteworthy, especially so being the sequence in which a convoy is destroyed by an avalanche. Shangri-La itself is rendered most attractively by the camera, and the contrast between the hospitality of the community and the savagery of the mountains is acutely drawn. "Lost Horizon" is one of the films which have to be seen.

Popular Films

In three Dublin films the programmes have been marked by such popular approval that they remain unchanged. At the Astor Cinema "The Road Back" enters upon the fourth week of its run, with every indication of success. In the most human terms this film presents the disillusionment of the soldiers who returned to Germany only to discover that the world they had known no longer existed. The interlude between the Treaty of Versailles and the coming of Hitler is fully explained in terms of ordinary humanity.

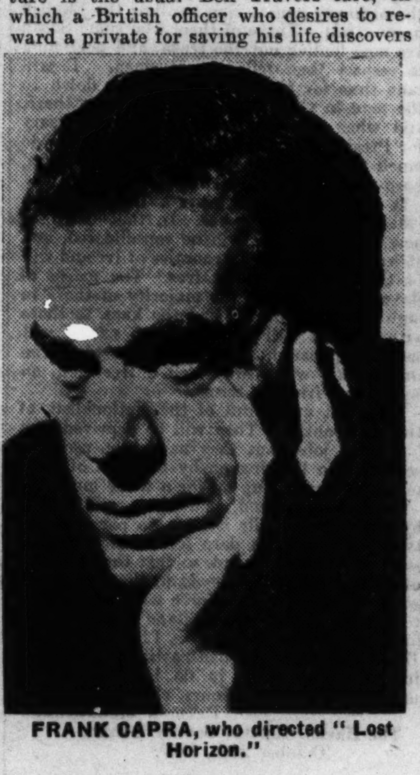

At the Stephen's Green Cinema Ireland's little war is the subject of another popular film in "Beloved Enemy." Having as its background the Dublin of 1918-21, the story is concerned with the efforts of an English peer to negotiate peace, and who finds that his daughter had fallen in love with the leader of the "rebels." Despite some false notes the film is a good recapitulation of nearly-forgotten events.

At the Capitol Theatre Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy have been most attractive to audiences in "Maytime," which also remains for another week. "Maytime" is a most entertaining musical film, with songs by Sigmund Romberg and Herbert Stothart.

Striking Oil

In "High, Wide and Handsome," which is the feature at the Savoy Cinema this week, the romantic side of the search for oil provides an interesting film. It is really a musical romance, with the oil business as a background. The story is placed in Pennsylvania in 1859, with Randolph Scott as a determined seeker after oil. The incidental songs by Jerome Kern, sung by Irene Dunne, add greatly to the enjoyment of a film which is thoroughly entertaining.

At the Grafton Picture House the inimitable Tom Walls and Ralph Lynn are together again in another Ben Travers story entitled: "For Valour." The mixture is the usual Ben Travers fare, in which a British officer who desires to reward a private for saving his life discovers complications which amaze him. What matters in a Walls-Lynn film is not the story, but the antics of the pair of excellent comedians. In this film they are their familiar selves, although in many different guises and disguises.

At the Theatre De Luxe, for the first four days, Rochelle Hudson may be seen in "That I May Live," and Jane Withers in "The Holy Terror." From Thursday the films will be "Criminals of the Air," with Rosalind Keith, and Jack Holt in "Trouble in Morocco."

Kay Francis

The Theatre Royal presents a drama of love and finance, in which recent events play an important part. "Stolen Holiday" gives Kay Francis scope for the display of her dramatic talent, and she is capably supported by a brilliant cast, which includes Claude Rains, Ian Hunter, Alison Skipworth and Betty Lawford. "Stolen Holiday" is exciting from beginning to end, and excellent entertainment.

It might not be imagined from the title that politics have a part to play in "Let's Get Married," which is at the Corinthian Cinema, but politics may also have their funny side. In this film the fun is good. The supporting film is "Killer at Large," a thrilling exposition of how a mad waxworker uses a strange art.

At the Grand Central Cinema William Powell, Jean Harlow and Myrna Loy may be seen in that delightful extravaganza, "Libelled Lady." In this film savage satire is finely blended with humour, and there is very good acting by the leading players.

CARE OF THE BLIND

DANCE IN AID OF RICHMOND INSTITUTE

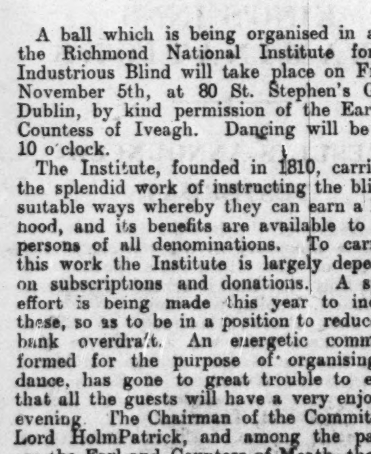

A ball which is being organised in aid of the Richmond National Institute for the Industrious Blind will take place on Friday, November 5th, at 80 St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, by kind permission of the Earl and Countess of Iveagh. Dancing will be from 10 o'clock.

The Institute, founded in 1810, carries on the splendid work of instructing the blind in suitable ways whereby they can earn a livelihood, and its benefits are available to blind persons of all denominations. To carry on this work the Institute is largely dependent on subscriptions and donations. A special effort is being made this year to increase these, so as to be in a position to reduce the bank overdraft. An energetic committee, formed for the purpose of organising the dance, has gone to great trouble to ensure that all the guests will have a very enjoyable evening. The Chairman of the Committee is Lord HolmPatrick, and among the patrons are the Earl and Countess of Meath, the Earl and Countess of Fingall, the Earl and Countess of Granard, the Earl and Countess of Iveagh, and Viscount and Viscountess Powerscourt.

Tickets are obtainable at the Institute's office, 41 Upper O'Connell street. It is hoped that as many persons as possible will attend the dance, and help the Institute to carry on the excellent work of caring for the blind.

ART OF MR. FRANK McKELVEY

THE CHARM OF LANDSCAPE

In many respects Mr. Frank McKelvey, R.H.A., is one of our most admired and successful painters, but one has had to be content with the odd pictures he has hung in different exhibitions. However, in the exhibition of his works, which opens in the Victor Waddington Galleries, South Anne street, Dublin, to-day, his admirers, and those of the public in general who like good painting, will have ample opportunity to feast on Mr. McKelvey's art. In its varying aspects it is here splendidly shown in the three dozen oil paintings which grace the walls.

The subjects—except for about half a dozen—are taken from beauty spots in his native County Donegal, and have about them that charm and appeal so distinctive of his style. There is no wild riot of colours flashing out to hit the eye aggressively; in fact, at first glance there is a suggestion almost of pervading mist, but on looking into the paintings one is captured by the subtle treatment of colours, with their blue and their dim and dark lights which one remembers as so typical of Donegal days. There is, as a splendid example, a fine painting of Muckish Mountain, standing out mistily against broken clouds, with a wonderful play of light on the undulating foreground. The artist has also caught Errigal in one of its familiar moods — a rugged, old sentinel dominating the countryside. It is Errigal, as one has often seen, it. The play of colour in the mid-distance and the foreground is handled with masterly appreciation of tonal effects.

In different mood is the treatment of a "Fair Day, County Donegal." Here the painter has caught a typical fair scene, and is very happy in its reproduction on canvas. It is wonderfully natural and easy, down to the most minute detail, but avoids any suggestion of photography. One likes, too, his studies of coastal scenes—they are so beautifully restful. What, for instance, could be happier than the painting of the "Beach at Falcarragh," with its glorious stretch of golden sand, easy roll of the surf, and soft sand dunes in the distance. The study of Glen Bay, Donegal, in rain, is also delightful, with its masterly treatment of half-lights, which add but to the scene, making it "A soft day, thank God."

Mr. McKelvey has also found delightful subjects for his work in scenes on the Lagan, County Antrim. The canvas marked No. 29 is a glorious study, and one which shows the artist's perfection of technique. The river, with its soft bend; the grouping of trees, the soft, floating clouds—all are combined to form a picture of nature's loveliness. A delightful pair are the "Lake at Hillsborough, County Down," and "Culeavey Lake," County Down."

It was not surprising to find quite a number of the pictures being snapped up within a few minutes of the private viewing yesterday afternoon.

The exhibition will be open daily from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. until November 4.

WEDDING

CAPTAIN F. J. SLATER AND MISS M. CAVANAGH

The wedding took place yesterday at the Curragh Church, County Kildare, of Captain Frederick J. Slater, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Slater, of Belleek, County Fermanagh, and Miss Mona Cavanagh, daughter of the late Mr. Edward and Mrs. Cavanagh, of Kilkee, County Clare.

The Service was conducted by the Rev. J. Carey, Army Chaplain.

The bride, who was given away by her uncle, Mr. Michael Cavanagh, wore a gown of silk brocade with a graceful train, and a silk tulle veil heavily embroidered, which was held in place by a wreath of orange blossom. She carried a bouquet of lilies and carnations.

The three bridesmaids—the Misses Ella, Moira and Beatrice MacCaura (cousins of the bride)—wore gowns of petunia taffeta, and carried bouquets of pink carnations. The small trainbearer was Miss Fay Francis (niece of the bride).

Lieutenant W. Donagh acted as best man, and the groomsmen in the church were Lieutenant J. Murray and Lieutenant J. H. Byrne.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the Leinster Arms Hotel, Athy, and later Captain and Mrs. Slater left for the Continent. The bride wore an ensemble in the new "London tan" shade.

The King, it was officially announced last night, will visit the Duchy of Cornwall Estates in Cornwall, Devon and Somerset during December. No details of His Majesty's itinerary have been decided.

FISH INDUSTRY IN PERIL

GOVERNMENT HELP WANTED

TRAWLERS IDLE IN DUBLIN BAY

THE proposal that the Government should provide thirty fishing trawlers and gear to enable Irishmen to supply the home market with fish was made at a meeting of the Dublin County Council yesterday afternoon, Mr. P. Belton (Chairman) presiding.

Mr. Thomas Cosgrave moved a resolution drawing the attention of the Department of Fisheries to the landing of fish by foreign trawlers at Howth, which deprived the Howth fishermen of their livelihood, and requesting the Government to impose a prohibitive tariff on all fish landed by foreign trawlers or imported.

Mr. Cosgrave said that fish from foreign trawlers was not allowed into England except under a quota, while there was no tariff on imported fish here. Three trawlers in the port of Dublin were idle. The Government should be asked to provide at least thirty trawlers and gear for the Free State to enable Irishmen to catch fish to supply the home markets.

TARIFF OPPOSED

Mr. T. Mullins said that the Government should be asked to put the fisheries on a sound paying basis. He did not agree with the suggestion that there should be a prohibitive tariff. The party to which Mr. Cosgrave was attached had been opposing tariffs even in the case of those industries which supplied the home market. They could not supply even a small proportion of their needs in fish, and if a tariff were imposed there would be an increase in the price of fish. That was not the way to deal with the position, for they could not have tariffs on fish until they had a steady supply for their own market. He agreed that the fisheries of the country were in a bad way.

Mr. P. J. Fogarty, T.D., said that the motion should deal with the whole of the Free State and not merely with Howth. If the present difficulties were investigated by the Department the matter could be rectified. If the fishing industry was looked after properly they could supply the whole country.

Mr. Mullins—Then it would be time enough to impose a tariff.

The Chairman's suggestion that the Department be asked for an explanation as to why the fishing industry in Dublin was declining, while public institutions could not get adequate supplies of fish, was agreed to.

BUSINESS MEN SHOULD SING

DUBLIN TEACHER'S ADVICE

REPLY TO THROAT SPECIALIST

"THE world needs music and songs to make it happy and to make it less monotonous, less vulgar and less materialistic," said Maestro Cavaliere A. G. Viani, Senior Professor of Singing, R.I.A.M., speaking at yesterday's luncheon of the Dublin Rotary Club on "All Who Can Should Sing."

Maestro Viani said that he was sorry that he had not been in Dublin when the Irish Times of July 24, 1937, published, under the heading, "Nobody Should Sing," an account of the lecture delivered by Sir Milson Rees, famous throat specialist, before the British Medical Association in Belfast.

Replying to Sir Milson, he said that it was well known that one did not become more tired speaking than one did singing with a well-placed voice. Singers of fame could sing all through an opera and still feel fresh, or at least show only that amount of tiredness that any other employment of energy, like walking, speaking or thinking, would produce.

Singing was the most direct expression of the intimate feelings of the human being; it was one of the most precious means of spiritually educating the people; it was the healthiest exercise of all the organs connected with respiration. Every healthy voice should be able to produce pleasing sounds.

"ALL ONE SONG"

After making the remark quoted, he said that we should not deprive mankind of ennobling gifts. "Let the world be all one song—a song to fill the soul with purifying fire, as the sun floods the world with its light . . Man always sang, and will sing for ever. Singing is to him both a necessity and a joy."

Mr. Walter Douglas proposed and Mr. R. J. Keatinge seconded a vote of thanks.

Supporting, Mr. Ireton Jones expressed regret that Professor Viani had not referred to crooning, which, he said, was "spoiling our lives and encroaching on our happiness." He likened this "diabolic method of singing" to the noise made by turkey-cocks.

Mr. T. A. Grehan presided.

INSURANCE INSTITUTE OF IRELAND

PRESIDENT ON MARKS FOR IRISH

In his presidential address at the opening meeting of the Insurance Institute of Ireland, which was held in the Central Hotel, Dublin, yesterday Mr. R. W. Jameson said that the past session had been a highly successful one, though membership of the Institute was still falling off; it had dropped from 436 in 1933 to 415 in 1936.

After expressing the wish that membership should be made compulsory, Mr. Jameson recorded the Institute's deep regret at the death of Mr. William Montgomery.

On the subject of examinations, he urged on the younger members the necessity for study if they hoped to equip themselves suitably for filling eventually the higher and better paid posts that the profession offered. It must be admitted that there should be some form of differentiation between those who had and those who had not taken the examinations, and it would not be too much to ask the branch managers to see to it that additional remuneration should follow success.

It had been pointed out that the Free State candidates were at a distinct disadvantage in comparison with their English and Northern Ireland competitors. That arose from the fact that in the Free State the Irish language was a compulsory subject; consequently, the Irish boy must devote the amount of time to the Irish language which his English or Northern Ireland colleague devoted to either French, Latin or German. These latter languages formed a subject in the preliminary examinations, so was it not only fair and equitable that the examining body should agree that Irish should be included as a subject?

After all, said the President, there is definite ground for anticipating that in the near future a knowledge of Irish may be very essential in our profession. In fact, it is virtually necessary now, as Garda reports from certain districts are received solely in Irish.

A vote of thanks to the President was proposed by Mr. A. E. O'Callaghan, seconded by Mr. J. W. Gallagher, and passed with acclamation.

THE LATE CAPTAIN GERALD CHAYTOR

MEMORIAL SERVICE AT DUNSHAUGHLIN CHURCH

A Memorial Service for the late Captain Gerald Chaytor, 14th-20th Hussars, was held in Dunshaughlin Church on Sunday last, when a bronze was unveiled to his memory and the memory of his father, Mr. Joshua D. Chaytor, by Mrs. Chaytor.

The Service was taken by the Rector, the Rev. Hamlet McClenaghan. The bronze was dedicated by the Bishop of Ossory, in the absence, through illness, of the Bishop of Meath. A moving address was given by the Bishop, who was an old friend of Mr. J. D. Chaytor. The music was in the efficient hands of Dr. Weaving, organist of Christ Church Cathedral, Dublin, supported by boy choristers of the Cathedral, the rendering of "O, Rest in the Lord" being especially beautiful. The church was filled by a congregation representative of all the County Meath and County Dublin, and among those present were Captain Chaytor's colonel and other officers from England. The overflowing congregation (many only finding standing room around the door) testified to the popularity of Mr. Chaytor and his son. A sheaf of palm and flowers and a wreath of laurel were laid by relatives beneath the bronze.

THE DRAMA AS HISTORY

"The Drama as History" was the subject of a lecture which Mr. David Sears delivered before the Presbyterian Association at 16 St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, last night.

Mr. Sears asserted that the real significance of history was lost to the student because the historian wrote from the point of view of the man who was wise after the event, whereas, when the dramatist dealt with history he was interested in the individuals rather than in the events, and so he presented their problems as the people in the play saw them, rather than as they were seen in the light of centuries of experience afterwards. The dramatist could make real events of history in a way that no historian could.

Mr. E. K. Eason presided.

Fraulein Hanna Reitsch, the only woman to hold the title of Air Captain in Germany, claims to have set up a new record for a long-distance flight by autogiro by flying from Stendal to Berlin—108 kilometres (67 miles)—without landing on the way.

CLIFF COLLAPSES AT KILKEE

FAMOUS LANDMARK DISAPPEARS

KILKEE, Monday.

With a thundering boom which was heard all over the town the famous cliff known as the "Cathedral Window" crashed into the sea here to day and caused the road adjoining to crack for a length of 35 feet.

When the cliff felt the sea wall leaned out over the sea, and is in great danger of collapsing, bringing portion of the road with it.

The place where the cliff fell adjoins the road leading to the popular bathing places, such as "Pollock Holes" and "New Found Out," and also to the golf course and several places of interest in the vicinity.

About nine months ago a landslide took place across the bay, when many tons of rocks fell into the sea, and it is only three weeks since portion of this rock collapsed, layer after layer of rocks falling a distance of about sixty feet into the sea below.

This morning nothing remained of the famous cliff, which appeared in views of Kilkee, and which was much admired by visitors.

The cliffs at this point are undermined by many caves, some running under portion of the road.

Mr. Munraven, C.E., stated this evening that about 2,000 tons of rock had fallen, and it would take from £7,500 to £9,000 to repair the damage, which includes the re-building of portion of the sea wall and making the road safe for traffic.

NEGRO'S APPEAL FAILS

JUDGE BLACK NOT ADJUDICATING

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Monday.

The United States Supreme Court to day rejected the appeal of Heywood Paterson, one of the Scottsboro negroes, against the 75 years' prison sentence imposed on him by the Alamba Court.

The Court announced that Judge Black, who was recently appointed to the Court, had not participated in the consideration of this case. This precludes the possibility of a challenge to Judge Black's position as a former member of the Ku Klux Klan.

MEMORIAL PULPIT DEDICATED

At Morning Prayer on Sunday last in Kilglass Church, County Sligo, the Right Rev. W. H. Holmes, D.D., LL.D., Bishop of Tuam, Killala and Achonry, dedicated a new oak pulpit, the gift of Mrs. Kelliher and Miss Gawley (Enniscrone). On a brass plate is the following inscription: "To the Glory of God, and in memory of Adam and Catherine Gawley. Presented by their daughters, 1937."

The Bishop also dedicated linen for the holy table, which was presented by the Misses Beatty (Enniscrone), and Hymn Books and Prayer Books (for the use of visitors), presented by Mr. McCormick (Castlecomer, Co. Kilkenny).

NORTH DUBLIN FRUIT GARDENS

"THE TALK OF THE COUNTRY"

APPLE-GROWING IN O'CONNELL STREET

INEVITABLY the Lord Mayor's speech of some months ago, defending small boys who rob orchards and fruit gardens, was recalled last night, when he attended the prize distribution of the North Dublin Horticultural Society in Wynne's Hotel.

Mr. H. J. McDonagh, Vice-President, described that speech of the Lord Mayor's as an excellent piece of publicity for the Society's show at which it was made; but Alderman Byrne refused to be drawn, and his only reference to orchard robbing was that he had been encouraged to make his statement by the members at the exhibition.

INCREASING SUCCESS

Mr. T. Shaw, F.R.H.S., President, said that the Society had a record of increasing success year after year. Its position now was recognised by all the leading horticulturalists in the country. He paid a tribute to those who had remained loyal to the Society since 1928, and spoke of the valuable help of Mrs. O'Dowd and the other members of the Ladies' Committee. He also thanked the authorities of St. Patrick's Training College for providing accommodation for their annual show.

He proposed a vote of thanks to their various friends and helpers.

Mr. McDonagh, who seconded, referred to the amount of trouble there had been in this world through the first unauthorised raid on a fruit tree. The Lord Mayor, by his defence of the orchard raiders, had aroused the country. He threw in the apple of discord, made the people set aside their politics and their other differences and re-divide into two camps—for and against the "boxing of the fox." The newspapers had thrown open their correspondence columns, and the leader-writers had entered the fray. Even the staid judicial bench had been shaken in its foundations.

If the Lord Mayor wanted another subject by which publicity should be attracted to that society, he suggested the proposition that the plain trees in O'Connell street were unornamental, and should be replaced by apple, cherry, pear and plum, which would solve a part of the problem of unemployment and add to the city's revenue when the fruit was sold.

Mr. M. P. Rowan, hon. secretary of the Irish Gardeners' Society, said that the organisation had been founded by Mr. Shaw so long ago as fifty years. The gardens of Dublin now were the talk of the country.

The Lord Mayor congratulated the Society on its work, and was presented by Mrs Fleetwood Deighan with a bouquet of roses.

GAIETY THEATRE

TURNER LAYTON'S ARTISTRY

Three items in an otherwise moderately good show make a visit to the Gaiety Theatre this week well worth while. Turner Layton is well-known in Dublin already, and his polish as a vocalist and style at the piano need no commendation. He sings all the topical songs, and some new ones, notably "Caroline," a pretty, melodious number, which he handles with exquisite artistry.

Max Hoffman provides another splendid turn—full of originality—in which he combines a remarkable ability to sing little verses around a word suggested by a member of the audience, with delightfully witty repartee, and stories that have the advantage of being new and well told. Mr. Hoffman is an individual whose accomplishments are not often met with in variety in Dublin.

Another remarkable entertainer is Joe Adami, appropriately and almost accurately described as a "human billiard table." The things that he can do with three bilbard balls rolling about on his back are quite as smart as his trick of having a glass bowl of imitation goldfish dropped from a height of some five or six feet over his head and catching it neatly on the back of his neck without spilling more than a couple of drops of water.

Joy and Savina are a dancing pair, but with such a spate of tap-dancing as we have been having on the films it now begins to pall. The Rhythm Rangers play popular tunes on saxophone and accordion, with some more tapping, and Jack Warman puts in some comedy touches—and some of the touches are not as delicate as they might be. Mollie, Marie and Mary, the rhythm sisters who featured with Henry Hall's dance band, supply new and old favourites at the microphone; and the Three Van Tangles do a knock-about turn in which there is not much apparent merit. A very pleasing programme of music is given by the Gaiety Orchestra, conducted by Ernest Broadhurst.

THEATRE ROYAL

CLEVER ANIMAL ACT

This would appear almost to be "Scottish Week" at the Dublin Theatre Royal, for not alone do they present Neil McKay, the well-known Scotch comedian, but also Duncan's Scotch Collies in a very clever series of animal acts. McKay is not alone a clean humorist of the first order, but he dances—both rapid "tap" and adagio style—and performs gymnastics with equal ease. The animal act by the Scotch collies must be among the best ever seen in Dublin. They do "leap-frog," skipping, balancing tricks, drive a motor car, "use" the telephone, pray over a friend who has been killed in an accident, and, altogether, go through the most amazingly clever performances. The act must have required years of work and patience, and, obviously, by the attitude of the dogs to their trainers, has been accomplished only through kindness and persuasion.

Sammy Artis and Jill Frances have an attractive act, called "Just Modern," a pleasant kind of cabaret turn, which includes crooning, tap dancing, and a little in the ballet style. Jill, of course, does the dancing, and Sammy distinguishes himself as an expert in the use of the banjo. Les 4 Tressillians complete the guest part of the programme with some clever balancing feats on a bicycle and "high perch." Alban Chambers at the organ plays a number of popular tunes under the heading "Autumn Reverie," and Jimmy Campbell and his orchestra give their weekly entertainment of music.

The film, which is shown also, is "Stolen Holiday," with Kay Francis and Claude Rains.

ABBEY THEATRE

"THE INVINCIBLES"

"The Invincibles," Mr. Hugh Hunt's production of the play about the Phœnix Park murders, written by himself and Mr. Frank O'Connor, started on its second week at the Abbey Theatre last night.

The play has already aroused a good deal of comment; no doubt it will arouse a good deal more. Fred Johnson, as James Carey, and W. O'Gorman (Joe Brady) are the two outstanding characters in the production. Cyril Cusack does well in the part of Tim Kelly. Since one of the authors is also the producer, it is natural that the play has been written in such a manner as to be good in production.

OLYMPIA THEATRE

AMUSING SKETCHES

The revue at the Olympia this week, which is entitled "Round About Big Ben," contains some very amusing sketches; the artist responsible for most of the humour being Dave Morris. As a politician, a broadcasting announcer, a sailor, and a soldier, his wisecracks and antics keep the audience in laughter. He is particularly funny in the scene in the trenches.

Victor Carlton displays fine technique as a violinist. He appears with Olive Carlton in song scenes, which were well received. Other items in an excellent programme are the acrobatic display by the Sidi Ben Ali Troupe of Arabs, the tap dancing of the Lynton Twins, and the selections on the accordion by Roy Lorena.

He was sentenced to three months' imprisonment, not to take effect if he entered a bond of £50 himself and two sureties of £25 each to be of good behaviour for three years.

The letter invited the Board to negotiate with Mrs. Dennehy and submit the price arranged to the Minister.

Tyrone Flax Destroyed.—Damages to the extent of £1,000 were caused by an outbreak of fire in a flax shed belonging to Mr. J. P. B. Smyth, Millbrook, Newtownstewart, County Tyrone, when the entire flax crop of several farmers in the Derg Valley, which had been stored for scutching, was completely destroyed. The fire had gained firm hold on the building before being discovered, and nothing could be done to save either building or contents. Mr. Smyth was about to commence scutching operations this week. Captain Moore, district inspector of the police at Sion Mills and Newtownstewart, visited the scene, and is carrying out investigations.

Kenmare Estate Question.—Killarney Fianna Fail Cumann have passed a resolution calling on the Government to take over the Kenmare estate. It was learned that the resolution stated that the estate was to be sold piecemeal, and the rights of fishing, landing of boats, etc., were to be revoked and made subject to payment. Interviewed yesterday with regard to the resolution, Mr. A. R. Kennedy, agent for the estate, stated that the only foundation for the rumour was that it was proposed to construct a magnificent new golf course in the western demesne which would be a great addition to the amenities of Killarney.

Derryman Fined.—Daniel Collins, 27 Mill street, Londonderry, was, at Londonderry Petty Sessions yesterday, fined 1s. and ordered to pay 11s. compensation for causing malicious damage to a window, the property of James Moran, 37 Mill street. In a summons alleging disorderly behaviour, he was ordered to enter into bail to keep the peace for twelve months. A summons against Moran for conduct calculated to lead to a breach of the peace was dismissed. It was alleged that Collins threw a grating through Moran's window, and that Moran got excited, created a scene, assaulted his son, and threatened to murder Collins.

Cattle-Driving Charge.—John Maloney, Patrick Mangan, and Patrick Donnellon, all of Kellsaugh, Ballindine, were arrested on Sunday night and charged in connection with cattle-driving from the lands of Patrick Mellett, Prospect, Claremorris. They were remanded on bail to the next District Court at Claremorris. About 100 head of sheep and 40 cattle were driven off the lands on the previous night. All the stock was recovered locally by the Guards.

Effects of Government Policy.—Speaking at a Fianna Fail ceilidhe on Sunday night, Alderman L. J. Walsh, T.D., Mayor of Drogheda, said that there was no town in Ireland which had benefited more from the policy of Fianna Fail than Drogheda. They saw the beginning of a new era opening up before them; the revival of their established industries and the establishment of others. They had the Drogheda boot factories, and the oil cake mills, where 300 were employed, as a result of the Fianna Fail policy, and before the new year was very old they hoped to be able to say that they were turning out Drogheda cement. Alderman Walsh said that in the very near future, within the next few years, they would be able to eat Drogheda bread, made from wheat grown around the town.

Allegations about Election.—Enniskillen Urban Council yesterday elected Mr. W. F. Dewane as Chairman. The outgoing Chairman, Mr. D. Reilly, congratulated Mr. Dewane, and remarked that he was rather surprised at the course events had taken. He had been on the Council for something like fifteen years, whereas Mr. Dewane had only been a member of the Council for one month. He (the Chairman) had done his work to the best of his ability, and he hoped to the satisfaction of everyone concerned. Mr. Dewane, he added, had been elected on the decision of four members outside the Council Chamber. Mr. Reilly, on vacating the chair, left the Council Chamber, and the chair was taken by Mr. Dewane, who returned thanks for his election as Chairman. Mr. Whaley (U.) was elected by nine votes to five to the Vice-Chairmanship.

Belfast Shipbuilding.—There are at present eight ships under construction at Belfast, with three at the fitting-out wharf, representing a total of about 150,000 tons of new construction, including H.M.S. cruiser Belfast and H.M. aircraft carrier Formidable. With the launch of the Munster, the second of the two vessels ordered by the British and Irish Steam Packet Company for the Liverpool-Dublin service, on the 3rd November, the number of ships on the building slips at Belfast will be reduced to seven, which means that half of the present 14 building berths will be idle, apart from the five taken over from Messrs Workman, Clark, Ltd. Unless further orders are received soon the outlook for the Belfast shipbuilding industry will be less promising than during the past fifteen months. It is expected, however, that several mercantile and Admiralty orders may be placed before the end of the year.

Sheep Smuggled.—That two lots of sheep had been imported into Northern Ireland—one legally and the other illegally—was the suggestion put forward at Londonderry yesterday in a case in which William Whiteside, farmer, Crumkill, near Londonderry, was fined £50, and John Campbell, 98 Strabane Old road, Londonderry, £10, for being knowingly concerned in the importation of forty sheep from the Irish Free State without duty having been paid on them. For the prosecution it was alleged that a herd of forty sheep which had been purchased in the Free State by a Londonderry auctioneer were imported into Northern Ireland, duty having been paid on them, and that a further forty sheep were bought in the Free State and imported into Northern Ireland on the same date without duty having been paid on them. Whiteside said that he bought forty sheep in the Free State from the same man as the auctioneer, and he sent Campbell to the British Customs post to meet them. Witness also went to the Customs post himself and saw the man from whom he purchased the sheep paying the duty. He told the man to give the receipt for the duty to Campbell. Campbell said the man afterwards asked him to give back the receipt for the duty.

DUBLIN STRIKES SETTLED

Horse van drivers and porters employed by a large Dublin drapery establishment took strike action yesterday upon the instructions of the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union. Strike notices which had been served on the firm in connection with a claim for wage increases expired on Saturday. After a short stoppage the firm agreed to pay the increases demanded, which amount to five shillings per week, and the men resumed work.

The strike of about 200 male and female operatives in Messrs. Walter Edwards' factory, Alexandra House, East Wall road, also ended yesterday. In this case the workers, who are members of the National Union of Boot and Shoe Operatives, were seeking the reinstatement of a male worker who was laid off about two months ago owing to slackness of trade. This question will be dealt with through the conciliation machinery which exists for the industry.

The Irish Union of Distributive Workers and Clerks announced yesterday that all traders whose premises were picketed in the Camden street area in connection with the Union's early closing campaign had now agreed to close not later than 7 o'clock on Saturday evenings.

Councillor Kennedy Leacock, the newly-elected member for St. George's Ward, Belfast, is at present in a nursing home, and at the meeting of Belfast Corporation yesterday the Lord Mayor expressed the hope that he would be speedily restored to health.

George Edwin Derrick, Coyle street, who had appealed from a conviction at Belfast Summons Court for obtaining £123 unemployment benefit by false pretences, and a sentence of three months' imprisonment therefor, appeared in person at Belfast Recorder's Court yesterday, and said he was not going on with the appeal. The Recorder ordered him to be taken into custody.

Where's the fire?

The fire is right out of the picture. It's at the other end of the room. Why isn't he sitting near it? Because he has no need to. You see it's an ALCO fire giving 40% more heat and radiating its glowing warmth all over the room. YOU should economise by burning ALCO this year. The Creameries' Defiance

We refuse to believe that the creamery managers' assault upon the public will enjoy the slightest sympathy. Five years ago, when the economic struggle with England began, the Free State Government took active steps to protect the butter exporters—at heavy expense to the public. It "pegged" the price of butter within the Free State at an almost prohibitively high level, in order to recoup the creameries for their diminished market across the Channel. At the same time it instituted a system of levy and subsidy: the creameries paid a levy of so much on every pound of butter produced, and received a subsidy of so much on every pound exported. Up to the present everything has gone well—except for the Saorstát citizen, who has been paying at times anything up to 4d. or 5d. a pound more for his butter than the citizen of Great Britain or Northern Ireland. The creameries have profited inordinately; indeed, it is probable that they have made far more money than they would have made if there never had been an economic war. Of late, however, the situation has changed. The world price of butter—which, for all practical purposes, means the price prevailing on the British market—has risen until it is now higher than the Saorstát "pegged" price; actually, the Saorstát price is 120s. a hundredweight, while the world price fluctuates around 140s. a hundredweight. The creameries scent a chance to make still more money. Recently they demanded that the price within the Saorstát should be raised by Government decree to 140s., and accompanied the demand with a threat that otherwise they would export all their butter, leaving the Free State without any. They recognised, of course, that the Government held most of the cards. It could say: "Go ahead. Export your butter. Understand, however, that the export subsidy will be withdrawn, so that your butter will have to bear the full weight of the British tariffs"—in which case it no longer would be profitable to export. Alternatively, the Government could impose a complete ban on the export of butter. Confident that the Government would not dare to do either of these things, the creameries have had the temerity to raise the price themselves; and the success or failure of their arrogant venture depends now on the Government—and on the people.

Now the war is on. Some of the creameries actually are asking the higher price for their butter, and a circular letter from the manager of their association urges them to stand firm. The Minister, in a letter which we publish this morning, exercises his power to control the export of butter as from to-morrow. We trust that he will make full use of it. Hitherto the consuming citizen has had every reason to complain that the Government had loaded the dice against him; and he has the right, at least, to expect that he shall not be deprived of his ration of butter. It is no compliment to the consumer that he should enjoy his butter a little more cheaply than the Englishman for a few months, in view of the fact that he has been paying so much more highly for five years. The managers cannot expect to have things both ways. They cannot enjoy the benefit of State protection merely as long as it suits them, and discard it as soon as they think to make more profit without it. They have declared war on the consumer, and they have no right to expect that the Government shall be a willing ally. Nevertheless, the situation has its lesson for Mr. de Valera and his Government—a lesson from which, as we hope, they will take warning. For five years the Free State has been the victim of a hit-or-miss economic policy which already has plunged her into trouble, and will plunge her into worse trouble as time goes on. There never ought to have been any need of this complicated system of "pegged" prices, of bounties and of subsidies, and there would be no further need of it if the Government could bring itself to strike an honourable bargain with England. The worst result of the economic war, as we think, has not been the financial loss to the Free State, or even the impoverishment of many people, but the growth of a demoralising dependence on the Government. Producers of any commodity a decade ago were content to fend for themselves; nowadays they demand an assured market and a guarantee—at the expense of all other citizens—against the slightest loss. It is a vicious attitude, which will go far to breed a race of parasites; and Mr. de Valera would be well advised to sacrifice his own pride for the sake of the people's.

M. van Zeeland's Resignation

Yesterday morning at eleven o'clock M. van Zeeland, the Belgian Prime Minister, handed his resignation to King Leopold. All the other members of the Cabinet supported the Premier in his action, and they, too, have handed over their seals of office. For some days past there has been a certain amount of political tension in Brussels, but M. van Zeeland's decision to resign seems to have taken the public by surprise. At half-past six yesterday morning he had a series of consultations with his Cabinet colleagues who afterwards passed a unanimous vote of confidence in their leader, and it is most unlikely that any of them will consent to serve under any other Prime Minister. The history of the crisis which brought about M. van Zeeland's resignation has its roots in the bitterness between the Government Party and the Rexists in Belgium. Last April M. van Zeeland fought a remarkable by-election against M. Degrelle, the Rexist leader, to whom he administered a severe trouncing in the City of Brussels. Apparently the Rexists have not forgiven the Premier for his crushing victory on that occasion. They have been spreading ugly rumours about M. van Zeeland, which have done him much harm among the people who do not know him. When he became head of the Government in June of 1936 he occupied the position of Vice-President of the Belgian National Bank. Naturally he resigned this post, and on his resignation he received the sum of 180,000 francs, which constituted part of a "pool" to which he had contributed. This transaction was perfectly fair and above-board, but his political enemies seized upon it to start a campaign of calumny against him. The Rexists stated openly that M. van Zeeland had been receiving money from the bank while he was Prime Minister—an allegation, which, if it had been true, would have been damning to his reputation; but he stoutly denies that there is a word of truth in the charge, and in a broadcast statement has charged his political enemies with deliberate slander. The fact that all his Cabinet colleagues have stood by M. van Zeeland indicates that the campaign against him has been inspired purely by malice; yet in Belgium, as in almost every other Continental country, nothing is easier than to make people believe that a politician has been guilty of peculation. The political standards of these islands do not obtain abroad. While M. Laval was in charge of French foreign policy, during the Abyssinian crisis, certain Parisian newspapers asserted bluntly that he was in Signor Mussolini's pay; and there, doubtless, will be many in Belgium who will lend a ready ear to the Rexist accusations against M. van Zeeland.

M. van Zeeland was one of Belgium's most enlightened statesmen, who guided his country through some very difficult crises during the last year or so. When the Rexist Party began to show signs of growing strength he never lost his head, and his triumph at the Brussels election six months ago was a heavy blow to M. Degrelle's pretensions. His resignation now will be a source of great rejoicing to the Rexists, who have not yet abandoned their hopes to bring about a kind of Fascist dictatorship in Belgium, or, at any rate, to bring Belgian government into line with totalitarian ideas. At the moment Belgium is in rather a difficult position. Germany only a few weeks ago guaranteed her independence in the event of another war, and Berlin has been making strenuous efforts to drive a diplomatic wedge between Brussels and Paris. In the course of the present year the young King Leopold created something of a stir in diplomatic circles when he announced publicly that Belgium proposed to retain what amounted to complete freedom of action in case of a war. She asked the Western Powers to release her from the obligations of the Locarno agreement, to which she had been a party, and to all intents and purposes Belgium ceased to be a member of what might be described as the entente group of nations. Every sensible person realised the wisdom of this attitude, upon which, apparently, the King and M. van Zeeland agreed. Belgium, having had painful experience of one war, hardly could be expected to contemplate another with any measure of equanimity, and her leaders made up their minds that their country must be free of all entangling commitments in the future. We are convinced that the Belgian people, who have much common-sense, will not forsake their democratic principles. They know what totalitarian government means, and all their political traditions are opposed to it. M. Degrelle has a certain following among the younger generation, which in Belgium, as in every other country, is cupidus rerum novarum. The mass of the population, however, both Walloon and Flemish, is thoroughly sound in its ideas. The Belgians are just as suspicious of Rexism as they are of Communism. Their sole desire is to keep the middle of the road, and to avoid any course of action that might involve them in future difficulties. In M. van Zeeland they had a leader who set them an excellent example. His policy has been both wise and fruitful. He has made a name for himself among the statesmen of Europe, and his conduct of Belgian affairs since he became Premier in 1936 has been brilliant. It is a shame that a man of his type should be hounded down by false rumours and calumnious whisperings. We hope and believe that he will return to power at an early date; for he is one of the few men in high places in Europe today who have been working honestly and ceaselessly for peace. Such men can be ill spared.

Students' Vocabularies

The good old "spelling bee," upon which schoolmasters relied a couple of generations ago, would seem to be needed again. Speaking at the annual dinner of the Irish Dental Association on Saturday evening, Dr. William Boxwell, President of the Royal College of Physicians, said that as the curriculum of medical and surgical studies tended to become more complicated every day the standard of general education was apparently lower. He referred especially to the difficulty of teaching those whose vocabulary was inadequate to the demands which professional studies made upon it. Numbers of students, he said, did not know the meaning of words like "opaque" and "transparent," not to mention the more recondite words that must be used in the teaching of medicine and surgery. This statement coming, as it does, from one who has had a wide experience of students over a long period, can mean only that there has been a decline in the standard of primary and secondary education in recent years. Whether, as Dr. Boxwell suggested, boys in Ireland have not the same opportunity for general education as boys in Great Britain may be open to argument, his definite statement that students coming to the medical schools to-day do not understand the meaning of comparatively simple words will give a shock to educational authorities. The appeal for an improvement in the standard of general education must receive immediate attention, if the professional studies which follow are not to be retarded, and, it may be, neglected. It is not from Dr. Boxwell only that complaints of the low standard of English offered from Irish schools nowadays are uttered. They may be heard in almost any gathering in which the educational qualifications of young people are discussed. In a country which was once noted for the excellence of its English vocabulary the restriction noted recently is especially deplorable. In the long run a limited vocabulary means an emaciated mind; the reading of the student is restricted, the understanding warped, and ultimately his professional prospects are narrowly circumscribed. The words uttered by the President of the Royal College of Physicians constitute a warning no less than an appeal—both warning and appeal are worthy of the immediate attention of the Minister for Education.

The Big Apple

Periodically a new form of the dance sweeps the ballrooms of Mayfair and O'Connell street. Four couples—excessively hot—perform the new evolutions, and six hundred couples watch them do it with mingled feelings of envy and embarrassment. Envy triumphs, and the less athletic manœuvres of the inspiration are added by the six hundred to their repertoire of steps. In a few weeks' time all that remains of the latest sensation are a few twitchings in the wide open spaces, on the occasions when a wide open space presents itself. The public's talent for ignoring the potentialities of their invention must be heartbreaking for the maestros of the dance. They have seen the Charleston transformed into the shufflings of a cinema queue, and the intoxicating rhythm of the rumba give an opportunity for violent exercise to people who are a shade too intoxicated as they are. For long years they have yielded to the force that renders drab their most kaleidoscopic concepts; but now the breaking point has come. The maestros have decided upon a campaign of utter ruthlessness—they are about to launch the Big Apple upon London. With the Big Apple they have broken the intimate partnership between man and woman that possibly was the whole cause of their defeat—the partnership that provoked the death-knells to artistry of "Now, George, don't stamp," and of "Now, Mary, mother is watching." In the Big Apple it is every man for himself. Ten or more people go West African at the instigation of a "caller." The "caller" calls "Swing high," and the dancers—in a circle—swing a foot as high into the centre as they can. "Peck and Pose," cries the caller, and the dancers face their neighbours and "perform pecking motions." Subsequently they "do a dervish until the music stops suddenly, when they must hold the positions for a half-minute to give the party time for a laugh." We have "Shine"—a named couple do a solo; "Truck Round"—"grab your girl and do a twirl," and eventually "Heel the Apple." The dancers hop towards the centre of the circle on the heels. The maestros, indeed, have made a frantic effort, and they may find success in England. Where Eire is concerned, however, they must face failure again; for the Big Apple is precisely what we do just before we leave the party at the instigation of the commissionaire.

LONDON LETTER

NON-INTERVENTION COMMITTEE FEARS

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
MONDAY NIGHT.

WHILE nobody can say what will happen at the meeting of the Non-Intervention Sub-Committee to-morrow there is a real fear that there will be a complete breakdown. The attitude of Italy, in that she announces that she will make no more concessions, renders the situation difficult, inasmuch as she declares that if any country refuses to accept her figure of forty thousand Italian volunteers in Spain that country is deliberately lying, this being a direct challenge to Russia. The victory of General Franco in the Asturias possibly has hardened the Italians in their attitude, and it is now asked what is the good of sending commissions to Spain to ascertain the number of volunteers when Italy insists that her figure shall be accepted. It may be found to-morrow that Britain and France will unite in a last appeal to the Powers to come to an agreement, but if they fail, and intervention continues unchecked, they will declare that they intend to resume their liberty of action. It is rumoured that Russia to-morrow will withdraw from the Committee, and intimate that she no longer feels called upon to contribute to its funds, on the ground that the machinery of non-intervention has completely broken down.

Refugees in Europe

The attitude of Russia in another direction is exciting indignation in League of Nations circles at Geneva, where the plight of many thousands of political refugees is attracting attention. In all it is estimated that there are some seven hundred thousand refugees scattered up and down Europe, among them being twenty-five thousand Germans, of whom twenty thousand are Jews. The interests of the Germans are watched by General Sir Neil Malcolm, with the assistance of a committee, while the majority of the other refugees are cared for by the Nansen office. Both organisations are to come to an end next year, and the people who should look after the refugees are the League of Nations, but Russia objects, and threatens to veto the spending of the funds necessary to carry this idea into effect, declaring that a number are Russian Whites and Anti-Bolsheviks, who plot against the Soviet. Strong efforts have been made to induce the Russian Government to change its attitude, but in vain.

The Parliamentary Session

All the preparations for the State opening of Parliament in the House of Lords to-morrow were completed this afternoon, when there was a rehearsal of the ceremonial. If the weather is clear and bright the King and Queen will leave the Palace in the great gold coach used at the Coronation and drive to the House of Lords, but should it prove unfavourable, and the indications are not particularly good, the King and Queen will use a motor car and go to Westminster without an escort. It is three years now since there was a State opening of Parliament, as far as the procession through the streets is concerned. The speech from the Throne to-morrow will contain an unusually long programme of bills to be presented during the session, and among these are several which illustrate how Parliament is preoccupied nowadays with industrial questions, as they deal with coal, purchase of mining royalties, electricity, films, fishing, milk and bacon. Every year sees State supervision and control of trade and industry becoming more definite and widespread, and in this connection it is notable that such supervision is generally received with acquiescence by the industry concerned.

Young Criminals

Sir Samuel Hoare, the Home Secretary, who is to introduce a Prison Reform Bill into the House of Commons, intends that its scope shall be wide enough to secure legislative sanction for the setting up of quite new machinery to deal with young criminals. If his proposals are accepted, Sir Samuel Hoare will open observation centres for offenders up to 21, where they will be kept under skilled observers and subjected to psychological and medical examinations. A number of these centres are contemplated, arranged in specially adapted buildings, so that they will have no prison associations, and they will be staffed by experts recruited for their special knowledge. These homes will receive offenders who are put on remand under observation, and as at present these offenders are sent to Wormwood Scrubs the change will be for the better. Mr. Geoffrey Lloyd, the Under Secretary for Home Affairs, went to inspect Chelmsford Prison to-day, the place where mainly the younger criminals, men under thirty, are sent.

The Royal Irish Fusiliers

The Duke of Gloucester will present the Royal Irish Fusiliers with their new Colours in London on November 1st. Threatened with extinction when the Irish Free State came into being, the old 87th and 89th were reduced to one battalion, but now a second battalion has been raised. The proudest colour badge of the 87th is the Eagle, commemorating the great day of Barossa, March 5th, 1811, when the Old Faughs, with a fighting Gough in command, won it from the 8th French Invincibles. The Evening News says that the Eagle should hang with others in the Chapel of the Royal Hospital, Chelsea, but the staff alone remains; for in 1852 a thief broke in and stripped flag and crest from their place.

Milk Production

The rains which have occurred over most parts of England in the past few days are welcomed by farmers generally, and by dairy farmers in particular, but they have come too late in the year to do much good to the pastures. There has been a reduction in the milk production of something like thirty million gallons during the past twelve months, and fears are expressed that a shortage will occur this winter. Provisional arrangements are being made to divert milk now going to factories to the retail milk trade in case of necessity this winter, and a drastic curtailment of factory supplies is regarded as probable. The main cause for the falling off is the poor quality of pastures and the higher price of imported feeding-stuffs. The number of milking cows shows no pronounced falling off, but there has been a reduction in the milk yield per cow.

Propaganda from Daventry

The problem of propaganda broadcasts by foreign countries has been under consideration by the Foreign Office, which has been contemplating means to counteract them. A suggestion is that Daventry shall be operated primarily as an all-world propaganda station, with entertainment to popularise it, while there will be no attacks on other countries or pro-British commentary on current affairs, the broadcasts being confined to genuine news. A number of languages will be employed, but no language that is not common to some part of the Empire. The great point about this proposal is that it will cost a very big sum of money—the view of the B.B.C. is that one million pounds will be required—and it is urged that this might become an Imperial charge.

While returning by car from Dresden to Berlin, the Reich Minister of Justice, Dr. Guertner, met with an accident receiving injuries to his head. He is making satisfactory progress.

BELGIAN CABINET RESIGNS

Sequel to Attacks on Premier

M. VAN ZEELAND REVIEWS SITUATION

Colleagues' Assurance of Confidence

M. VAN ZEELAND, the banker-statesman, head of the Belgian Coalition Ministry, yesterday handed the resignation of his Cabinet to King Leopold.

The communiqué announcing the resignation states:—"M. Van Zeeland informed his colleagues of his decision to hand in his resignation to the King. His colleagues considered it their duty to associate themselves with the attitude of the Prime Minister."

The crisis, which has been brewing for some months, hinges round the affairs of the Belgian National Bank. For a long time the political opponents of M. Van Zeeland, particularly the Rexists, led by M. Degrelle, have alleged that irregularities have occurred in connection with the administration of the bank. At first their attack was concentrated upon the allegation that M. Van Zeeland, who was Vice-Governor of the bank before he became Premier, had been receiving payment of his salary from the bank while he held office as Premier.

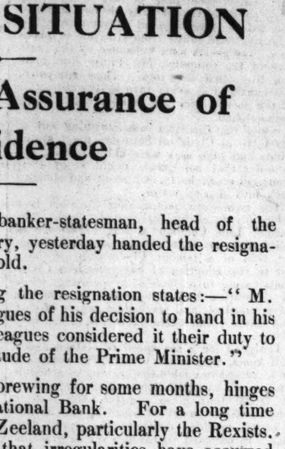

M. Van Zeeland called a special meeting of both Houses last September to debate this allegation, which he rebutted in a vigorous speech. He denied that he received any salary from the bank while Premier, and said that if he received money from the bank, it was drawn from a common fund which was at the directors' disposal, in accordance with agreements among themselves, and that it was spent on expenses in connection with his office.

M. Van Zeeland became Prime Minister in June, 1936, and last April he fought a remarkable by-election against M. Degrelle, in Brussels, defeating the Rexist leader.

A VIGOROUS BROADCAST

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BRUSSELS, Monday.

M. VAN ZEELAND.

In a vigorous broadcast vindication of himself and his Government to-night, M. Van Zeeland said: "In this atmosphere of passionate and unjust attacks I can no longer accept responsibility for directing the policy of the country, for it is no longer possible for the Government to do good work. I profoundly regret it.

"For myself, I await with confidence the judgment of the country on the Government's work of national renovation and on the oblique manœuvres that have interrupted it."

He recalled that in recent months the atmosphere of national union which his Government had been formed to achieve had become disturbed. "Little by little a confused political situation was created which more and more impeded the initiatives and action of the Government. Side by side with this work of disintegration there developed in the country an odious and torrential campaign of calumny. Unable to affect the Cabinet in its work and in its policy, attacks were developed on personal lines, and they were specially directed against the head of the Government. Month after month it fell upon me to refute calumny after calumny, until I was forced at last to bring the matter before Parliament. But in such an atmosphere it was no longer possible to work in an effective manner."

PERSONAL ATTACKS

He stated that he wished some weeks ago to withdraw from public life, but yielding to urgent requests, and fearing to precipitate menacing difficulties, he agreed to delay his retirement and to carry on with the Government programme. "Alas, during a short absence rendered necessary by the state of my health, things got worse instead of better. Personal attacks were resumed and there arose incidents in regard to the National Bank. These incidents I consider do not concern me directly or personally, but I could no longer remain indifferent, for they affected a great national institution with which I had the honour to collaborate in various capacities for some fifteen years. It was necessary that the matter should be settled quickly and the truth rapidly established. It was necessary for the bank; it was necessary for me. By resuming my liberty of action I shall certainly help in this matter."

His Cabinet colleagues meanwhile have addressed to him a letter stating: "We wish to assure you of our esteem, our friendship and our confidence. For thirty months we have been witnesses of your work, your devotion to public affairs, and your ardent patriotism. The work that you have accomplished at the head of the Government will one day be judged by all as it should be judged. As for ourselves, we are proud to have been your colleagues."

CONFERENCE POSTPONED?

Owing to the Ministerial crisis it is possible that the Far East Conference, called under the Nine-Power Treaty for next Saturday, may be postponed for a few days, according to a semi-official announcement to-night. The following Wednesday is suggested as a possible date.

BROADBENT AT ATHENS

STORY OF FORCED LANDING

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ATHENS, Monday.

Mr. "Jim" Broadbent reached here this afternoon on his way home by air after abandoning his attempt on the England-Australia record, and is staying the night in Athens. He said: "First there was a forced landing 30 miles south-east of Baghdad for lack of fuel owing to fog conditions. This was followed by a five-mile ride on a donkey to the nearest Arab village for fuel. There I spent a whole day obtaining petrol because I was unable to make myself understood, and finally I had to do a further ten miles in the world's oldest Ford on the roughest road I ever met. Eventually I obtained fuel on which the engine just managed to run. I succeeded in finding Baghdad airport in spite of a severe local dust storm. Conditions on the Baghdad to Athens flight to-day, however, were perfect, and I completed the journey in 10 hours, 50 minutes."

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

MR. LYONS'S VICTORY

The Times observes editorially to-day:—Mr. Lyons's success in the Australian general election—he is the only Australian Prime Minister so far to survive three successive appeals to the electors—is first and foremost a victory for continuity in defence policy and for co-operation with the other countries of the British Empire. The defence programme introduced by the Government last session was keenly opposed by the Labour Party, who challenged not only the programme itself, but the very principle upon which it was based. Mr. Lyons and his colleagues, like every previous Australian Government recognised that the protection of her long sea communications is vital for Australia and that these communications can only be made secure by co-operation with the British Navy. They proposed a considerable increase in the Air Force, together with other measures for strengthening the local defences of Australia, but they also proposed to devote a large part of their available resources to enabling the Australian Navy to play a more adequate part in keeping the enemy at a safe distance from the Australian coasts and from the Australian trade routes.

Labour opposed expenditure on the Navy, in spite of the fact that the Australian Navy was created by a Labour Government, and wanted to see the national effort concentrated upon the local defence of Australia by the provision of an Air Force capable of checking any invader. The party spokesmen demanded isolation for Australia both in defence and in policy, protesting that co-operation with the Governments of Great Britain and the other Dominions might involve the Commonwealth in wars which did not affect Australian interests. They thus carried over into the sphere of defence the isolationist principles which have inspired their criticism of the Ottawa agreements, and of every movement to encourage immigration. The ideal which they advocated was that of a self-sufficient Australia, relying upon her own unaided resources to repel any foreign aggression.

It seems fairly clear that the Government owe their return mainly to a widespread recognition of the danger in the present state of the world of entrusting the fortunes of Australia to a Labour Party committed to a policy of non-co-operation with the rest of the Empire in foreign policy and defence. Other considerations have told in the same direction. When it came to actual vote-casting, electors may have felt disinclined to change their Government in a period of prosperity, in the recovery of which, by general admission, the Government have played a great part. The result in New South Wales, where Labour expected to win several seats, seems to show that the voters in that State, at any rate, have not forgotten their experience of Mr. Lang, who is still the leader of the local Labour Party.

BIG JAPANESE DRIVE

GUNS POUND THE CHINESE LINE

TACHANG A HEAP OF RUINS

PLANS FOR NEW MONGOL EMPIRE

JAPANESE guns on land and sea are still steadily pounding the Chinese positions in the vast, costly and unending struggle on the Shanghai front. The bombardment is particularly heavy at Tachang, the ruins of which the Chinese are still grimly holding.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NANKING, Monday.

The Chinese Command and public alike are anxiously watching the great battle that continues to rage just north of Shanghai, on the Kiangwan Tazang front, and its outcome must decide whether the Chinese can hold the present line from Chapei to Lotien, or are obliged to fall back on that from Nanziang, five miles west of Shanghai, to Kiating. No alarm is felt in Chinese quarters as to the military situation, and a big Chinese counter attack is expected after dark. The Chinese Command intends to hang on to Chapei at any cost.

FIGHT FOR SHANSI

PRESS ASSOCIATION FOREIGN SPECIAL

NANKING, Monday.

A fierce battle is raging to the South of Niangtzekwan, in Eastern Shansi (North-West China). After repeated failures to dislodge the Chinese defending the passes of the inner great wall, the Japanese are now trying to outflank them. Following the capture of Shihchiachwang, on the Peking-Hankow Railway, the Japanese launched a drive westwards along the Chengtai Railway, hoping to join their comrades in North Shansi for a simultaneous drive upon Taiyuanfu, the capital of the province.

If Niangtzekwan fell it would give the Japanese the entrance to the Shansi Plains from the east. Two Chinese divisions at present are holding on desperately in the face of determined attacks.

DEARTH OF DOCTORS

The Press Association Chief Correspondent at Nanking stated that the Chinese capital has literally gone underground. After a visit to the military hospitals here I am again impressed by the appalling magnitude of their task and by the hopeless lack of supplies. China is completely unprepared and unequipped to face this colossal problem, which can only be compared with the Crimean War, but on a larger scale. Wounded from the different fronts are pouring in here. The Chinese Minister of Health, a former Harvard man, told me that there are now 150 military hospitals, but they are facing a serious shortage of doctors, trained nurses and supplies. He is arranging to bring out a party of Austrian doctors, who are now being enrolled in Vienna, and who are willing to accept smaller salaries than British and Americans.

A PRO-JAPANESE STATE

PRESS ASSOCIATION FOREIGN SPECIAL.

TOKYO, Monday.

The creation of an independent State of Inner Mongolia, made possible by the Japanese occupation of the Provinces of Chahar and Suiyuan, is moving rapidly to fulfilment, according to Japanese telegrams from Suiyuan. The movement is said to aim at the establishment of a great Mongol Empire, comprising all the 5,000,000 Mongols.

A National Assembly will meet on Wednesday for three days to decide the machinery of the new administration of Suiyuan and Chahar. Five hundred delegates, representing the different Mongol banners or tribes which make up the Five Leagues of the Mongol People, are to attend.

Meanwhile Japanese plans for North China, now that the main Chinese armies have been defeated in Hopei, begin to figure largely in the Tokyo Press, apparently inspired.

Great stress is laid on the differences in customs and manners from other Chinese of the peoples north of the Yellow River, who are depicted as eager to cast off the shackles of Nanking, and live under a new rule founded on pro-Japanese principles.

The Peiping Correspondent of the Nichi Nichi, a paper always closely in touch with the army, says:—The five provinces of North China must be converted into a "special zone." This is absolutely necessary for Manchukuo and Japan. But, he continues, "the awakened peoples of the five provinces desire autonomy independent of Nanking, and the creation of an independent State in North China must, therefore, be carefully considered."

IRISH SOLDIER'S FUNERAL

SHANGHAI TURNS OUT IN HONOUR

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT

SHANGHAI, Monday.

Shanghai turned out en masse this afternoon for the funeral of Private W. McGowan, of the Royal Ulster Rifles, who was killed yesterday when the British post in Keswick road was machine-gunned by a Japanese aeroplane.

Detachments of British, American, French and Italian troops and naval contingents attended, while the officials present included: Admiral Sir Charles Little, representing the British Navy; Admiral Yarnell, the American Commander-in-Chief; Admiral Le Bigot, the Commander-in-Chief of the French Fleet; Major-General Telfer-Smollett, Commander-in-Chief of the British Troops in Shanghai; General Beaumont, of the United States Army, and many Chinese officials, including the Chinese Mayor, Mr. Yui.

The Japanese will, it is stated, make suitable reparation for the shooting. The Japanese Command is conducting a strict investigation into the affair, "with a view to taking the necessary measures in regard to the airmen concerned."

NOBEL PRIZE CANDIDATE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

STOCKHOLM, Monday.

Professor Walter Norman Haworth, F.R.S., D.Sc., Professor of Chemistry and Director of the Department of Chemistry at Birmingham University, is mentioned as a possible candidate for the Nobel Prize award for "scientists who have been engaged especially in research on vitamins."

EUROPE AND SPAIN

PEACE HOPES FADING

FRANCE ANGRY WITH ITALY

NON-INTERVENTION COMMITTEE MEETING

POLITICAL circles in Paris foresee another week of abrupt rises and falls in the international barometer, but confidence remains in most quarters that the Non-Intervention Committee, which meets to-day, will not be forced to proclaim a fresh failure.

That confidence seems to be based on the overwhelming desire that further trouble should be avoided.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Monday.

Irritation at the turn of events, the blame for which is fairly equally distributed between Italy and the Soviet, remains pent up, and there is a distinct disinclination in official circles to talk. No new fact has occurred to encourage very great hopes of to-morrow's non-intervention meeting.

All aspects of all the problems were exhaustively discussed by M. Delbos, the Foreign Minister, and M. Corbin, the French Ambassador in London, during the week-end, when they endeavoured to find a way out of the difficulties. Alternative upon alternative was considered, but whether the suggested solution by France will prevail only to-morrow will tell.

FRANCO-BRITISH UNITY

The understanding between Great Britain and France is as firm as ever, and the suggestion of one Paris evening paper that divergencies of view are so great that the possibility of a break in Franco-British collaboration should not be excluded, was described as ludicrous.

Political commentators appeal for cool heads. Neither French nor British diplomacy can be accused of exciting passions, declares the Temps in a leader praising Mr. Eden as a modern Sisyphus propelling the rock of peace up a "soaped slope."

"M. Maisky's declaration at the last meeting of the Non-Intervention Committee," continues the Temps, "was intended to torpedo non-intervention, and the best reply would have been to seek a Franco-British-Italian understanding and to isolate the Soviet. In a question which concerns Western Europe especially, the full co-operation of the Soviet is not indispensable. Italy, however, by seeking a unanimity of vote thought that she would saddle the Soviet with the whole responsibility for the failure of the Non-Intervention Committee, but a part of that responsibility remains Italian. Should the Non Intervention Committee fail there is no doubt that France and Britain will utilise their freedom of action in the sole interest of order and peace."

SOVIET ATTITUDE

No information is available in British circles with regard to the suggestion that M. Maisky, the Soviet Ambassador, has been instructed to inform the Non-Intervention Committee that Russia will no longer contribute to the Committee's funds. Reuter learns that the possibility of such a step being taken has not so far been intimated by M. Maisky to the Foreign Office.

It is believed that if this were Russia's intention it would only mean that she was no longer willing to give financial support to a control scheme which she considered ineffective. It should not mean that she would withdraw from the Non-Intervention Committee altogether.

Following M. Corbin's visit this morning, Count Grandi (the Italian Ambassador) and Dr. Woermann (the German Chargé d'Affaires) called on Mr. Eden at the Foreign Office this afternoon to discuss the situation likely to arise at to-morrow's meeting of the Chairman's Sub-Committee on Non-Intervention.

BERLIN SCEPTICAL

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BERLIN, Monday.

The outcome of to-morrow's meeting is awaited with keen interest and some scepticism in official quarters here. Interest has been heightened by Italy's announced intention not to make any further concessions. The papers here remark that Italy has done everything in her power to facilitate the solution of the non-intervention problem. The Fabian tactics attributed to Great Britain by the papers here are presumed to be due to the unfavourable military position of the Spanish Government.

Herr von Ribbentrop returned to Berlin from Rome this morning after what was ostensibly a private visit. According to reliable circles, the only subject discussed when he conferred with Signor Mussolini and Count Ciano was the Spanish civil war. To-day he had a conference with Herr Hitler.

ITALY INDIFFERENT

ROME, Monday.

The Earl of Perth, British Ambassador in Rome, called on Count Ciano, the Italian Foreign Minister, to-day. Italian political circles are pessimistic as to the chances of agreement, which, it is felt, the Russian attitude makes impossible. The prospect of a breakdown seems to be regarded with indifference.

Time, it is felt, is on Italy's side, and whether the volunteers are withdrawn from Spain or not victory cannot escape General Franco.

PRESS ASSOCIATION FOREIGN SPECIAL.

PARIS, Monday Night.

There is good reason to believe that M. Corbin, the French Ambassador in London, has been instructed to express the uncompromising opposition of his Government to the Italian demand that the estimates of foreign volunteers in Spain made by the investigating commissions shall not be binding on the Governments concerned. It is also clear that the French Government regard the application of the unanimity rule to the London committee's discussions as impossible in practice, and that they will do their utmost to secure a compromise on this point.

Threat to Withdraw Butter Subsidy

Dr. Ryan's Letter to the Creamery Managers

Regarded as a "Declaration of War"

THE controversy in connection with the butter situation reached a further stage last night, when Dr. Ryan, Minister for Agriculture, informed the creamery managers that no increase in the price of butter to the home consumer would be permitted, and that, in order to ensure that adequate supplies are available for the home market at present prices, he will, if necessary, refuse to pay the present subsidy on exported butter.

This, in the opinion of a creamery manager, who was approached on the subject last night, is tantamount to a declaration of war.

MINISTER'S LETTER

Dr. Ryan's decision is contained in the following letter, which has been addressed to every creamery manager:—

"SIR,—I am directed by the Minister for Agriculture to inform you that he has had under consideration the questions of the supply and price of creamery butter on the home market.

"As mentioned in an official announcement which was published on the 8th instant, the Minister considers that any attempt to increase the cost of butter to home consumers is ill-advised in present circumstances. It will be within the recollection of creamery suppliers that, in consequence of the fall in butter values which began in 1929, one of the first things done by the Government after taking office at the beginning of 1932 was to pass an Act enabling the Minister to secure to creameries and other butter producers a more remunerative return on the whole of their output than they could otherwise obtain. This was accomplished by raising prices on the home market to a higher level than external values. Soon afterwards, when the British duties on Saorstat agricultural commodities were imposed in 1932, the Department of Agriculture not only refunded the full amount of the duty on dairy products, but, in addition, paid out of public funds considerable sums over and above the duty. The result has been that, between the enhanced prices paid by the home consumers and the amounts paid out of public funds, dairy farmers have received very much more than they would have received without State assistance.

BENEFITS TO PRODUCERS

"The first complete year of the Government's policy was 1933, in which year the producers of creamery butter received £724,940 in excess of what they would have obtained if there had been no British duties and no levy, bounty and subsidy system. The net benefit which accrued to them in 1934 was £1,275,450; in the following year £735,120, and last year £470,860. Corresponding benefits were conferred in respect of farm and factory butter, cheese, cream, etc. There appears to be an idea prevalent that in 1937 the creameries have lost by the arrangement in operation since 1932. Such is not the case, however, as in every month from January to September they have been secured a price higher than the British market price, the net advantage during the first nine months of this year amounting to £275,180

"Admittedly, external values have been higher during the current month than the net average price returned to creameries. This is not the first time during the past few years that such a position existed, as the same thing occurred, to a smaller extent, in October, 1935, and July, 1936. Whether the present high prices on the British market last for the remainder of the season or not, creamery farmers will have received under the Government's system a better return for their produce during the current year than if they could have sold on a free market without any State intervention.

DR. RYAN'S DECISION

"The stabilisation of prices scheme has given the maximum benefit to producers and consumers. Any sudden or haphazard change of price upsets the equilibrium, and gives unwarranted margins to the intermediary interests. To get the greatest advantage, prices to producers and consumers must be planned well ahead; hence the objection to the arbitrary figures mentioned recently by a section of those concerned.

"A shortage of butter on the home market is threatened sooner this year than was anticipated. Accordingly, in order to ensure that sufficient supplies will be available for home requirements at existing prices, the Minister has decided that subsidy will not be paid in respect of creamery butter exported on or after the 27th inst., unless export takes place under and in accordance with his sanction. Applications for such sanction will be considered only if accompanied by a statement giving the particulars indicated in the circular on the subject by the Department of Agriculture to creamery managers and non-manufacturing exporters.

"I am to add that, although the statutory price of butter will not be in-

NORTH WOULD NEVER AGREE

TO ENTER A DUBLIN PARLIAMENT

—Sir Robert Lynn.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BALLYMONEY, Monday.

Sir Robert Lynn, M.P., Deputy Speaker in the Northern Parliament, speaking at Ballymoney, North Antrim, to-day, referring to Mr. de Valera's recent declaration to establish a Republic, said as far as the North was concerned it could not be made too clear that in no circumstances, and under no conditions, would they ever agree to enter a Dublin Parliament.

Their experience of the Free State more than confirmed the fears they always entertained. Their civil and religious liberty would be imperilled, and they would stand to lose all those things which they rightly cherished.

Speaking for himself, much as he loved his native province, he would prefer to see it disappear into oblivion rather than that they, and those for whom they were trustees, should come under the rule of Dublin.

The idea suggested by Mr. de Valera was so repugnant to them it was not even open to discussion. He would be a poor Ulsterman who would surrender the freedom he enjoys for the servitude of an Irish Republic.

STOCKS JUMP IN NEW YORK

DRAMATIC RECOVERY OF MARKET

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Monday.

Prices of a number of leading stocks jumped 5 to 10 dollars in excited mid-day trading to-day. Faced with a shortage of offerings, buyers almost stampeded in an effort to acquire stocks.

The advance was dramatic, in view of the weakness of the market at the opening. But as soon as short interests attempted to cover they found the greatest difficulty in buying.

The rally started after an order for 5,000 Chrysler Shares had been received, and it was found that no sale could be arranged. It was nearly an hour before the transaction could be completed, and then at a price 3½ dollars above the last previous sale.

While the news from Europe and the Far East was not quite so cheerful, the revival of buying was attributed to the belief that New York stocks are now oversold, even if the worst fears of a further recession in American business are realised. To-day's sales totalled 2,340,000 shares.

THE NAAS MOTOR ACCIDENT

DEATH OF ONE OF THE INJURED MEN

James Burchall (40), of Grangebeg, Dunlavin, County Kildare, one of the five men who were injured in a collision between a motor car and a motor lorry at Johnstown, near Naas, last week, died in Naas Hospital last night. His condition had been critical from the time of the accident, and little hope was entertained for his recovery.

The other men involved are: Denis Dunne (60), Rathcoole, who is still in a serious condition; James Hayden (50), and Mathew Morrin (55), both of Rathcoole, who are progressing, and James Egan (50), also of Rathcoole, whose condition remains unchanged.

KING OF BULGARIA GOING TO LONDON

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

SOFIA, Monday.

King Boris and Queen Joanna, of Bulgaria, accompanied by their four-year-old daughter, Princess Marie Louise, left Sofia this afternoon for Paris and London. Their visits to both capitals are unofficial, but it is expected that the King will have conversations with French and British Ministers.

The journey of King Boris is believed to be connected with the recent military manœuvres, rearmament, and the question of the legalisation of the Bulgarian Army.

DUBLIN'S TRAFFIC PROBLEMS

CAR PARKING DIFFICULTIES

BERESFORD PLACE PROPOSAL

GREAT CENTRAL PARK AND 'BUS STATION

THE Safety First Association of Ireland will outline proposals for a central car park and 'bus station adjoining the Custom House at a meeting of the General Purposes Committee of the Dublin Corporation to-night.

BERESFORD PLACE

The Customs House side has been chosen chiefly because it is the only sufficiently extensive open space which lies reasonably near to the city's business centre, and also because the Port and Docks Board is understood to be considering the removal of the old grain stores which abut on Store street and Beresford place.

The proposed site is sufficiently large to house between 600 and 700 cars on two floors, with entrances and exits on comparatively wide and convenient streets, which lie within five or seven minutes' walk from many of the city's busiest and most congested thoroughfares. It lies within 200 yards of Talbot street and Lower Abbey street.

The proposed building, it is suggested, could be constructed to permit of the later addition of one or two extra storeys, should the accommodation prove to be insufficient.

If provided with other services and facilities the "park" and garage should prove to be a convenience for many residents in, and visitors to, all city areas. The buildings would also provide a much-needed dépôt for the night garaging of commercial vehicles.

CENTRAL 'BUS STATION

The need for some structure which would enable 'bus passengers to avoid the discomfort and risks of waiting on kerbsides in all kinds of weather has long been recognised. The discomforts so imposed will be sensibly increased as the result of the new bye-laws, which prohibit 'bus operators from waiting on city streets. The proposed building would provide a halting place beside a passengers' platform for ten or twelve 'buses, and garaging space for a further 100 vehicles.

As a civic amenity the replacement of the present unsightly three-storey-high grain stores by a modern single-storey building should appeal to the Corporation's town-planning advisers. Under the proposed scheme the Customs House would be visible from Amiens Street Station.

It is suggested that the Corporation, who have already conferred with the Port and Docks Board as to the possible acquisition of the proposed site, should examine the finances of the scheme put forward by the Association.

ESTIMATED REVENUE

As some guide to probable revenues from the car park and 'bus station, the Association's report states that the following estimate is based on the conservative assumption that the average daily demand for accommodation would be equal to one-half of the maximum capacity of each building.

For car garaging during day—One penny an hour, with minimum of sixpence; for night parking of commercial and other vehicles—one shilling per diem.

For 'Bus Stations—For the use of station as terminus and night garaging—One shilling and sixpence daily for each two.

The estimated annual revenue is:—

300 Cars at average of, daily	£4,000
50 Commercial and other vehicles nightly (900)	900
60 'Buses at 1s. 6d. per 24 hours, say 1,600	1,600
Plus rents of 12 shops and warehouses at £5 each weekly (say)	3,000
Gross annual revenue	£9,500

It is the Association's considered opinion that the operation of the new by-laws, together with the rapid increase in motor transport which is now taking place, would justify higher estimates of gross revenues.

THE BY-LAWS

The Technical Committee of the Association, in submitting a formal report to the Executive Committee, confined themselves to questions of immediate and major importance under two main headings:—(1) Considerations in respect to the Dublin Traffic and Parking By-laws, which are expected to be enforced within the next two or three weeks; (2) certain proposals for the permanent erasement of future traffic and parking pressure.

The two sets of Dublin by-laws and the general code which applies to Dublin and elsewhere are consequent upon the Traffic Act of 1933. All these by-laws are the results of four years' consultation between Government departments, local authorities and other parties. Owing to such prolonged delays in their preparation they seem to bear rather remote relationships to the traffic conditions which now prevail.

MOTOR REGISTRATIONS

"Four years ago," says the Association's report, "there were 13,000 motor vehicles registered in Dublin; 15,800 were registered at the end of last year; 3,000 new Dublin registrations were recorded during the first seven months of this year, and there is every reason to anticipate that the total of Dublin registrations will pass the 20,000 mark within the coming year.

"In order to estimate the inwards flow to city streets of vehicles registered outside Dublin we arranged for records to be taken over several hours on different days recently on some main suburban roads. From these observations we estimate that the normal daily inflow is not less than 2,000 vehicles: while such figures are greatly exceeded during busy shopping periods and on special occasions.

O'CONNELL BRIDGE

"Observing that several pages of the by-laws are devoted to new traffic regulations as they apply to O'Connel Bridge alone, and that the changes proposed will only affect vehicular flows on one of the many traffic 'lanes' which now occurs on the bridge and its approaches, we addressed ourselves specially to the discovery of simpler and more effective expedients. As the result of our examination a 'gyrator' scheme was prepared by our Technical Secretary, and submitted some months ago to the Garda authorities, who have not yet intimated acceptance or rejection of our suggestions.

"The plan, however, was published and strongly recommended by the Irish Times on the 8th inst. We may add that the scheme has met with general approval, and that no adverse comment has been made.

COLLEGE GREEN AREA

"The adjacent storm centre in College Green is only affected by the new regulations in so far as they contain a total prohibition of parking. For that area, also, we devised and submitted a 'gyratory' plan which would, in our opinion, afford considerable relief.

"Dealing with another point of acute congestion and delay, we found that there seemed to be little hope of securing an even flow of traffic in Nassau street in the absence of some further concession of space by the authorities of Trinity College. As such concessions (and the proposal to provide an 'arcade' footway under the shops opposite the College railings in Grafton street) cannot affect the early operation of the new by-laws, we do not make any proposals under these headings.

"We are, however, satisfied that some improvement would be affected at the Nassau street and Grafton street junction if the one-way scheme for Grafton street and parallel thoroughfare is modified.

DUBLIN CASTLE GROUNDS

"As a result of our survey," the report adds, "we are now able to make one proposal of a positive, and immediately practical, character. We recommend that considerable tracts of the unused spaces which surround Dublin Castle should be designated as parking grounds. These spaces are:—(1) The Upper Castle Yard, (2) the Lower Castle Yard, (3) the large yard which adjoins the Castle gardens and which was formerly occupied by the Board of Works, and (4) the very extensive, and entirely unused, open space which extends from Ship street entrance to the Castle to Lower Stephen street.

"These spaces collectively would accommodate from 250 to 300 cars, and are all easy of approach. The large space which abuts on Stephen street, in particular, offers many advantages. It lies within one minute's walk from the crowded thoroughfares of South Great George's street and Aungier street, and can be entered from three different points. We strongly urge that this proposal should be pressed upon the Minister for Local Government and upon the Minister for Industry and Commerce, whose staffs now occupy most of the surrounding buildings.

REVENUE CONSIDERATIONS

"We also suggest that the Ministers should be invited to consider the adverse reactions on revenue which would result from the restricted use of cars in the city. Motor spirit yields a revenue of eightpence per gallon to the Exchequer. If 1,000 cars cease to enter the city, and so reduce their fuel consumption daily by one gallon, the consequent annual revenue loss would be 100 cars plus 8d. plus 300 days; or, say, £10,000 yearly.

"It is our opinion that aggregate losses would be seriously increased if the new bye-laws are to be rigidly enforced; and we accordingly suggest that questions of revenue and motor trade employment should be considered.

NEW LIFFEY BRIDGES

"While we submit the foregoing recommendations as temporary expedients and means by which the new bye-laws may be brought into force without needless public inconvenience, we feel much more deeply concerned as to permanent remedies for traffic congestion. Quite the most important of such measures is the provision of two new Liffey bridges, more especially of the 'East Circular road' crossing between Guild street and Cardiff lane. Until that provision has been made bye-laws, however ingeniously they may be contrived, can do little to solve the increasing 'bottle-neck' problems of central city traffic.

"But, concurrently with steps to hasten bridge construction, we are of opinion that consideration should at once be given to the possible provision of commodious buildings for parking and auxiliary services at three or four points reasonably convenient to the city's business centres. We, accordingly, submit a separate and supplementary report in which the Association's proposals for street extension near the Custom House are incorporated with a scheme for a central car park and 'bus station on the adjoining sites."

THE AUSTRALIAN SENATE

CABINET MINISTERS DEFEATED

From Reuter's Correspondent.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

With a comfortable working majority assured in the House of Representatives, the Australian Government's chance of retaining its majority in the Senate appears to hinge on the voting in South Australia.

The latest Federal election figures indicate that Labour are likely to make a clean sweep of the vacant Senate seats in all other States.

If the Government forces win in South Australia, however, this would assure them of a Senate majority.

Commenting on the possibility of a Labour majority in the Senate, the Political Correspondent of the Sydney Morning Herald says that this would probably precipitate a crisis when the new Senate meets in July.

Meanwhile, three Cabinet Ministers are likely to be defeated. According to unofficial figures, the Minister for Defence, Sir Archdale Parkhill, has already lost his seat. The Minister for External Affairs, Sir George Pearce, and Senator T. C. Brennan, Minister without Portfolio, are also likely to be defeated.

For the House of Representatives the latest figures indicate that the final state of the parties will be:—

United Australia Party—27 (previously 31).
Country Party—14 (previously 15).
Labour Party—30 (previously 28).
Victorian Country Party—2.
Social Credit Party—1.

With a gun between his knees and his terrier beside him, John Percival Watson (30), was found shot dead at his home at Clophill, Beds. Watson, while serving with the Army in India, was discharged as unfit, and the Coroner found that his mental balance was disturbed when he shot himself.

THE CONTROL OF PRICES BILL

ITS PROVISIONS EXAMINED

PROTECTION OF HIRE-PURCHASERS

In view of the legislation outlined in the Control of Prices Bill, 1937, the National Agricultural and Industrial Development Association have issued a report in which they discuss the bill's proposals.

The report states that the Council considered the general desirability of introducing such a measure, and noted the very privileged position in which some producers found themselves owing to the existence of high tariffs. It was obvious that in many cases native producers were in the position of having the virtual monopoly of their trade. This monopoly did not arise from Government legislation, but from the fact that it was uneconomic for more than one unit or plant to produce for the limited market available.

The Council were of the opinion that the only alternative to the Control of Prices Commission would be the arbitrary lowering and raising of tariffs in order to compel the sale of goods at reasonable prices. This was felt to be injurious to the stability of trade and credit, and, therefore, it appeared essential to devise machinery by which profits could be investigated and regulated.

The Council highly approved of the clause bringing within the scope of the bill the conditions under which hire purchase agreements were made. The hope was expressed that in any new insurance legislation safeguards would be provided, enabling hire-purchasers to derive the fullest possible benefit from instalments already paid in connection with the purchase of any commodity, and reasonable protection in the event of the purchaser being unable to continue pay-

In connection with the appointment of the Commission the Council were of the opinion that in the clause empowering the Minister to appoint temporary members in addition to the ordinary full-time members, there should definitely be included specific instructions with regard to the proper representation of the interests involved, whether producers, retailers or consumers.

QUESTION OF PUBLICITY

In considering Section 19, which gave power to the Commission to hold all or part of its sittings in private, the Council were unanimously of the opinion that secret investigations of this kind were highly undesirable from the standpoint of the public conscience. Equally in the case of Section 26 of the Bill, it was considered that the Minister should not be given the option of publishing the whole or part of any particular report, but that the entire proceedings should be made available for public inspection.

It was felt that, so far as possible, the Act should be administered by the members of the Commission themselves and that they should in no sense be a machine existing solely for the exercise of the Minister's discretion.

The Council highly approved of the clauses in the bill compelling the publication of retail prices in shops, where so desired, and compelling the seller of any commodity to issue a receipt on demand for any article costing over two shillings, and to give the measure of the article in question.

The Council were of the opinion that in examining the prices and articles produced in the Irish Free State, in many cases comparison could only be made with reference to various grades of quality produced.

The report also states that the Council, in view of the allegation as to the comparative wage scale and efficiency of production evident in certain industries, were of the opinion that the relative factors of wage cost of efficiency production should be fully considered when making comparison of the prices of the home-produced with the foreign article.

Irish Lifeboat Puts Out to Sea

Returns to Port with Engine Trouble

A thirty-foot sailing boat, believed to be Esthonian, and to have a man and his wife on board, lay about 500 yards off the Antrim coast, opposite Ballycastle, from yesterday afternoon in distress, and at a late hour last night efforts were being made to reach her.

The Portrush lifeboat left yesterday afternoon, but had to give up the attempt to reach the sailing boat, and early this morning the lif-boat had not returned and her position was not known.

Coastguards and police, with life-lines and lanterns, were stationed at various points on the shore at Ballycastle all last night, but were unable to reach the sailing boat, on which the figures of two people could be plainly seen.

When the Portrush lifeboat gave up the rescue attempt a call was sent to the Lifeboat Station at Donaghadee, but at 1.30 this morning she had not reached Ballycastle.

Although it was impossible to make out the name of the sailing boat, it was believed that she was the property of an Esthonian and his wife, who set out on a cruise to South Africa some time ago. They had called at a Scottish port, and then yesterday morning at Port Ellen, about thirty miles from Ballycastle, en route for Belfast and Liverpool.

At three o'clock this morning the Portrush lifeboat was reported to be at Glenarm, with engine trouble.

PORTRUSH, Tuesday Morning.

The couple were saved from the vessel which was in distress, and were landed on the Antrim coast and taken to Ballycastle this morning.

CONSTITUTIONAL CRISIS IN EGYPT

PREMIER AND KING DISAGREE

From Reuter's Correspondent.

CAIRO, Monday.

A serious constitutional crisis has suddenly arisen in Egypt. How it will develop depends on an audience which eighteen year-old King Farouk is granting to the Prime Minister, Nahas Pasha, tomorrow evening.

The situation is obscure, but it is known that the Premier objects to the appointment of the Chief of the King's Private Cabinet—that is to say, his political adviser, without previous consultation with the Cabinet.

The appointment of Ali Maher Pasha, one of the original members of the Wafd (Nationalist Party) to this post was announced some ten days ago.

The restiveness among the university students continues, and the Minister of Education has refused the request of the authorities of the Giza University to close that institution for a week.

THE WAR IN SPAIN

THE CAPTURE OF GIJON

HUGE STORES FOR GENERAL FRANCO

From Reuter's Correspondent.

GIJON, Monday.

Vast quantities of stores have fallen into the hands of General Franco as a result of the capture of Gijon, and the classification of the heaps of arms and munitions surrendered will be a colossal task. Among the booty is a store of 2,000,000 gallons of petrol.

Gijon escaped the disorders and wrecking which occurred in other towns prior to surrender, and was the cleanest city occupied by the insurgents, unlike Santander and Bilbao, which were all litter and wreckage.

All the services were functioning normally when the town was taken, and the only unusual sight was the white banners hanging from the windows in token of surrender.

The reason for the escape of Gijon was the taking over of the town by the assault guards when the Government leaders fled. The assault guards disarmed the militia men and kept order until the entry of the insurgents. For twenty-four hours before the entry of the troops the chiefs of the city were three lieutenants of police.

A steamer, with 3,000 tons of food, arrived shortly afterwards from Santander, and the roads were choked with lorries bringing in more supplies.

Salamanca announces that in all 5,000 militia men from Gijon have been intercepted on the high seas by insurgent warships.

Thirty-five provinces of Spain are now in insurgent hands, according to a Salamanca telegram to the Spanish Press services received by Reuter in London. This, states the telegram, is the political result of the fall of Gijon.

Only fifteen provinces now remain under Valencia's domination.

According to Paris reports, the Valencia Government will move to Barcelona at the end of the month.

BOMBED FRENCH STEAMER

"BLACK CROSSES ON THEIR WINGS"

From Reuter's Correspondent.

PORT VENDRES, Monday.

A graphic story of the sinking of his ship, the French Paquet Line steamer Oued Mellah (2,413 tons), after she had been bombed "by two seaplanes with black crosses on their wings," fifty miles off Barcelona yesterday, was given to-day by Captain Guidicelli, when he and twenty-two members of the crew arrived here on board the French destroyer Mars.

"At 5 p.m. yesterday two seaplanes with black crosses on their wings flew over us," said Captain Guidicelli. "My ship was flying the French flag, and had the French colours painted prominently on her decks. Her name was also painted in letters three feet high on her hull, and on both port and starboard sides. Consequently it was impossible for them to mistake us for a Spanish vessel. The 'planes dropped several bombs, one of which struck the forecastle, and another made an opening in the hull near the bows. I gave the order to abandon the ship, as she had begun to go down by the head. We were rescued by the destroyers Milan and Mars, which had picked up our S.O.S. The Mars stayed beside the sinking vessel until 11 p.m., when a violent storm arose and we lost sight of the Oued Mellah."

PARIS, Monday.

The bombing and sinking of the ship has aroused considerable indignation in Paris. A detailed investigation has been ordered, with a view to discovering the nationality of the aggressors. When this has been determined the French Government will decide on what measures to take.

The seaplane which bombed the air base in Minorca to-day was also stated to have been marked by a black Maltese cross.

FRENCH AIR LINE BASE BOMBED

MINORCA ATTACK BY MYSTERY 'PLANE

From Reuter's Correspondent.

ORLY (FRANCE), Monday.

Air France, the French passenger airline base at Fornells, Minorca, has been raided by an unidentified seaplane, according to news received here.

Repair-ship Number 91 was struck several times, it is added, and one bomb set it on fire. This afternoon it was blazing so fiercely that it was impossible to go near. No loss of life is reported.

The raiding aircraft is described as a grey machine bearing a black Maltese cross.

Fornells is a port on the north coast of Minorca, one of the Balearic Islands in the Mediterranean, which lie on the main route from France to North Africa. Minorca is held by the Spanish Government, and the neighbouring island of Majorca is occupied by General Franco.

AIR RAIDS ON THE SPANISH COAST

ITALIAN CREW OF FIVE KILLED

From Reuter's Correspondent.

BARCELONA, Monday.

Nine insurgent warplanes from the Italian base on Majorca dropped explosive and incendiary bombs on neighbouring coastal towns this morning, according to an official communiqué issued here. A number of persons were killed or injured, and some damage was done.

Later the 'planes flew to Barcelona, where Government fighter machines went up and brought down two Savoys bombers. One fell into the sea, and the other crashed on the outskirts of Barcelona.

All five of the crew of Italians belonging to the latter were killed. Tarragona was also bombed by insurgent aircraft this morning, but no casualties are reported.

Alderman T. Henderson, M.P., at the meeting of Belfast Corporation yesterday suggested that the quarterly meetings should be held in the evening. There were going to be more working men in the Council, he said, and he thought that serious consideration should be given to the matter.

BUTTER SUBSIDY THREAT

creased this season, arrangements have already been made to grant out of public funds:

(a) Allowances at the rates already announced in respect of butter which has been placed in cold store for winter requirements in accordance with the Minister's sanction, and

(b) a seasonal increase of 12s. per cwt. in respect of butter produced during the winter period commencing on the 1st December next.

"I am, sir, your obedient servant, D. Twomey, Secretary."

THE MANAGERS' ASSOCIATION

SECRETARY'S LETTER

Yesterday evening also the following letter was sent to creamery managers by Mr. E. C. Semple, Secretary to the Irish Creamery Managers' Association, 32 Kildare street, Dublin:—

"Dear Sir,—I have been instructed to inform you that at the Conference of Co-operative Societies and Dairy Farmers which was held in Limerick on Saturday, 23rd inst., it was decided—and the decision was of a practically unanimous character—that as from Monday, 25th inst., the delivered price of creamery butter in the home market be fixed at 140s., and all creamery managers are hereby respectfully requested to stand unfailingly by this price, and to export rather than sell under this figure.

"It is to be hoped that no manager will break through this agreement on the pretext that some other manager or creamery is faithless to it, or to look or seek for reasons that might appear to provide an excuse for his breach, or contemplated breach, of it. He is, rather, requested to send the names of those managers or creameries he may have reason to believe are not acting loyally by the compact to the undersigned, but under no circumstances is he to offer or look for an excuse that might seem to provide him with a reason for failing to observe it himself. The carrying out of this agreement may, it some limited measure at least, impose greater hardships on some societies than on others, but in a contest of this character it is practically impossible to have that equality of sacrifice that we all so much desire.

"REPREHENSIBLE WARFARE"

"We may be told—and have been told—that the Minister for Agriculture will make use of the powers vested in him to coerce the farmer into selling his produce under costs of production, but to act in such wise would be a manifest and malevolent abuse of his powers, and would be tantamount, in existing circumstances, to an unjustifiable declaration of war on the farming community, which no Government could conceivably justify, and which would be a most reprehensible type of warfare that could not be classified otherwise than the rankest tyranny.

"It is to be hoped, therefore, that the farmers, in giving the managers a lead in this matter, will test the staff of which they are made, and let us hope that the outcome will be that by their joint efforts they will make unmistakably evident to the Government that the farmers are not prepared any longer to be the sole victims of their economic policy.

"A committee composed wholly of farmers has been constituted to deal with this problem, and will meet periodically until a satisfactory solution of the matter is effected.—Yours faithfully, E. C. Semple, Secretary to the Committee."

THE POSITION IN CORK

From Our Correspondent.

CORK, Monday.

Following the decision of the Limerick meeting on Saturday to increase the price of butter from 120s. to 140s. per cwt., a number of southern creameries were to-day demanding the new price of 140s. Others, however, are still selling at 120s., and in an interview a well-known Cork butter merchant said that the amount on offer at 120s. was sufficient to meet all present needs. The quantity of butter in stock in Irish creameries at the end of September was, he said, 87,000 cwts., and most of this he expected to be available at 120s. until December, when the usual seasonal increase, with the sanction of the Minister for Agriculture, will take place.

No increase in the price to the consumer will take place so long as the creameries selling at 120s. retain sufficient stocks to meet the demand, and those stocks are expected to last for a considerable time.

OBITUARY

MR. FRANK WALTER SCOTT

The death of Mr. Frank Walter Scott took place on Sunday last at his residence, "Jerez," Sutton, County Dublin. Born in 1875, the fourth son of the late Mr. Adam Scott, of 44 Upper O'Connell street, Dublin, and "Trimbleston," Booterstown, Mr. Scott entered the business of Messrs. Adam Scott and Co. about the year 1890. He visited Oporto, where he established a trade connection for the firm. On the death of his father in 1925 he succeeded to the business, from which he retired in 1932. He was well-known in the wine trade, for which his firm was noted. Of a retiring disposition, Mr. Scott took no part in public affairs. The funeral, which will be private, takes place this morning at 10.30 to St. Fintan's, Sutton.

DR. MORTIMER WALTERS

The death of Dr. Mortimer Walters, Coroner for North County Dublin, took place yesterday at his residence, 36 Elgin road, Ballsbridge, at the age of about 50. Dr. Walters was a son of the late John Walters, Knockatana Castle, Caherconlish, County Limerick, where he was born, and, having received his early education in Limerick, he studied at the Royal College of Surgeons, Ireland. He qualified in 1906, and shortly afterwards was appointed a dispensary officer. In 1912 he was appointed to the Ballsbridge Dispensary, and in 1926 he became Coroner for North County Dublin, shortly after which he was appointed medical officer to the Dublin Port and Docks Board. The death of Dr. Walters will be felt by many, particularly the poorer people of the Ballsbridge district, among whom he was known as a very good friend. A keen sportsman, he was a first-class horseman, was interested in Rugby football, and was a member of Dun Laoghaire Golf Club.

MINISTER OPENS NEW SCHOOL

HELPS TO YOUTH IN LIFE

SCHOOL-LEAVING AGE DISCUSSED

From Our Correspondent.

CARLOW, Monday.

The official opening of the new vocational school at Hacketstown, County Carlow, was performed to-day by the Minister for Education (Mr. T. Derrig). The Rev. J. Dunne, P.P., Hacketstown, presided.

Mr. Derrig said that when he visited the school in 1932 he had admired the spirit of those who had established it. The boys and girls who were sent there would have to be helpful at home, and parents would have to realise the sacrifice of regular attendance. Parents should carry on their responsibilities to children to the fullest extent possible. It was always difficult to decide what to do with children from the ages of 14 to 15 years when they had completed their primary school education. A minority of those leaving school were sent to secondary schools, but a majority did not obtain sufficient education to enable them to make the best of their lives. It did not matter whether they continued to live in their home districts or whether they went to the towns or cities to make their livelihood. All children should have at least two years' post-primary education of some type, which should be not only cultural and disciplinary, as all education should be, but utilitarian. It should be closely related with life and concrete things, so as to ensure that when pupils left school they would be able to enter employment with confidence and adaptability. The purpose of vocational schools was the training of young people and to further general education

THE LEAVING AGE

Referring to the school-leaving age, Mr. Derrig said that the Government had decided not to raise it for the present. In this they were guided by the report of the special committee set up to deal with the matter. That report contained very cogent reasons for and against, and reasons why the age should not be raised until certain conditions obtained. The committee was in favour of the school-leaving age being raised in certain selected areas, and he was in entire agreement. Referring to compulsion in vocational education, Mr Derrig said that it was contrary to the whole idea and spirit of education. Parents would co-operate if they were convinced that their children would benefit. So far as the revival of Irish was concerned, he did not see why vocational schools should not be in the foreground.

The school would immensely benefit the people of Hacketstown. Training might not lead to certain employment, but it would help young people and make them fitted for fuller and better lives.

Mr. B. O'Neill, M.Sc., Chief Executive Officer, read a short account of the history of the Hacketstown Vocational School, and paid a tribute to the people of the district.

The Rev. W. Miller, Carlow, chairman, Carlow Vocational Education Committee, thanked the Minister for his practical address. The Rev. Chancellor Ridgway, Carlow, seconded the vote of thanks, and Mr. D. Burke, Senior Inspector, Department of Education, Vocational Branch, proposed a vote of thanks to the chairman, the Rev. T. Burbage, Tinryland, seconding. Among those present were:—Canon Ellison, Hacketstown; the Rev. H. Hickey, Kiltegan; the Rev. M. Loughlin, Mr. M. Sheehy, Department of Education; Mr. V. Kelly, architect of the school; Mr. Phillips, the contractor, and members of the staff of Carlow Vocational Schools.

"TO MEET THE PRIME MINISTER"

LADY LONDONDERRY'S RECEPTION

Lady Londonderry's eve-of-Parliament reception (a famous Eve-of-Parliament "At Home," which has not been held for two years) was revived last night at Londonderry House, Park Lane, London, when the Marchioness of Londonderry gave a reception to "meet the Prime Minister." Invitations were accepted by nearly two thousand guests. It took three-quarters of an hour to move from the cloakroom to the outstretched hand of the Prime Minister. From every direction a jostling, good-humoured throng converged upon the stairs. Happily, it was a cheery, informal occasion, everyone laughing and joking, and not minding if ten minutes were spent in struggling from one step to the next. After the reception was over many of the guests found difficulty in finding conveyances to take them home. Although taxi drivers converged on Londonderry House, there was still a shortage, and many bruided and uniformed figures departed on foot. Weary of waiting, one tried to get a "lift" in a Post Office mail van, but without success.

When the guests were arriving for the reception some of the sculpture was draped with unaccustomed warmth. Fur coats were flung over the shapely shoulders of Venus, and a top hat was perched on the Grecian brow of a Discus thrower.

NEW LUXURY LINER

CIRCASSIA'S TRIAL TRIP

MR. PHILIP RUNCIMAN ON RISING COSTS

From Our Special Representative.

LIVERPOOL, Monday.

The trial trip of the Anchor liner Circassia—the first of the new luxury ships on the company's Indian service—afforded us three days' of sunshine, ease and pleasure. She sailed from Glasgow to Liverpool. The guests were welcomed by the chairman of the company, Mr. Philip Runciman, and five other directors. Their enjoyment was enhanced at every turn by the perfection of the service and the excellence of the accommodation.

When the Circassia was steaming out of the Firth of Clyde on Saturday night strong winds and high seas were ahead of her, but in order that her guests might enjoy their dinner in ease, she turned about and steamed back into smooth water.

The twin-screw motor ship Circassia is a splendidly fitted and appointed vessel. The Anchor Line Company a long experience of the Indian passenger service and the technical skill of a famous Clyde shipyard have led to the adoption of every modern device contributing to perfection in operating, while in decoration and furnishing the company have aimed at, and reached, a degree of care and comfort that warrant the title of a luxury ship.

Designed for a sea speed of sixteen and a half knots, with ample reserve, her speed can be increased to enable the keeping of schedule time in all circumstances. The Circassia is of 11,800 tons gross register, 505 feet in length, 66 feet moulded breadth, and 35 feet 6 inches moulded depth to the upper deck side. In outward appearance she is graceful, thoroughly modern, and she pleasingly catches the eye, while at the same time seaworthiness and passenger comfort has been demonstrably the first consideration.

ACCOMMODATION

Three hundred and twenty-one first class passengers are provided for in the main upper bridge and boat decks. The majority of the staterooms are spacious single and two-berth rooms. To all berths natural lighting and fresh air are admitted by large ports or large windows. All staterooms on the boat deck, and several on the bridge deck amidships, have a private shower and toilet attached to each four.

Staterooms on the bridge deck are finished in polished wood panels. The others, which are also large and airy, are enamelled in white as bed and dressing rooms. Their furnishing is complete, and every comfort is afforded in the artificial lighting. There is hot and cold water in every stateroom, an air fan and electric radiator. The supreme importance of ventilation for the Indian service has been efficiently supplied.

The first, or sun, deck is open and devoted to sports, having a swimming pool at its after end. There is a well-equipped gymnasium on the boat deck, and a children's room, replete with wonderful mechanical toys. On the promenade deck are a cocktail bar, and a large and handsomely decorated and finely furnished lounge. The dining-room on the main deck is magnificent in space and appearance. Electric power is used throughout the vessel, while in case of emergency ample power for all essential services is generated by a heavy oil engine-driven dynamo.

The Circassian is driven by Diesel machinery.

After dinner on Saturday night, the toast of the Chairman having been honoured,

Mr. Philip Runciman, Chairman, said that they were going to do their utmost to provide a first-class service of their ships to Bombay and Karachi, and they were hoping to give a twenty days' service. They were going to improve the Britannia, and the Circassia and her sister ship, which was launched last week and would be commissioned in the spring, would make up that service. The Atlantic service would also be improved by speeding up the vessels and altering them so that they would be brought right up to date.

CO-OPERATION AND COSTS

Mr. Runciman then spoke of the co-operation of British ship owners. This, he said, was for the good of British shipping, and, possibly, in turn for the good of the shipping of the world. Everyone knew what the shipping world had gone through from 1930 until the middle of 1935. In the latter year the British Government had given tramp ship owners a subsidy, and as a result the Tramp Shipping Administrative Committee had been formed. Arising out of this, the British ship owners had agreed on a plan of co operation, which would be put into operation on January 1, 1938. The liner-owning companies had also agreed to co operate in the scheme, and were more than hopeful that the good that had accrued to British shipping since the middle of 1935 would be maintained.

He had heard that some foreign competitors were rather annoyed because they had not been consulted about this scheme. The reason for that fact was that the British had decided to take the lead. In other words, for the first time in years Britain was leading, and he was hoping that, arising out of the scheme, they would eventually achieve international co-operation among shipowners. If that could be brought about the British shipowner would once again have done his bit.

Rising costs, he said, could not be controlled. It would not be merely a case of food costing more, but passages also would cost more. That was inevitable.

The Circassia will begin her first voyage to India on Thursday, October 28th next.

Frederick Coster (21), a British sailor, has died in hospital at Antwerp from severe wounds which he sustained in an affray at a restaurant. His brother, Charles Coster (29), is in hospital also, but his condition is not serious.

LORD MAYOR FOR TENTH TIME

RECORD IN CIVIC LIFE

SIR CRAWFORD M'CULLAGH'S ACHIEVEMENT

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Monday.

Sir Crawford M'Cullagh, Bart., D.L., was re-elected Lord Mayor of Belfast for the tenth time to-day. It is the seventh consecutive year that Sir Crawford will occupy the mayoral chair, and he is the first Lord Mayor to be elected for the tenth time.

The re-election of Sir Crawford was recommended by the General Purposes Committee, and the recommendation was confirmed on the motion of the Deputy Lord Mayor (Alderman Black), seconded by Alderman Macartney.

Supporting the proposal, Alderman Byrne (Nationalist) said that no Lord Mayor and no Lady Mayoress had served the citizens better than Sir Crawford and Lady M'Cullagh.

Alderman M'Curdy (Labour) said that the poor of Belfast were proud of the Lord Mayor.

The motion was passed with acclamation.

The Lord Mayor, returning thanks, said that he had received nothing but kindness and courtesy from every member of the Corporation, and every assistance from all the officials. "My wife," he said, "also has done her part as well as she could (applause), and has the sincere interest of the city and citizens at heart."

In a review of the past year, the Lord Mayor said that it had been a remarkable one. He thought that they could claim that they were more prosperous. They had been free from riots or civil commotion, and they were sincerely thankful for that, and hoped that state of affairs would long continue.

GREAT RESPONSIBILITIES

Sir Crawford then referred to the Coronation, and the visit of the King and Queen to Belfast, and the visit of the British Medical Association. "We have great responsibilities, and we should, each and all, do our part to serve the city as best we can," he concluded, "and, above all, give serious consideration to all matters that involve expenditure and the well-being of the citizens, and do what is right as a Corporation."

Alderman Sir Thomas McConnell, as retiring High Sheriff, was appointed Deputy Lord Mayor for the coming term, while the name of Councillor Thomas L. Cole was placed first on the list for the position of High Sheriff

LORD MAYOR AS HOST

After his installation Sir Crawford McCullagh entertained a large company to luncheon in the City Hall.

Many congratulatory speeches were made, and the Lord Mayor, responding, disclosed that it was entirely due to his wife that he was there that day.

"I have held the office of Lord Mayor for many years," he said, "and I want to tell you that I had definitely made up my mind to retire from public life at the election which is just over.

"Talking it over with my wife at home, she said: 'I don't think it would be fair to your friends. If they want you, and are unanimous about it I think you ought to carry on to the end of the term.'" (Applause.)

TRAPPED IN IRISH COAL MINE

WALLS CAVE IN ON WORKER

From Our Correspondent.

THURLES, Monday.

While working in a coal mine shaft on lands of a farmer, James Kennedy, Slieveardagh, County Tipperary, Patrick Ivers (45), unmarried, was, as a result of the sides of a shaft caving in, buried under about ten tons of earth.

Ivers was endeavouring to locate coal, and was assisted by a man named Gleeson, who, with a hand windlass at the top of the shaft, was taking up earth in a bucket when the accident occurred.

Local police and a large number of civilians have been endeavouring for some time to recover the body.

ELIXIR BLAMED FOR 36 DEATHS

SEARCH FOR 700 BOTTLES

"Times" Foreign Special.

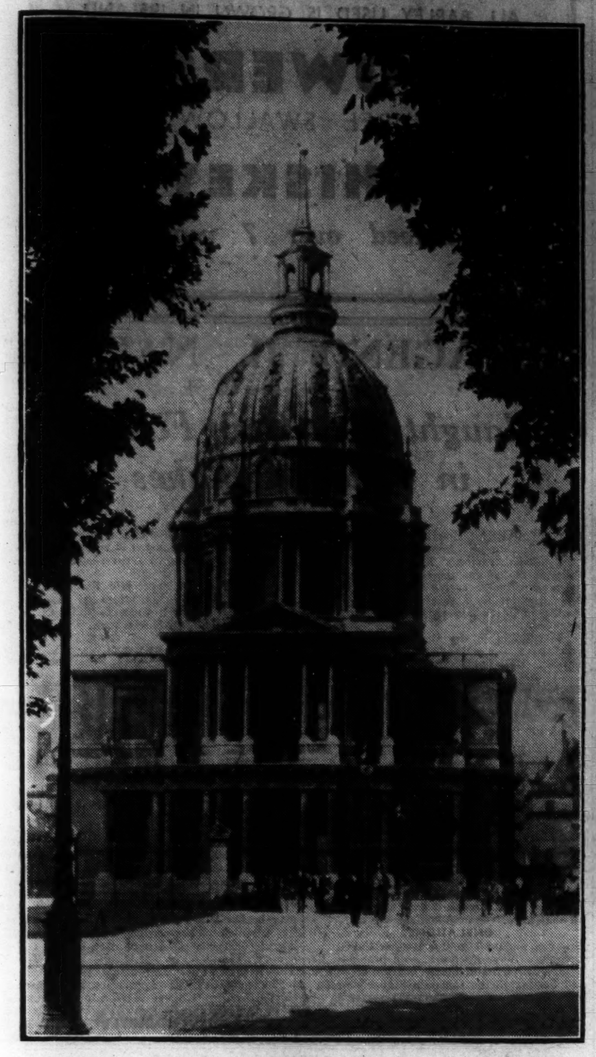

NEW YORK, Monday.

Elixir of sulfanilamide, the new medicine for use in cases of streptococcus, hemingitis, and other diseases, has now, it is stated, been the cause of 36 "verified" deaths. Since the dangers attendant upon its use were disclosed by the American Medical Association, telegrams and trunk calls from anxious physicians and patients have been coming into the Association's headquarters at Chicago at the rate of one every five minutes.

The manufacturer of the elixir, which is a proprietary article, has made every effort to recall large consignments of the medicine which had gone to various parts of the country. To-day, as far as is known, 700 bottles are unaccounted for, and these are being sought by State and Federal agents in country districts.

A thousand hammers in your head?

THE ROOT OF YOUR TROUBLE IS— worn out NERVES

DAILY SANATOGEN WILL RESTORE THEM

"During the summer I was suffering from Neurasthenia, brought on partly through worry but principally through Prostatitis. I immediately had all my teeth out and on the doctor's suggestion started taking Sanatogen twice daily. Now I think I am feeling better than I have ever felt in my life." Mr. W. S., of Blackpool.

"I began to take Sanatogen about five years ago for my nerves, which were in a terrible state. I was a real nervous wreck, but after starting to take Sanatogen I became calm, began to sleep well and recovered my ordinary frame of mind. I was completely cured from almost insanity." Mrs. M. B., of Co. Durham.

"My daughter, aged 12 years, started with nerve trouble. She was troubled with sickness, sleeplessness and terrible fears. I started to give her Sanatogen, and I can say a marked improvement . . . Sanatogen must be a wonderful tonic." Mrs. E. Toone, Leicestershire.

When hammers seem to beat within your head, when you jump at the slightest sound, fail to concentrate on your work, lay awake at night worrying—blame your nerves. But do more—set to work at once to restore them to vigorous, full health and strength by taking daily Sanatogen. Sanatogen rebuilds worn-out nerves; it puts new rich blood into your arteries; supplies the extra mental and physical energy that the strain of modern life demands Sanatogen is the most highly concentrated—and easily digested—of all health foods. Ideal for children, invalids and convalescents!

58% More energy after 14 days.

Extensive tests carried out by doctors on a group of workers showed that normally only 8% of their energy remained at the end of each day's work. After only a fortnight's course of Sanatogen a hard day's work left them with 66% of their energy unused.

Sanatogen is a food, not a stimulant—its effects are as permanent as the blood in your body.

Live up to life-with daily

BUILDING TRADE JOINT COUNCIL

NEW BODY TO HAVE A PERMANENT OFFICE

There was a conference at 60 Dawson street, Dublin, yesterday between representatives of the Building Trades Group and of the Saorstat Eireann Federation of Building Trades Employers on the question of setting up the Dublin Area Joint Council for the industry. It is understood that the parties are preparing a system of conciliation machinery to deal with any disputes which may arise in the building trade in future.

As far as can be gathered, the new Council will differ from the other Industrial Councils which have been established up to the present in so far that it will have an office of its own, and an official or officials to deal with matters which may arise. One of the complaints against the conciliation machinery which exists in other industries is that there is considerable delay before disputes are dealt with. The proposals which have been put forward for the building industry would eliminate many such delays.

It is expected that a number of meetings between the parties will be required before the final scheme is ready. The first Council to be set up will be a temporary body. It will be replaced by a permanent body within four months from the date on which the resumption of work took place.

Representatives of the Building Trades Group also met the City Manager yesterday in connection with the retrospective payment of wage increases to Corporation workers. This discussion, which was for the purpose of clearing up some points which arose in connection with the previous negotiations, was described by a union representative as being "entirely satisfactory."

Payment has already been made by a number of public bodies and private employers to men entitled to receive the increases retrospectively.

The Plumbers', Glaziers' and Domestic Engineers' Union continued to picket a number of premises yesterday.

Fines of 5s. with 5s. costs on each of nine summonses were imposed on John Smith, Ann street, Belfast, prosecuted for failing to pay health, pensions and unemployment insurance contributions of an employé and failing to return the cards and books to two employés. Defendant was allowed five months to pay £34 3s. 7d. arrears.

INFLUENCE OF RAIN

Changes in the Betting Market: The Manton Problem

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

LONDON, Monday Night.

AN enormous quantity of rain has fallen in the last forty-eight hours, is still falling, and, according to the weather prophets, will continue to fall. There was so little moisture in the ground following the long drought that it will take a great deal to make the going soft, but at the call-over on the card on the Cesarewitch to-day they betted as if the going will be on the easy side, even if it is not altogether soft on Wednesday.

There were some sharp oscillations in the market at the call-over. Thus Near Relation, a horse that has always liked it firm, was knocked out to 100 to 7. Epigram lost his place as clear favourite, and Maranta was restored to his old place at the top of the market, 100 to 9 being the best offer at the close.

As his stable companion, Weathervane, who won the Ebor Handicap when it was firm, was on offer at 35 to 1, we can take it that the problem set by Sir Abe Bailey's big entry has been solved according to the estimate of his connections, and that Maranta is the one from the Manton stable that is most fancied.

Contrary Results

Still the records show that sometimes it is the less fancied of two runners from this establishment that wins. Only a few weeks ago, in the Newbury Cup, we had Earthstopper favourite and Severino a 20 to 1 chance. Severino ran a dead-heat with Dytchley, and Sir Abe Bailey's other runner was unplaced.

Epigram finished up in the market at the same price as Maranta, but if it is soft on Wednesday he may drift in the market. His good performance in winning the Goodwood Stakes was accomplished when it was very firm.

The rapid advance in to-day's betting was made by Nightcap III., narrowly beaten two years ago by Near Relation. Dines has broadcast the opinion that if rain came he would bring off the double event, the first part of which he has already accomplished with Artist's Prince.

Easy Going Would Favour

At the same price—13 to 1—Solar Bear was backed again. Easy going will be all in his favour, and the circumstance that his trainer, Gilbert Bennett, has never won a race at Newmarket has nothing to do with the case.

Near Relation was easy at 100 to 7 and Punch came to 100 to 6. It is not unlikely that with soft going on the day this horse will come to a short price. All his good performances were accomplished in the spring when the ground was soft.

Last year's winner, Fet, was supported at the same price as Punch. Buckleigh was steady at his former price, and the French horse, Harewood, left off at twenties offered after 22 to 1 had been taken.

Idaho's Claims

One that can be fancied, Idaho, was at 25 to 1. His claims are passable. I should say he ran as well in the Grand Prix as Maranta did in the St. Leger, and that the Paris form with Clairvoyant and Donatello may have been better than the Doncaster form.

Furthermore, Maranta has to give Mr. Macomber's colt 5lb. If Donatello and Chulmleigh ran together I know which would be favourite, and it would not be the St. Leger winner.

Mr. Macomber, by the way, has found the Cesarewitch a lucky race, which he has won twice in three years with Rose Prince and Forsetti.

Prominent Light-weight

One supported a little at 33 to 1, Muscovado, has a chance. He is one of those lightly-weighted animals that often beat better animals in this race, and his record in middle-class races this season is a good and consistent one.

His last win was in the Nottingham Handicap in October. In that race Fet gave him 6lb. and did not finish in the first three. On Wednesday Fet has to give him 9lb.

There was a whole batch of horses quoted at 40 to 1 and over, but none of them seem to matter much, though the Beckhampton filly, Titlark, winner of a two-mile race at Chepstow, quoted at 55 to 1, is not unfavourably spoken of.

Altogether, there has been some wonderful betting over this season's Cesarewitch—the best we have known for years. For instance, to-day Maranta and Epigram were each backed to win £26,000, Epigram to win £22,000, and Solar Bear to win £16,000. I should not be surprised if the last-named is not the worst horse in a number of books. The horses quoted were supported to win in the aggregate in the neighbourhood of a quarter of a million pounds.

Selections

Fields when the Houghton Meeting opens to-morrow will not be large in several cases. Some of the two-year-olds in the Criterion Stakes wait for engagements later in the week, but if RAMTAPA goes here instead of in the Dewhurst he should win. If, as is more likely, he waits for the Thursday event, then the best might be ONSLAUGHT.

Monument may run for the Limekiln Stakes, but I would only choose him to win in the absence of FAIR COPY.

The Old Nursery Stakes may be won by PAPPAGENO II.

PAPPAGENO II. NAPPED

Onslaught May Gain First Win in Criterion Stakes

NEWMARKET Houghton Meeting, which opens to-day, marks the end of the season's racing at headquarters. The Criterion Stakes and the Limekiln Stakes are the most valuable events at the first stage, and although both races will take only a small field to the post they should prove full of interest.

The running in the Criterion Stakes may even have some bearing on next year's classics. Onslaught is to run in this event, and I consider him the best bet on the card. He has occupied the runner-up position in both his races to date, but on each occasion he has been beaten by something a little above the ordinary.

He was confidently expected to open his winning account at Goodwood, but ran up against the smart Scottish Union and had to admit defeat by a head. Earlier he tried to make a race of it with Mirza II., but was three lengths behind the Aga Khan's "flying" youngster at the judge's box. Silver Spear II. finished third on that occasion, beaten a neck. He cannot have much chance of turning the tables on Onslaught now, as he meets him on worse terms.

Golden Eagle finished a creditable second to Glen Loan in the Imperial Produce Stakes at Kempton Park, and must have a good chance on that form. Only in the absence of however, should I go for Golden Eagle.

Captain Boyd-Rochfort will probably be represented by Monument instead of Flares and Perifox in the Limekiln Stakes. Monument should run well, though I prefer FAIR COPY.

Fair Copy failed by a neck and a head only to beat Solfo and Flares at the previous meeting held here. He started a warm favourite then, so will be out to recover some of the losses.

Rippon Tor will appreciate the improved going. Considering how firm it was at Kempton he did well there to finish sixth, under top-weight, to Noble Turk.

I expect

to gain his third successive victory by taking the Old Nursery Stakes. M. Hartigan's charge gave Portefeuille 3lb. and a length and a half beating here a fortnight ago. Portefeuille gets an additional 4lb. now, but I do not think it will be sufficient to enable him to turn the tables.

Brigadore is fancied to step up on his third to Dubonnet and Melanin at Leicester, while Aphrodisia and Buttress gelding are likely to make their presence felt. I make a confident selection of Pappageno II.

FIRST CAST

has an attractive appearance in the Fordham Welter Handicap. He meets Ballywellbroke on 10lb. better terms than at the previous fixture, when he was beaten two and a quarter lengths.

EVENING MIST

may be the best of a rather moderate lot in the Maiden Two-year-old Stakes. Nightingall's charge made a bold show behind the speedy Tamasha at Sandown Park. The Yankee may be the only danger here.

The finish of the Apprentice Plate may chiefly concern Golden Martlet and Parole. A slight preference is for GOLDEN MARTLET.

NEWMARKET NOTES

French Cesarewitch Candidates on View: Hints for To-day

NEWMARKET, Monday.

PROVIDING we get no further rain, the going Across the Flat this week will be perfect. Captain Whitaker was the first to commence training operations on the Racecourse side to-day. After White Swan (S. Middleton) had covered five furlongs at half-speed by himself, Welltaken, R.D. and Crabhole covered the same distance at a good pace. It did not escape my notice how well Welltaken ran behind America in a close finish for the October Nursery at the First October fixture, after not having the best of luck at the start. She had shaped so well in gallops since that she will have to be taken into consideration for the Richmond Nursery on Thursday.

Another member of this team of whom the best has not been seen is Golden Shore, who, with Middleton in the saddle, was much too good for Irish Butter in a good stripped gallop over seven furlongs. His previous form may not amount to much, but I shall not overlook his chance in the Ditch Mile Handicap on Friday. Tout Change and Gothic (T. Harvey) strode out freely in a good pace gallop over nine furlongs. They also will probably gain winning brackets before the season ends. Both are engaged in the Rutland Handicap on Thursday, and it is most likely that Tout Change will do duty for the stable, leaving Gothic to contest the Final Stakes on the following day.

Frank Butters sent his Cesarewitch Stakes charge, Near Relation, with Noble King (C. Dickens), seven furlongs at half-speed. He moved freely and well, and I still hold the opinion that whatever beats him on Wednesday is likely to be returned the winner. Bene Vobis, with Goudea, covered the same distance at a useful rate. Dardanelles II., Forough and Radiant traversed six furlongs at half-speed. Delphi, Praxitheles II., Inspiration and Sidley Dee went five furlongs at a similar rate.

D. Waugh gave Reredos (R. Perryman) a good stripped gallop over one mile with Poma Rosa and Otero (H. Blackshaw). They were accompanied by Nanine for the first five furlongs. Reredos, who went well, is engaged in the Vyner Handicap at Hurst Park on Saturday.

Although the Limekilns were closed, the majority of our Cesarewitch candidates were working on the Bury side. Among them was Captain Boyd-Rochfort's Dytchley, who, with Monument, Flares and Perifox, covered six furlongs at half-speed.

Beatty's two candidates, Idaho and Spartan III., covered five furlongs at a nice pace with Salacia, Mansur, Discord and La Sansugere.

Captain Hogg's Buckleigh, bearing a thoroughly trained appearance, was restricted to cantering exercise with others of the team.

Ted Leader's Tote Investor and African Lily went a mile at a useful rate, and Walters's Muscovado cantered.

It was not until after the home trainers had finished exercising their teams that the two French candidates, Organeau and Castanelle, came on to the Heath. After the usual preliminary canter, they were sent together one mile and a quarter at half-speed. Organeau is a strongly-built chestnut gelding, who makes more appeal as the Cesarewitch type than the filly Castanelle, who is rather on the small side. Both stretched out freely. P. Evans rode Castanelle.

We can expect the usual good fields in the majority of the events to be decided here to-morrow. I do not intend to beat about the bush concerning the Apprentices' Plate, and in taking the two top weights, Madeira Knight and as our best, I give slight preference to the last-named, who, probably, will be ridden by S. Clayton.

As far as we are concerned the Criterion Stakes rests between and Onslaught, although there is some doubt as to whether Lord Derby's colt will be saddled. Recent gallops have shown Onslaught in a more favourable light, and I am still of opinion that he will be a much better colt next season.

I am quite content to take The Yankee and against our others in the Maiden Two Years Old Stakes. Both have improved considerably since they ran behind River Prince here last month. Barling's charge has been particularly impressive in recent gallops, and I give her a confident vote.

Monument probably will represent Boyd-Rochfort's stable in the Limekilns Stakes, and, according to present intentions, Mansur and Fair Copy will help to make up the field. This is about the ideal distance of both Fair Copy and Monument, although they have been running over longer courses of late. I should not oppose Fair Copy but for the fact that I rather think that he has returned to the unwilling disposition he showed earlier in the season, and would rather depend on the more genuine who can be depended upon to give of his best in a hard struggle.

San Miguel is the best-class youngster in the Old Nursery Stakes, and he is greatly fancied to concede the weight successfully to his rivals. Aphrosisia stays well, and is sure to give a good account of herself, whilst Inspiration is fancied to improve on his running behind Linn of Dee in a similar event at the First October meeting. Buttress gelding, an ex-selling plater, may be thereabouts, but I am expecting to prove our best and win.

Our runners in the Fordham Welter will be Ballywellbroke, Kinderscout, Gay Venture, and First Cast. The first-named, who won the Exning Welter at the last meeting, had Kinderscout and First Cast behind her on that occasion. First Cast was third, just over two lengths behind, but Kinderscout was not seen with a chance. They are both allowed 10lb. for the beating from Adams's charge. While this should enable First Cast to make a closer race of it, I am again recommending the support of who won with more in hand than the official verdict would indicate.

SPORTING GOSSIP

Beckhampton Runners at Newmarket

Fred Darling, the Beckhampton trainer, will have five runners at Newmarket this week. They are:— To-day — Ullswater (Maiden Two Years Old Stakes). Wednesday —Ryswick (Dalham Stakes), Titlark (Cesarewitch). Thursday—War Time (Cowlinge Selling Plate), Huxley (Rutland Handicap).

Ramtapa to Run on Thursday

Sir Abe Bailey's two years old, Ramtapa, will not run in the Criterion Stakes at Newmarket to-day. He is in reserve for the Dewhurst Stakes on Thursday.

Rhodes Scholar and Mid-day Sun

Lord Astor's Rhodes Scholar is a probable runner at Newmarket this week in the Champion Stakes, for which also the Derby winner, Midday Sun, is to run. Rhodes Scholar won the Ribblesdale Stakes at Ascot in June, and was an odds-on chance for the Eclipse Stakes, in which he finished fifth.

Jockeys' Engagements

H. Blackshaw will ride at Thirsk on Friday and at Hurst Park on Saturday. W. Sibbritt leaves for India on Wednesday.

THE CESAREWITCH

Field and Form for Big Event at Newmarket To-morrow

THE only scratching from the Cesarewitch, which is to be run to-morrow at Newmarket, over two and a quarter miles, was that of Tapageur, whose removal leaves his owner, Mr. H. Blundell, and trainer, Captain Percy Whitaker, without a representative in the race.

Present intentions are that Sir Abe Bailey's Weathervane, winner of the Ebor Handicap, will run her last race in the Cesarewitch. She will then be retired to the stud, and may visit Portlaw.

The much-fancied French horse, Harewood, arrived at Newmarket yesterday, after a very rough Channel crossing. He is quartered at the Links stables.

A. Fitton has been engaged to ride Empire Son.

HEAVY WAGERING AT CALL-OVER

MARANTA AND EPIGRAM JOINT FAVOURITES

Sir Abe Bailey's Maranta and Mr. J. V. Rank's Epigram were coupled as favourites at 100 to 9 for the Cesarewitch when the card was called over at the Victoria Club, London, yesterday. The volume of business was the heaviest for many years, and nearly a quarter of a million pounds was involved in the transactions.

Maranta was in most demand, and was supported to win £26,000 at 100 to 9, while, at the same odds, Epigram was backed to win £22,000. Maranta's stable companion, Weathervane, was backed at 35 to 1 to win £10,500, and Nightcap III., back into favour now that the rain has come in time for him, was the medium of support to win £24,000.

Solar Bear was noticed to win £16,000, last year's winner, Fet, £15,000, Faites Vos Jeux £15,000, Punch £14,500, Buckleigh £12,500, Miss Windsor £10,500, Near Relation £10,000, Harewood £9,000, Muscovado £7,500, Dytchley £7,000, and African Lily and Idaho £6,000 each. The others dealt with were supported to win a few thousands each at their quoted rates. Prices:—

CRICKET

WYATT RELIEVED OF WARWICK CAPTAINCY

Warwickshire County Cricket Club yesterday decided to relieve R. E. S. Wyatt, the England cricketer, of his position as captain, and in his place appointed Peter Cranmer, the England Rugby international. The General Committee issued the following statement: "On a report from the Executive Committee this recommendation was made and adopted: 'That whilst appreciating the services of Mr. R. E. S. Wyatt as captain of the club for eight years, the Executive Committee, after careful consideration, unanimously decided to recommend, in the best interests of the club, a change be made in the captaincy, and that Mr. Peter Cranmer be invited to accept the position for 1938.' "

Cranmer has accepted the invitation. Interviewed later Wyatt said that he was not prepared to say anything about the decision.

HUNTING

OPENING MEETS

NORTH KILDARE HARRIERS

The North Kildare Harriers yesterday held their opening meet at Lady Chapel, near Straffan, where quite a representative attendance, in spite of a steady downpour of rain, assembled to meet Mrs. A. H. Connell, the popular Master, in command for the seventh season in succession. There is no change in this hunt to report. Major J. Hume-Dudgeon is again hon. huntsman, and T. Desmond whip. Mrs. A. H. Connell is also Joint Master of the Meath Hounds with Major Shirley, and is the only woman to be Master of two packs in Ireland. In this district hares are as numerous as in other years, so that the outlook for the coming season is all that can be desired

In spite of unpleasant weather conditions, a good day's sport was enjoyed. Hounds first drew Coenstown, where a hare was soon found, which gave several nice rings round Coenstown, through Smithstown, Bryanstown, and on towards Newtown-Mountcabe and back towards Lady Chapel. By now it was pouring torrential rain, and, as everyone was thoroughly wet, hounds went home.

Among those present were:—Sir Francis Brooke and Lady Brooke, Miss Alma Brooke, Captain G. Cameron, Mrs. A. H. Connell, M.F.H. and M.H.; Major J. Hume-Dudgeon, Miss J. Bloomfield, Mr. John Shackleton, Miss Kitty Shackleton, Miss C. Shackleton, Mr. George Shackleton, Mrs. C. Evans, Miss E. Freeman, Captain G. Angel and Mrs. G. Angel, Captain R. Fanshawe, Mrs. B. C. Goodbody, Mr. P. Connolly, Miss Hilda Ball, Mr. Hugh Jellett and Mrs. Hugh Jellett, Mrs. J. Shackleton, Mr. A. Kinahane, Mr. E. Fraser, Miss I. Mills, Captain R. Bailey and Mrs. R. Bailey, Mr. G. McKenna, Mr. P. Dempsey.

COUNTY GALWAY HOUNDS

The County Galway Hounds ("The Blazers") held their opening meet at Athenry yesterday. After Ballydavid and Fahy's had been drawn blank, a fox was found at Castle Ellen, and gave a fine run over good hunting country before hounds were called off early owing to the unfavourable weather.

Among those present were:—Mr. Bowes Daly and Major M. Carr, Joint Masters; Mr. D. Brown, Major Darcy, Mrs. Darcy, Miss Darcy, Mr. H. Smith, Mr. J. Smith, Mrs. Smith, Mr. E. J. B. Concannon, Dr. A. D. DISAPPOINTING FIGHT

Injury to Hyams Causes Stoppage McAvoy Not Convincing

JOCK McAVOY, Britain's only dual champion, retained his middle-weight title by defeating Jack Hyams, of London, at Belle Vue, Manchester, last night. Mr. Eugene Henderson, the referee, intervened to stop one of the dullest British championship fights of recent years at the end of the eleventh round owing to Hyams' badly injured left eye.

A right-hand punch—the best of the fight—had opened a cut high on the cheek bone in the sixth round and, from ensuing punishment, the bruise under Hyams' eye gradually became bigger until the eye was closed. To all intents and purposes the Londoner was blind on one side. McAvoy, who also holds the British cruiser-weight title, showed little of his true form. He could make nothing of Hyams' quick methods, and up to the fifth round he did not land a really damaging punch.

The first five rounds were so dull that the crowd of 7,000 went wild with excitement when McAvoy, letting loose a two-hander attack, dazed Hyams in the sixth round and opened the cut which eventually meant victory to him.

Occasionally after this there were glimpses of the real McAvoy, but his attacks died out quickly. Hyams, who has had nearly ten years' experience in the ring, and yet was appearing in only his first British championship fight boxed brainily and revealed deficiencies in the champion's make-up. The Londoner, for three parts of the contest, was on the defensive, skipping around the ring on his toes and preventing McAvoy landing from close range.

Now and again Hyams came out of his shell to launch an offensive, and he had the better of one or two rounds. In fact, apart from the sixth, McAvoy could only claim a fractional advantage in those rounds he won, and, although he was definitely ahead on points throughout, the margin was not great.

It was McAvoy's first fight since he received a severe neck injury some months ago. There is no doubt that the task involved in getting down to the middle-weight limit impairs his punching, and it seems as though it would be more profitable to him to concentrate in future on the cruiser-weight class. This was only the third time since he won the title four years ago that he had defended the middle-weight championship. One Lonadale belt he has made his own property, and last night he was presented with another by Dr. Marlin, the man who treated him for his neck injury, and who, McAvoy declares, made it possible for him to fight again.

ROUND BY ROUND DESCRIPTION

ROUND ONE.

There was a crowd of seven thousand.

Hyams was the first to launch an attack with his left. The champion kept well out of distance, and the only action in the next minute consisted of two clinches. The exchanges were particularly tame, Hyams backstepping, and McEvoy going after him without doing anything. The end of the round was almost reached before McAvoy tried a lead.

ROUND TWO.

Hyams, after more back-stepping, jumped in suddenly with his right aiming for McEvoy's jaw, but the champion just moved his head. The challenger, for the most part, was skipping lightly around the ring with the result that a punch of any note was a rarity. McEvoy did clip the Londoner on the jaw with his right, but Hyams showed only momentary discomfort. Hyams again broke out with a sudden attack, but it came to nought.

ROUND THREE.

McAvoy landed a left hook at long range, and then when Hyams came to him he hit again to the body, and followed with a right cross. The most conspicuous feature of the fight so far had been the speedy retreating of Hyams, and this carried him out of trouble. McEvoy looked like becoming dangerous when he had the Londoner on the ropes in a neutral corner. Hyams next made McEvoy miss badly, and jumped in himself with a left jab. The exchanges, however, were dull and uninteresting.

ROUND FOUR.

Hyams circled the ring twice before McEvoy landed a blow. The Londoner was good at covering up in the clinches, and most of McEvoy's blows landed only on the arms. McEvoy three times tried to force an opening for a right, but Hyams was quick on the counter and kept the champion at bay by coming out of his defensive shell to fight his way out of a corner.

ROUND FIVE.

Fully a minute was occupied in sparring and clinching before Hyams let loose a right to the head, which sent the champion back to the ropes. This seemed to bring more fire out of McAvoy, for he twice attacked his rival in quick succession about the head, but Hyams covered up so well that no damage was done. Hyams's attacks were spasmodic, but he seemed to choose his movements particularly well, for in one of them he clipped McAvoy soundly on the chin with a left hook.

ROUND SIX.

McAvoy followed up a left lead with a right to the jaw. He repeated the move, and this time opened a cut under Hyams's left eye. The Londoner came out of the skirmish with blood streaming down the side of his face, and he was given little chance to make a recovery. McAvoy increased his speed, and, getting Hyams into a corner, dealt out heavy body punishment. McAvoy maintained a fast pace, and at this stage Hyams was on the defensive, fighting desperately to keep the champion away.

ROUND SEVEN.

During the interval the referee examined the injury to Hyams's face. The cut was heavily plastered when the challenger came out from his corner. It was Hyams who made the first attempt to score in this round, twice making two-handed attacks to the head, the second time missing badly with the left. McAvoy beat down a left-hand lead, and bringing over a right scored to the side of the head. Again the champion beat Hyams to the punch, and had the better of some inside work.

ROUND EIGHT.

Soon after the start of the round the referee parted the men and warned McAvoy for holding and punching at the same time. Hyams continued to protect his injured eye exceedingly well, covering up in face of McAvoy's right. He had a lump nearly the size of an egg. McAvoy tried again to do the forcing, but most of his leads ended in a clinch in which Hyams was content to rely upon his defensive abilities.

ROUND NINE.

Hyams' left eye was gradually closing, and he took a punch there as they met in the centre of the ring. The Londoner was proving himself remarkably fit, and he landed a straight left to McAvoy's jaw, followed quickly with an overarm right. After backing away for a time McAvoy came back to the attack, but his right was wide and was merely a waste of energy. Hyams again retaliated and had McAvoy backing to the ropes.

ROUND TEN.

A tedious bout of clinching ended in Hyams landing a left hook lightly on the side of the head, and more clinching followed. Again Hyams hooked McAvoy with a left, but fighting was spasmodic. McAvoy, after taking more lefts to the face, uppercut Hyams, but he was again backing away from the Londoner's straight left when the bell sounded.

ROUND ELEVEN.

Hyams presented a continual problem for McAvoy, who was not proving himself a great champion by this performance, but he showed glimpses of what he can do when landing two stiff uppercuts and shaking Hyams. Following up his advantage, the champion got more blows on to Hyams' injured eye, and only just missed with another uppercut, which would have probably ended the fight had it landed. McAvoy continued to attack strongly and easily had the better of matters.

The referee stopped the fight at the end of the round owing to Hyams' injured left eye, and awarded the fight to McAvoy.

DOM LYDON

WINS THIRD FIGHT IN WEEK: ANOTHER EASY VICTORY

Taking part in his second fight on successive days, and his third in a week, Dom Lydon, the Irish heavy-weight, beat Tommy Allen (Leicester), the referee stopping the fight in the last of a six rounds contest, at the National Sporting Club, London, last night. At the finish Allen was given a fine reception for his pluck. He was floored five times—twice for counts of nine, twice for eight and once for three, and was also sent almost through the ropes in the last round just before the referee intervened.

Len Beynon (Swansea), Welsh feather-weight champion, beat Jackie Hurst (St. George's) on points over ten rounds; Billy Charlton (Gateshead) beat Harry Edwards (Smethwick) on points over ten rounds, and Jack Carrick (Hull) beat Johnny Finnerty (Glasgow) on points over ten rounds.

Pat Marrinan (Belfast) will meet George Markwick in one of the supporting contests at Harringay tournament on November 3.

RUGBY FOOTBALL

WEAKENED U.C.C. XV. DEFEATED

SUPERIOR LIVERPOOL THREE-QUARTERS

LIVERPOOL UNIV. 17 U.C.C. 3

University College, Cork, sustained their first defeat of the season at Liverpool yesterday, when they were beaten by Liverpool University by 1 goal 1 penalty goal and 5 tries to 1 penalty goal. U.C.C. had to field five reserves, deputising for such stalwarts as O'Brien, Buckner, Tierney, Maloney, and Lane. The visitors, however, made a good fight, the forwards, and Attwood and O'Driscoll at half-back, working keenly for them; while Greaney accomplished some clever things at full-back.

Liverpool's superiority was most marked at three-quarter, their line being composed of four first class players at the top of their form, handling accurately, passing with judgment, and showing a fine turn of speed. On the other hand, the visitors' "threes" possessed little combination for attack, and when one did get away on occasion he was given inadequate support. The chief shortcomings of the Irishmen were lack of pace and faulty handling.

Collins opened the visitors' score with a penalty goal. Watts equalised with a penalty goal, and Guest gave Liverpool an interval lead of three points. Kinnemonth, Guest and Pennell added further tries, Watts improving one.

THE IRISH ANNUAL

REVIEW OF LAST SEASON'S DEEDS

The Irish Rugby Annual has again made its welcome appearance, with the deeds of last season all set out. It deserves support, as such an important and widespread game needs a yearly record, but it is all too brief. Apart from the statistics, the reading matter is interesting, comprising, as it does, a review of the last matches between Ireland and the other three countries, an article on his international experiences both in Great Britain and South Africa by M. J. Bradley, one of the great forwards of the 1920's; and Mr. "Mossie" Landers on the game in Munster in the old days. The four men chosen for special biographies are F. G. Morau, R. Alexander, G. E. Cromey and R. B. Mayne.

Could we not, however, have short descriptions of the trial and interprovincial games? They are almost as interesting as the international matches, while a short review of each senior club would be most welcome, too. Possibly these pleasures may be in store for us in the future.

PORTORA V. ST. COLUMBA'S COLLEGE

Played at Portora on Saturday. In the first half St. Columba's had a strong wind behind them, and just before half-time their captain dropped a goal.

In the second half Portora had much the better of the play, and tries were scored by Milligan, Paskell, Begley and Nixon. Milligan converted once and kicked a penalty goal.

Final score—Portora, 1 goal 1 penalty goal 3 tries (17 points); St. Columba's College, 1 dropped goal (4 points).

THE LOSS OF ELM PARK

Close Championships Should be Held at Woodbrook

BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

NO official announcement has so far been made as to the result of deliberations with reference to obtaining a further period of tenure of the old headquarters of the Badminton Union of Ireland at Elm Park. It is to be feared, however, that nothing in this way can be effected, as the possibility of the scheme was understood to depend on retaining the lettings which existed to various clubs last season.

Apparently the announcement of the chance of retaining Elm Park came too late, and several of the clubs interested had already made arrangements for new quarters, which could not be broken. As I mentioned last week, Sandford have fixed up for two nights a week at Woodbrook, having taken over the engagements in this respect of the Bray Club, which has disbanded. Pembroke have also fixed up to play at Woodbrook, and Ailesbury are another club that has made other provision.

AILESBURY WELL SUITED

Ailesbury have arranged to play in the Men's Institute at Dun Laoghaire on Mondays and Thursdays from 7 p.m. to 10.30 p.m. The hall is spacious and convenient, and members are lucky to find themselves so well provided for. Sandford, Pembroke, and Ailesbury were the three chief tenants at Elm Park, and, as they will not be available, it seems to me unlikely that the Badminton Union will be able to make sufficient lettings to justify the retention of that hall.

It is a great pity the opportunity did not turn up sooner, for the loss of Elm Park will undoubtedly deprive the Dublin season of some interesting features, and even on the most optimistic view it will be a considerable time before a new one can be made available. An immediate question which arises is—What will happen about the Irish Close Championship tournament?

A MISTAKEN POLICY

According to a rumour, which comes from a usually well-informed source, the present idea is to drop the tournament for this year at any rate. That seems to be a pity. It was done before after the Elm Park Hall was destroyed by storm, and the meeting took several years to climb back into popularity. Last season it appeared at length to have been put on a sound basis once more, but if it is dropped this year things will be as bad as ever.

Several people have suggested that the tournament could be run all right at Woodbrook. Unfortunately, the meeting has not been well patronised from the North, and as a general rule there have been few entries from the South. As the entry is almost entirely from Dublin, the chance of success at Woodbrook would, therefore, be greater, as that venue is well known to local players, and if at all possible the Council ought to have a shot at it.

DUNDALK OFFICIALS

The Dundalk Badminton League, one of the most flourishing organisations in Ireland, held its annual general meeting recently, when the following officers were elected for the coming season:—President, Major G. Knaggs; Vice-Chairman, Mr. T. Phehan; Hon. Treasurer, Mr. E. Grimson; Hon. Secretary, Mr. Malachy Martin, St. Leonards, Chapel street, Dundalk; committee—the officers with Messrs. T. V. Oakley, J. Moore, T. Craig and P. Finnegan. It is expected that the entry will exceed twenty teams, including two from Dunleer and one from Drogheda.

Sanction for the annual Dundalk Open Tournament has been given by the B.U.I., and, starting on Tuesday, February 1st, it will run till Saturday, February 12th, according as the entry and conditions with regard to local halls may require.

As mentioned some time ago, a proposal to change the League competition into one on the knock-out system was mooted, and this came up in the form of a resolution at the annual meeting, but it was defeated by a large majority. Thus, Dundalk badminton will continue as before. T. H. Boyle, the international player from the North of Ireland, has once more promised to play in the Dundalk tournament this year. He and F. Majury, another well-known player, hold the County Louth open men's doubles championship, and they will defend it.

BIG MATCH FOR DUNDALK?

It is possible that the senior interprovincial match between the Midland and Northern Branches will this season be played in Dundalk, the probable date being Saturday, November 20th. Dundalk is anxious to stage the match, but arrangements with regard to hall accommodation have to be made. At present they are endeavouring to fix these matters up, and it seems likely that they will do so successfully.

The match was to be played in the North this season, and the Midland Branch have not done anything to obtain a change of venue. This has apparently been arranged by the Badminton Union, probably for the convenience of the international selectors, whom Dundalk would suit, and as the North has no objection the idea seems to be a good one.

PLAN WORTH TRYING

The match will certainly be an excellent thing so far as Dundalk is concerned, and it is sure to draw a fine gate there. Indeed, when I heard of this I had been thinking of suggesting that some of these important contests should take place in provincial towns. The matter had occurred to me in connection with complaints with regard to the poor revenue of the Union. It is the common experience that when well-known players visit towns in the country the hall is packed with people anxious to see the performance of first-class exponents.

In Dublin, on the other hand, the case is quite different, and even at Elm Park, where spectators could look at the match in perfect comfort, the most alluring contests failed to draw as they should. Besides, it is good for players that they should see first class exponents in action, and when people see a really accomplished player they are likely to take up the game themselves, so the plan is good all round.

Indeed, I should like to see the idea further developed. Why not play the Provincial Towns' Cup at various venues in turn? Sdy, one year at Mullingar, another at Carlow, again at Longford, Drogheda, Dundalk, Kilkenny, and so on. I have several times seen the semi-finals and finals played at Elm Park producing fine matches, yet the gallery was almost empty. This should not happen where local pride ran high, and, after all, it is only fair that supporters should have an opportunity of seeing their champions in action.

While we have been occupied with considerable anxiety about domestic matters in Irish badminton, the captain of our international team, Ian Maconachie, has been winning honours. The French International Championship was recently held at the Coubertin Stadium in Paris, and Maconachie, being a competitor, won all available titles. He retained the men's singles championship of France, beating in the final the French player, Delubac. His victory was easily gained in straight games, 15-2, 15-8. He won the men's doubles with the British player, K. Smedley, beating the French pair, Burdin and Baudoin, in the final, 15-2, 15-5. He completed the series when, with the English girl, Miss F. M. Green, he won the mixed doubles, beating Smedley and Miss K. Ruston in the final. Miss Green also had three successes, beating Miss Ruston in the women's singles final, and winning the women's doubles in partnership with Miss Ruston.

WELL-FOUGHT MATCHES

Loreto Past Show Improved Form Against Trinity

BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

SELDOM, I should imagine, have a list of Senior League fixtures produced such close results as on Saturday last. Out of seven matches, three were drawn and two were decided by an odd goal. The remaining matches were easily won, the score being 6-0 in each case.

At Trinity Hall Loreto Past, who had been badly beaten by Muckross the previous week, showed much improved form, and after a very close game drew 2-all with Dublin University. There is still room for improvement in the Loreto team, especially among the forwards; for had they been quicker on the ball in the circle on Saturday their score would have been considerably larger.

A GLENAGEARY STAR

Pembroke Wanderers II. scored a 1-nil win over Glenageary, and, had it not been for the great play of Miss Lombard in the Glenageary goal, the score would have been considerably more. Newcomes proved much too strong for Bray at Woodbrook, and won by 6-0. For Newcomes Misses Tierney (back), E. O'Neill (half), Rowlands, Kenna and Quinn (forwards) were prominent; while Misses Horan (goal), Cullinan (half), Magee and Kerr (forwards) did well for Bray.

Muckross II. scored their third successive League win when they defeated Optimists II. by 6 goals to nil. Another team to keep up their run of successes was Pembroke Wanderers I., but they had a much harder fight for their win, defeating Optimists I. by 3-2. Old College II. held Monkstown to a 1-all draw at Templeogue, after a very keenly contested game.

DUBLIN UNIVERSITY H.C.

General practice to-day at Trinity Hall at 3.45.

HOW TRINITY PLAYED

Trinity, playing their first League match, showed a good turn of speed, but, like the opposing line, the forwards lacked finish in the circle. In Miss Ogden and Miss Webster they have a very useful right wing pair, the latter especially showing plenty of opportunism in the inner position. Miss Adamson, too, played well at inside left. Miss McGilligan and Miss Brown were steady in the half-line, and Miss Pike was up to her usual form at full back. In goal Miss Moffat Wilson saved a number of shots, but had no chance against either of Mias O'Beirne's goals.

Another drawn game was that between Muckross and Old College, each side scoring one goal. The forward lines on both teams were in good form, but neither defence came up to expectations. Muckross were without Miss J. White, but Miss Hyland did well as substitute, and scored their only goal. Miss M. Strahan, playing at left-wing, made a great success of the new position, thereby showing herself a most versatile player. She has already played at right-wing and centre-forward, but I think she is likely to be chosen on the left in future, as she is easily the best that Muckross have for this position.

Miss Bourke was again in fine form at right-inner, and with Miss Graham (promoted from the second XI.) combined to make a very sound right wing. The halves were not so good as in the previous week, and Miss Byrne (full back) again had too much to do, Miss Ennis not coming up to expectations. Incidentally, Miss Parsons, the Irish goalkeeper, was elected captain of Muckross on Saturday.

The Old College forward line played splendidly together, the inners being especially good. Miss Wheeler is developing into a very fine inside right. Miss Draper had a good game in the half line, and Miss Wheeler was the better back, Mrs. Warnock striking an off day.

INTERVAL LEAD LOST

Turning over at the interval with a lead of 2 goals to 1, they missed several good opportunities, and never got through once in the second half. A change was made in the back division from the week before, Miss Kelly going to her own place at full back, and Miss Cremin coming in at left-half, and this seemed to make for better defensive play. Miss McLoone was certainly given more chance of a clear sight of the play, and there was nothing like the crowding of the circle seen in the Muckross match.

Miss McLoone played a fine game in goal, especially when definitely hard pressed at periods of the second half. Misses Kelly and Dolan were sound at full back, and Miss Hart was the best of the halves. Forward, Miss Keogh had some good runs on the right wing, and Miss O'Beirne was prominent among the inners.

AMATEUR BOXING

IRISH INTERNATIONAL SUSPENDED

T. Kelly (Corinthians), Irish International light-weight, and present holder of the Leinster title in that division, was suspended for three months at a meeting of the County Dublin Board I.A.B.A. last night.

Kelly's suspension is "for conduct prejudicial to the interests of the Association and unbecoming to an amateur." It has reference to incidents which occurred at the recent Phœnix B.C. tournament at Portobello Barracks. The Corinthians' boxer was first reserve in the light-weight class for the Irish team against Wales next Friday.

Police Constable Gallagher (R.U.C.), who has been under automatic suspension since he was disqualified at the Phœnix tournament, was reinstated. He will thus be able to box for Ireland in the middle-weight division on Friday night.

Sir Herbert Grierson, Professor of Rhetoric and English Literature at Edinburgh University from 1915-35, will receive an honorary degree of Doctor of Literature from Amsterdam University.

LAND BONDS EASIER

GUINNESS HARDER

The week-end break in New York had a depressing effect on British industrials when the Dublin Stock Exchange opened yesterday morning; but towards the close they advised somewhat better from London, although the firmer trend was not reflected here. Irish industrials were fairly busy, and prices held up well.

The Free State Funds attracted a fair measure of interest. In the late dealings the Second National Loan came in sellers and lost 5s. Land Bonds fell 6s. 3d., but the 4 per cent. Bonds inclined to harden. War Loan rose 3s. 9d. to 101⅝.

Banks were busy at steady levels.

Guinness enjoyed quiet support and hardened to 127s. 9d.

In Rails, Great Southern Pref. recovered to 36¼. Dublin Tram Pref. eased to 21s. 3d., and Alliance Gas Ord. to 33s. 4½d.

Clondalkin Paper Ord. advanced to 7s. 6d., and Cement Ord. tended higher. Irish C.S. Buildings gained a point, and Goodbody Ord. were raised to 22s.

Solus Ord., Sunbeam Wolsey Ord. and Kapp and Pearson Ord. all showed small losses. May Roberts (Ireland) Ord. made headway to 49s.

Imperial Tobaccos shaded off to 149s. 9d. and B.A.T. Ord. gave way to 107s. 3d. Courtaulds Ord., and Ford Motors Ord. tended lower. Shell Transport Ord. fell 2s. 9d. to 97s. 9d.

LONDON "STREET" MARKET

A large crowd assembled in the American section of the "Street" market last evening, and with Wall street in a better mood active dealings went on for some time. An interesting and very unusual feature was provided by Chryslers, dealings in which were suspended on the New York Stock Exchange for about forty minutes owing to artificial conditions created by acute shortage of stock. The opening quotation on Wall street was around 60, but after the temporary suspension the price was called 65½ in the early dealings in Shorter's Court, and eventually closed buyers at 69. General Motors were over a point better at 41½. Steels shares also attracted considerable attention, U.S. Steels being particularly active, closing 2¼ to the good at 57⅞. Bethlehems, which were quoted at 45½, at first advanced to 49, while Republics at 18 were 1½ better. Nickels rose at one time to 46, but came back later and closed only ¼ higher at 45⅞, while Tractions and Radios showed moderate improvements at 17⅞ and 7⅞ respectively. Anacondas advanced from 5⅞ to 6 1/16. Shell Unions were bid up from 18 to 18⅞, and M. Wards finished 1⅞ better at 40⅞. Among Railroads, New York Centrals put on a point to 20½, while Canadas at 8⅞ were also better. In the Oil section, a further small rally occurred in several of the leading issues. "Shells" improved 1/16 to 4 11/16, Royal Dutch hardened ⅛ to 39⅞ and Mexican Eagles were the turn higher at 12s. 9d.

OIL YIELD

British Controlled Oilfields—Production for week ended 23rd October—12,489 barrels. For the same period Trinidad Petroleum Development Co. produced 41,908 barrels.

LONDON DEPRESSED

PRICES LOWER IN ALL SECTIONS

Following upon the sharp week-end break on Wall street, the better feeling which existed on the London Stock markets last week disappeared yesterday, to be replaced by renewed uncertainty, and, as the international political outlook was viewed with less optimism, the resumption of business witnessed liquidation on a substantial scale. Prices all round quickly developed a reactionary tendency, and Trans-Atlantics, which led the decline, were in some instances at their lowest levels of the present movement. The leading issues in the Mining market were sold by Continental, as well as local, operators, and in consequence dealers here quoted very wide prices as a precautionary measure. Just before the end news of a sharp improvement on Wall street enabled issues to rally well, but even so the close was dull and heavy, and losses occurred with depressing regularity.

BRITISH FUNDS.

Gilt-edged stocks opened in subdued fashion, but while the leading issues eased off during the morning, the market as a whole put up good resistance to sales, and eventually movements on balance were mostly favourable. Old Consols and Local Loans, which dropped ⅛ to 74¼ and 85¼ respectively, were the only dull spots.

FOREIGN BONDS.

The feature among Foreign Bonds was a general set-back in Brazilians. Far Easterns conformed to surrounding conditions at first, but subsequently Chinese Government issues managed to return to their previous closing levels. Japanese descriptions remained dull throughout, however, and the Sixes finished a point down at 63.

RAILS.

The British Rail section was especially susceptible to liquidation, and dealers quoted appreciably lower rates for all the junior stocks and a number of the prior charges. Some recovery occurred in the late dealings, but even so Great Western Ord. finished ¾ down on the day, and heavy falls were noticeable in L.M.S. Ord. and Southern Prefd. Weakness also characterised the Foreign Rail section, though a firm exception was provided by Cordoba Central Debs. American Rails were quoted at reduced levels throughout the list, and among Colonials most of last week's recovery in Canadian Pacifics was wiped out.

INDUSTRIALS.

Dealers in Industrials encountered no heavy selling pressure, but owing to the general nervousness modest liquidation was soon reflected in values. Trans-Atlantics formed the weakest group, and, although there was an upward turn before the official close, United States Steels and "Nickels" finished substantially lower. Motors formed another weak group, and sharp losses were the rule among Iron and Steels, Shipping, Electrical Equipment, and Brewery Shares. Other dull features included British Oxygen, the two Unilevers, Triplex, and the leading Cement and Rayon issues.

MINES.

A sharp, all-round fall in Mining Shares was succeeded by some support at the reduced levels, and in the late dealings many issues came above the lowest. Nevertheless, De Beers Defd. lost the greater part of their recent recovery, and sharp losses were sustained by West Wits, Western Reefs and many other Kaffirs. Rhodesian Coppers also showed several weak spots, and Tin Shares were unsettled by the fall in the metal price. Among the latter, Mawchi suffered badly.

THE MONEY MARKET

SILVER PRICES IMPROVE

Demand for gold was not quite so keen in the bullion market yesterday. Turnover totalled only £390,000, and the premium narrowed to 2½d. With the dollar steady at 4.95.10 at the fixing, this resulted in the price falling ½d. to 140s. 7½d. per fine ounce.

A little speculative buying was responsible for an improvement of 1/16 in both spot and forward silver yesterday. Spot rose to 19 11/16, and forward to 19⅞ per ounce.

Day-to-day loans were in quiet demand at ½ per cent., while bill rates were maintained at 11/16-⅝ per cent.

The franc suffered a sharp reverse yesterday, weakening against sterling to the lowest point for over a week. The demand for francs, which persisted right up to the close of last week had given place to nervous selling, side by side with renewed speculative activity. The market opened with a very weak appearance, and within an hour the French authorities were forced to intervene in support of the exchange. The fall in the franc was promptly checked, and the "control" then pegged the rate for the remainder of the day against a dwindling volume of pressure.

No attempt was made to stem the decline in the forward franc, and discounts were materially higher at the close. The recent weakness in the belga also became more acute yesterday. The Belgian authorities supported the exchange through gold shipments to the United States, but the weakness of the forward market provided a full reflection of the prevailing uneasiness. Movements in the dollar, and in other European currencies, were for the most part narrow and of little interest.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

ANOTHER GENERAL SETBACK

The vagaries of Wall street and international fears again upset the equilibrium of the Industrial market yesterday. Prices were marked down as a result of another break at that centre, but better advices were received later, and the Trans-Atlantic counters improved sharply after official hours.

U.S. Steels dipped to 51¼ at one time, recovered to 58 after official hours in the "street," and eventually closed at 57⅞. Nickels rallied from a low level to 42½ to 46 and finished at 45⅞. "Emmies" sagged to 17s. 3d. and E.K. Cole to 12s.

Cable and Wireless Stocks were also dull, the Ord. losing ⅜ at 66⅞.

MOTOR SHARES RELAPSE.

Although displaying a slightly firmer tendency towards the close, Iron and Steel Shares, with only a few exceptions, were down on the day.

Apart from Henleys, which improved 7½d. to 19s. 7½d., Electrical Equipments developed a heavy tone in the absence of demand. Generals were a dull spot, falling 1s. 7½d. to 78s. 9d., after 78s. 3d.

Despite the apparent success of the Motor Show, Motor Shares made a poor showing. Standards lost another ¼ to 5¼, Austins were 1s. down at 37s., while Alvis, Morris and Rovers showed lesser declines, and Triplex Glass were quoted ⅛ down at 2⅞.

A generally dull tone prevailed among the Aircrafts, and most prices receded sharply. Blackburns declined 1s. 6d. to 21s. 6d., Hawker-Siddeleys finished 1s. 3d. lower at 27s. 4½d., as did Handley Page at 45s.

BREWERIES LOSE GROUND.

After a fairly steady opening, Breweries reflected the general trend, but declines on balance rarely exceeded 1s. Ind Coope lost their improvement of last Friday with a fall of 2s. to 118s., while Bass Ratcliff were lowered to 133s., Guinness were maintained at 127s.

The Tobacco leaders were subject to a little scattered selling though support was noticeable at the lower levels. "Bats," Carreras, Gallahers and "Imps" were all 1/16 easier.

In the Provision and Catering group Unilever issues were offered from Amsterdam, but rallied from the lowest. The Ordinary lost 1s. 1½d. at 36s. 4½d. after 35s. 10½d. and the N.V. 1s. 4½d. at 37s. 4½d. after 35s. 10½d.

The Stores group reflected the general uncertainty. Woolworth dipped to 67s. 6d. at first and eventually closed with a net loss of 1s. at 68s. Marks and Spencer were offered at one time at 3 1/16, but closed buyers at that figure, which however, still left them 1/16 down on balance.

TEXTILES DULL.

Textiles developed a dull appearance, but movements on balance did not amount to much. J. and P. Coats finished 6d. easier at 43s. 7½d.

With few exceptions, Rayons had an uncertain appearance. Courtaulds were offered at one time at 48s. 10½d., but closed buyers at 49s.

Shipping shares generally had a heavy appearance. Court Lines weakened 1s. 6d. to 22s. 3d. and Clan Line gave way ⅛ to 8.

A generally dull tone prevailed in the Miscellaneous section and most of the leading issues recorded substantial declines. British Oxygens lost their previous gain of 1/16 to 4 11/16, and Turner and Newalls were also a dull spot at 4 1/16. British Plaster Boards slipped back to 31s., as did Pinchin Johnsons to 40s. 9d.

PARTIAL RALLY IN OILS

Mainly as a result of the fresh break on Wall street on Saturday last, the Oil Share market made a dull start yesterday, and particularly prices of international counters were marked down. Moderate realisations of "Shells" and the Eagle issues were encountered from Paris, while there was some selling of Royal Dutch on Amsterdam account. In the afternoon, when New York was reported to have come over firmer, leading counters made a partial recovery, purchases being induced locally, while Continental operators turned small buyers. On balance, however, declines were still general, those mainly affected being "Shells," Royal Dutch, Burmahs, Trinidad Leaseholds, and Venezuelan Oil Concessions.

RUBBERS LOWER

Sentiment in the Rubber Share market yesterday was dominated by the weakness of surrounding departments, and, from the outset, quotations moved unfavourably under pressure of liquidation. The behaviour of the commodity was not calculated to improve matters, and, as the session progressed, selling increased in volume and became more widespread. Support was noticeable at the reduced levels, however, and consequently some of the principal issues picked up slightly in the late dealings. Nevertheless, Telogs, United Sua Betong, and Batu Tiga, all finished about 1s. lower on balance, and smaller declines were marked by Rubber Trust, Golden Hope, and Anglo-Dutch. Business in the commodity section was slow, with spot rubber selling down to 7 5/16d. per lb. United Kingdom rubber stocks increased by 165 tons last week.

LONDON MINING MARKET

BIG LOSSES IN ALL SECTIONS

The slump in Wall street and the uncertainty regarding the political situation in Europe created a depressing influence throughout all markets, and of course the mining sections were not exempt. There was not a great deal of real selling, however, in the Kaffir department, though this section suffered with most others.

Rhodesians relapsed heavily in the early dealings, the Copper descriptions being lower with the metal, and although in the later dealings professional demand lifted prices here and there, final quotations were still well below the overnight's levels, the shrinkages in many cases being of substantial proportions.

Diamonds, though well above the worst, still showed substantial losses. The West African department kept relatively steady, although prices here and there were marked down in the absence of demand. The heavy drop in the price of the metal and the uncertainty as to the quota allowances—the January to March quarter is 85 per cent. of standard—which will not be fixed until the December meeting, had a depressing influence on Tin shares. Closing prices:—

Conditions in America

The National City Bank of New York, in its latest review, remarks that the best assurance against a major recession in the United States is that the conditions which usually precede it have not yet developed: "It would be something novel to go into a second depression before getting completely out of the first, without an interval of much more pronounced boom conditions and over-expansion than has yet appeared during this recovery." One of the managers of the London office of Frazier Jelke and Company, the New York Stock Exchange house, has returned from a six weeks' visit to the United States with much the same impression of the economic situation as it is. "The background of a major business depression," he says, "seems to be lacking; there was little over-expansion, except, possibly, in consumer goods, during the period of optimism." But this observer points out that it is almost impossible to understand the present situation in the American market, except by reference, not to the economic, but to the political background. Everybody in Wall street, he reports, admits that the economic warnings of a major depression are lacking, and also that it would be to the disadvantage of the Administration, politically, to permit business deterioration to go far, but there are few people, he suggests, who believe that the "money managers" will find it possible to revive confidence.

WOOL

BRADFORD—There has been no further change in quotations for tops; merinos are steady on basis of 32½d. for 64's warp, and business is quieter. There is not enough business on offer to test value of cross-breds, quotations are based on 22½d. for 50's and 20½d. for 40's. Yarn market quiet.

MELBOURNE — Keen competition marked yesterday's wool sale here, and 91 per cent. of the 11,000 bales offered were sold. Prices were very firm compared with those obtained at recent auctions. The Continent and Yorkshire were the principal buyers, and strong inquiry came from Japan. The average prices obtained at the wool sales held here last week were £18 0/6 a bale and 14.13d. a lb.

PERTH (W.A.)—Bradford was the chief buyer at the wool sale held here yesterday. Prices were 5 to 7½ per cent. lower than those obtained at the previous sale at Perth. There was a total catalogue of 19,786 bales, which made up a good selection, and 14,700 bales were sold under the hammer.

Elizabeth Stratton (18), of Downing street (Shankill road), Belfast, who fell downstairs at her home, was detained in the Mater Hospital on Sunday suffering from slight concussion and head injuries.

Crampton, amounting to £229,699 for the erection of 453 four-roomed houses and the construction of roads and sewers in the North Crumlin housing area, be accepted subject to the approval of the Minister for Local Government and Public Health.

Permission was granted for the erection of a Civic Guard Barrack at the corner of Herberton road and Crumlin road.

SENTENCE FOR CRUELTY REDUCED

John Thompson, of Fraser street, Belfast, yesterday appealed to the Belfast Recorder against a magistrate's sentence of four months' imprisonment for cruelty to his six months old daughter. His sentence was reduced to one month, the Recorder remarking that the sentence was too heavy.

Thompson said that he married on six shillings a week income, and went to work in Glasgow. In the meantime his wife had a baby, and when he returned to Belfast he was arrested and convicted of cruelty to the child by neglecting her. He said that he had never seen the child.

THE AMERICAN MARKETS

SUDDEN RECOVERY FROM EARLY DROP

STRONG CLOSE

From Reuter's Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Monday.

Though there was no obvious reason to inspire such a spectacular recovery, Wall Street to-day more than regained an early fall, embracing as much as 5 dollars. A wave of aggressive buying quickly converted the previous losses, and final advances ranging to 4 dollars—in a few instances extending between 5 and 10 dollars—were general. While the news from Europe and the Far East was not quite so cheerful, the revival of buying was attributed to the belief that New York stocks are now oversold, even if the worst fears of a further recession in American business are realised. Sales totalled 2,340,000 shares.

The opening was weak, with fairly large blocks of shares being dealt in early at lower prices. Later in the morning the "ticker" dropped three minutes behind, but the setback was then stemmed by good support—especially for the Rails and Steels, which recovered fractions to a point from their earlier lows.

This volte face initiated a scramble to participate in the rally, in which the Steels, Rails, Farm Implements, and Chemicals were most prominent at mid-day. Steel shares continued to rise even after the announcement by the Iron and Steel Institute of lower output by mills this week. But at this point a number of operators displayed a disposition to "go slow" in view of the important meetings scheduled for this week, including those of United Steel, Bethlehem Steel, and, possibly, Chrysler Motors.

A further advance in the later dealings attracted more realising, but the market finished only slightly under its best, and the close was strong.

Sterling exchange opened 1/16 up at 4.95⅛, and remained at this level throughout the session. The rate finally closed 1/16 higher—compared with the previous close—at 4.95⅛.

Silver was unchanged at 44¾c.

MALLOW SUGAR FACTORY

NEW SEASON'S WORK OPENED

From Our Correspondent.

MALLOW, Monday.

The sugar manufacturing period lasts from late October to mid-January, and to-day the hum of the machinery in the local factory could be heard at a considerable distance. The seven hundred hands work in three shifts, commencing 1 a.m., 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

The Mallow factory beet area stretches from South Wexford to West Kerry, and to ensure a steady flow of beet from all parts necessitates a well-planned scheme of organisation.

The chief agricultural adviser at Mallow is Mr. W. A. Gahan, and his assistants are Messrs. M. J. Hyland, E. A. Burke, and B. McInerney.

Approximately 150,000 tons of beet will pass through the machines during the next three months.

MEDICAL RESEARCH GRANTS

REPORT TO "SWEEP" COMMITTEE

At a meeting of the Associated Hospitals' Sweepstake Committee held in the Gresham Hotel, Dublin, the following report from the Medical Research Council of Saorstat Eireann was received and discussed:—

"The Medical Research Council of Saorstat Eireann has been established for some months, with offices at 85 Merrion square, Dublin. It has offered grants under three main heads—grants for training in research, research grants and grants in aid. The Council has already made fourteen grants to Irish graduates for training or research work, to be carried out in the Irish Free State, in England, in Canada, in the United States, and in Switzerland. Of these grants, four are for training in methods of research, as it is felt that by offering such training grants the Council would be assisting young graduates anxious to devote their time to research work who might otherwise be forced to abandon such work. After one year's training, either in this country or abroad, it is hoped that these graduates will take their place in the field of research which is being opened in the Irish Free State under the auspices of the Medical Research Council.

"Four of the grant-holders are already at work, and it is expected that before the end of the year the remainder will have commenced work on the investigation of many physiological problems and on work of immediate practical importance in connection with tuberculosis, diphtheria, streptococcal infection, obstetrics and heart disease.

"In future the Council proposes to consider applications for grants three times each year, and it is hoped, as the work of the Council expands, that this country may contribute important results as to the problems which are engaging research workers in other countries."

A statement on the work of the Hospital Library Council was made by Miss ffrench Mullen, who is a member of both the Associated Hospitals' Sweepstake Committee and the Library Council. She explained that for the present at least the work of the Council must be confined to the voluntary and semi-voluntary hospitals, and that a beginning was being made by supplying books to sanatoria.

The question of the non-payment in full of the hospital deficits for the year 1935 was raised, and it was stated by some of the members that they understood that a promise had been made by the Minister on behalf of the Department of Local Government that the 1935 deficits would be re-examined individually, and the Executive Committee was requested to approach the Minister on the matter.

COLLECTION OF TITHE RENTS

STATEMENT BY DR. RYAN

From Our Correspondent.

ROSSLARE HARBOUR, Monday.

Mr. P. P. Moody, Chairman of Rosslare Harbour Fianna Fail Cumann, presided at a Wexford Comhairle Ceanntair Fianna Fail meeting at Killinick, County Wexford, last night.

Mr. E. Murphy, Chairman of Killinick Cumann, said that in that area they had been agitating with the Land Commission to cease collecting tithe rents. They were unjust rents placed on the tenants by the landlords for the upkeep of the Protestant Church, and were never removed. The demand note stated that the Protestant Church benefited, but the Land Commission said it did not.

Dr. Ryan said he had gone into the matter with the Land Commission. There was no use going back on history, but as far as could be traced back the tithe rents were payable in the beginning to the Catholic Church, and in the course of time they went to the Protestant Church. Then the Government of the time, as it were, "bought out" the Church, and in order to recoup themselves for buying it out they continued the tithe rent charge. This was payable in the majority of cases by the landlords, and the tenant did not know what portion of his rent went to the disestablishment fund. "It is not a penal charge," continued the Minister, "at least, in my opinion. After all, you might as well regard the annuities as a penal charge. When the Protestant Church was bought out the Government collected the tithe rent to recoup themselves. I say definitely that the Protestant Church is not getting the tithe rents now. The State is getting them, and if they were wiped out we would have to in tax in some other way. Every tenant in the country is paying this tithe rent, although in every case it is not called tithe rent." Under the 1933 Land Act the annuities were halved, and, wherever a tithe rent charge was payable, it, too, was halved.

THE GOOD COMPANIONS

OPENING CONCERT OF EIGHTH SEASON

That there is support for good-class music when well performed appears to be the conclusion to be drawn from the large audience which attended the opening concert of the present season by the Good Companions last night. Notwithstanding the wretched weather, the Aberdeen Hall was comfortably filled, there being but a few empty chairs in the back rows. It was a practical manifestation of the hold which this very accomplished body of singers—now in their eighth season—has established on the music-loving public. Although the programme last night did not contain anything representative of the Elizabethan Madrigalists, it contained many delightful samples of choral work by modern composers, notably the opening group of Five English Pastorals by Alec Rowley, set after the olden style to poems by Spenser, Dryden, Beaumont, and others. One liked also the later group by Parry, Stanford and Boughton.

The singing of the group in all these songs showed that penetrating understanding so characteristic of their work. Their phrasing and shading were marked by great delicacy, and they brought out the message of the words with telling effect. The balance was surprisingly good, but one cannot say that the tone quality was always as perfect. The sopranos, for instance, were inclined to pinch the top notes, with occasional lapse of tone, and the tenors on occasion were reedy. One had really to be hypercritical to note faults.

The Good Companions are nothing if not original, and, living up to that reputation, they presented a group of four songs by Brahms, set for female voices, with the accompaniment of harp and two horns. The venture met with great success, the ensemble being very pleasant, the voices blending well with the wind instruments, which were not at all out of place in such a hall. The scoring gave one yet another illustration of how well Brahms knew his instruments and their capabilities. There was another evidence of Brahms's versatility in the Liebeslieder Walzer, that delightful collection of waltz songs which Brahms has strung together here. The singers caught the varying moods of the songs and sent them dancing along with lovely rhythm.

The pianoforte accompaniments were played with artistic effect by Mrs. Eileen Coyle and Mr. Havelock Nelson, the latter gallantly stepping into the breach caused by the enforced absence through illness of Mrs. Edith Boxwell.

Assisting the Good Companions in their programme was Miss Sancha Pielou, the young Dublin harpist, who is now with the B.B.C. This young player graduated through the Royal Irish Academy of Music in Dublin, and naturally she had an enthusiastic reception. That she richly merited such warm applause was evident in her playing of Renie's Legende, from "Les Elfes," by Leconte de Lisle. It is a very descriptive piece, calling for technique of exceptional degree, and Miss Pielou met the demand admirably, some of her effects being a sheer delight to hear. Later she played a dainty Passacaille by Handel, Gitana by Hasselmans, and Am Springbrunnen by Zabel, who certainly knew how to bring out the most attractive features of the harp. Miss Pielou also played very effectively the accompaniments in the Brahms group, especially in the lovely lament with which the work concluded.

LABOUR PARTIES, NORTH AND SOUTH

BELFAST MAN'S SPEECH IN ARMAGH

From Our Correspondent.

ARMAGH, Monday.

In the Armagh Labour Club a largely-attended meeting of the Armagh Labour Party was held last night, Mr. John Hagan presiding.

Councillor McElroy, Belfast, in a speech dealing with the situation in the Irish Free State, commented on the growth of the Irish Labour Party as evidenced by the results of the last general election. He expressed the opinion that there would be a labour majority in the Dail at the Free State at the second next general election. The Labour Party in the Dail was possessed of very capable administrators, and in his opinion a Labour majority in the Dail would do for the Irish Free State what the New Zealand and Scandinavian Labour Governments had done for their respective countries.

Referring to the position in Northern Ireland, he said that the Northern Ireland party was determined to assist the British party in so far as the thirteen Parliamentary seats at Westminster were concerned. It had drawn up an electoral programme for the Northern Ireland area. This programme advocated, inter alia, proportional representation for Parliamentary and Local Government elections, abolition of University seats, that the Prime Minister's salary be reduced to £2,000, and that of the other Cabinet Ministers to £1,000, and that Cabinet Ministers should not be allowed to act as company directors during their term of office; a legislative minimum wage for all adults, a maximum working week of 40 hours, the taxation of land values and a good water scheme for Northern Ireland.

MOTORING RECORDS BROKEN

MAJOR GARDNER BEATS OWN RECORDS

Press Association Foreign Special.

BERLIN, Monday.

The well-known British racing motorist, Major A. T. G. Gardner, broke two international Class "G" records previously held by himself when the Frankfurt Autobahn Meeting was begun to-day.

Driving his 1,100 c.c. M.G. Magnette, Major Gardner covered the kilometre (flying start) in 15.04 seconds, at an average speed of 239.361 kilometres (about 148.7 miles) an hour; and one mile (flying start) in 24.205 seconds, at an average of 239.356 kilometres (about 148.7 miles) an hour.

The previous records, held by Major Gardner himself, were 142.2 m.p.h. for the kilometre, and 148.5 m.p.h. for the mile.

Berndt Rosemeyer, the "crack" German driver, in an Auto-Union, established seven new records for the 3 to 5-litre class. He twice bettered the figures for the kilometre and one mile (flying start).

T.D. OPPOSES SALARY INCREASES

POINTS TO COMMUNISM DANGERS

From Our Correspondent.

TRIM, Monday.

Speaking at Crossakiel, Meath, yesterday, Captain Patrick Giles, T.D., said that he did not approve of the Government proposal to increase the salaries of deputities, and he would vote against it. They did not hear much about the "rack-rents" the farmers of the country were paying, or of the increased cost of living. The Government's sole aim seemed to be big business, oil refineries and air bases, on which hundreds of thousands of pounds were to be spent. Those would serve to put Ireland in the first line trenches when the next European war broke out.

To-day the Government were dividing up the land and making uneconomic holdings. The man at the head of this partitioned little country was to receive £15,000 a year when there was already a man at the head of the country—King George.

President de Valera, he said, could not go to Geneva unless his card was stamped by the King.

Wherever there was industrialism on a large scale there was Communism. There were cells in Dublin, Mullingar and other places, and unless the farmers and workers of the country could live decently communism would come.

HEAVY RAIN IN DUBLIN

The long, dry spell which had been experienced over most of Ireland and the West of England for several weeks ended late on Sunday night, when rain began to fall. The rain continued all yesterday with one or two brief intervals, and occasionally it fell so heavily, driven by a strong, cold wind, that the streets in Dublin were almost cleared of pedestrians. There were no reports of flooding up to late last night. The outlook is stated to be unsettled, although last night there was a rise in the barometer, which had fallen more or less steadily during the day. Distant rumbles of thunder were heard as dusk fell, and there were one or two flashes of lightning.

THE TEACHING OF ARITHMETIC

Lecturing at Queen's University, Belfast, last night on "The Programme and Method of Teaching Arithmetic," Professor Hughes Dowling, B.A., referred to what he called the present unjustifiable system of teaching the subject. He said that teachers had for too long been influenced by the mathematician, and had taught arithmetic to the children, instead of educating them. Some members of the teaching profession, he said, had for years been questioning the old method, and this new attitude was progressing slowly, but surely.

In conclusion, Professor Dowling gave some details of a system of teaching arithmetic which he has compiled.

R.A.F. FLIGHT TO AUSTRALIA

FOR CENTENARY CELEBRATIONS

A General Reconnaissance Squadron of the Royal Air Force is to fly to Australia. The flight has been arranged by the British Air Ministry as a contribution to the centenary celebrations, and the machines are scheduled to arrive in Australia early next year. The General Reconnaissance squadrons of the Royal Air Force now include both landplane and flying boat squadrons, for it was recently decided that the separate title of flying boat squadron should be abolished. Every year a number of long-distance flights are made by the R.A.F. in various parts of the Empire as part of the annual training, but up to the present the longest service formation flight ever undertaken as a single task was made in 1927 by the Supermarine Southampton flying boats belonging to No. 205 Squadron.

After leaving England the squadron flew to Karachi, round the coast of India to Australia, round Australia, back to Hong Kong, and finally to Singapore. The total distance flown was 28,000 miles, and at no time did the squadron diverge from the predetermined time schedule. Later on the same squadron, in 1932, made a tour of the Andaman and Nicobar Islands, but the 1927 flight remains to this day a record. The Southamptons used had two Napier "Lion" engines, and the normal crew consisted of five men.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL

ALLEGED OFFER OF BRIBE

VILLA'S GOALKEEPER "APPROACHED"

The Press Association was informed yesterday that Aston Villa's goal-keeper, Biddlestone, had received a letter, posted in Belfast, in which he was offered £1,000 to lose matches. Biddlestone, it is added, reported the matter to the Villa officials, who, however, do not attach much importance to it. The letter read:—

"Dear Biddlestone, as goal-keeper of Aston Villa, you occupy a vital position, and if you are inclined to listen to reason your salary can be considerably augmented. As one of a syndicate, it is our intention to bring about a few shock results. Our experience is that it is the shockers that upset the football coupons. . . . The plan is to simply arrange for the leading clubs to lose at home to the lower clubs—the lower the better.

"Now, for every match you are prepared to lose at home—if the goal-keeper has not the winning of the match he has the losing of one—we are prepared to pay you the sum of £750, with a further £250 by way of a bonus, if everything comes out okay. This letter is anonymous, and we made a special journey to Ireland for the sole purpose of posting it, so as to cover up our tracks in case inquiries were set going.

"In the course of a few days a certain party will sound you as to whether you are agreeable or not. If this proposition has no appeal to you we would ask you as a favour to kindly destroy this letter; but we think you will be very foolish to let such an easy way of making money slip past you. It is when the Cup-ties come round that we intend to reap a rich harvest, with a few sensational results."

SCOTTISH XI. V. WALES

The Scottish team to oppose Wales at Cardiff on Saturday next was chosen yesterday as follows:—

The Welsh F.A. were still undecided last night regarding the composition of their team, and postponed publication of the side until to-day.
